Police Oust Protesters From Hotel

CHICAGO (AP) — Police stormed through the 15th floor of the Conrad Hilton Hotel early today, clubbing and chasing supporters and aides of Sen. Eugene McCarthy after a barrage of smoked fish and empty beer cans clanged down on Michigan Avenue.

Illinois National Guardsmen were stationed on the avenue.

The police swept some 50 youths from the floor down to the lobby. Police said there were no arrests. They said none of the youths was registered in the hotel. McCarthy's people claimed otherwise.

Anthony Podesta, 24, McCarthy's convention advance man, said he and about 20 McCarthy people were in suites 1506 and 1508 when the police "barged in."

"They claimed the room was listed as vacant on the hotel's lists and we had to leave," Podesta said. "This simply was not true."

John Warren, 24, the Arkansas coordinator for the McCarthy campaign, was struck on the head by a nightstick. Dr. William Davidson of Boston, McCarthy headquarters medical chief, said he treated three persons who had been clubbed.

One of those chased down to the lobby was Mary Beth McCarthy, 19, the senator's niece. In the lobby, some 30 of the youths sat on the floor in the elevator area, singing: "We Shall Overcome."

Many of the youths were allowed to return to the 15th floor after McCarthy interceded with officials.

"I'm shocked beyond belief," McCarthy said as he viewed the melee scene on the 15th floor.

"If this was a case of smoked fish and beer cars that provoked this incident, then political conventions are through," he added.

Police said they used telescopes to determine the windows from which the debris was falling onto the Illinois National Guardsmen patrolling Michigan Avenue in front of the Hilton, the headquarters hotel for the Democratic National Convention which ended Thursday night.

Muskie Selected As Running Mate

CHICAGO (AP) — With a little-known senator from a small state as his handpicked running mate, Democratic presidential candidate Hubert H. Humphrey starts a campaign that will first require plugging the gaping holes of party unity.

At Humphrey's request, the Democratic National Convention Thursday night dutifully delivered the vice presidential nomination to Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, a former Maine governor who has acquired the reputation of a capable senator, but not national popularity.

The convention closed after a week of discord, sometimes vitrioloc, on a night marked again in downtown Chicago by police and National Guard troops firing tear gas and swinging clubs to break up demonstrations by anti-Vietnam war protesters.

After going through the motions of selecting Muskie, delegates cheered and waved banners to the tune of "Happy Days Are Here Again" as Humphrey took the podium to accept the presidential nomination and plead for national unity and justice.

Signalling his promotion from President Johnson's team to his now sovereign position as his party's nominee, the vice president told the delegates that their areas of agreement are much greater than those of division.

On the sorest issue of all, he said:

"Let those who believe our cause in Vietnam has been right —and those who believe it has been wrong—agree here and now: Neither vindication nor repudiation will bring peace or be worthy of our country...

"If there is one lesson we should have learned, it is that the policies of tomorrow need not be limited by the policies of yesterday.

"If I am president, I shall apply that lesson to the search for peace in Vietnam as to all other areas of national politics..."

He told the convention that the "trouble in America ... comes not from lack of faith but from a killing of hope." He said new aspirations have been awakened but have been accompanied by impatience for solutions of the problems of race, poverty, crime, hunger and despair. But he added:

"Violence breeds counterviolence. Disorder destroys. Only order can build. Riot makes for ruin, reason makes for solution." He said any president must assume responsibility to "guarantee to every American the right to personal security."

With the pattern of his campaign thus sketched, Humphrey begins overhauling the party organization with the election today of a national party chairman to succeed John M. Bailey of Connecticut, who has served in the spot since 1960.

Gov. John N. Dempsey of Connecticut said the word had come down that Lawrence F. O'Brien, former postmaster general and a long-time political adviser to the assassinated Kennedy brothers, had been tapped for the post. O'Brien was Humphrey's convention manager.

Edmund Muskie

Others thought that Sen. Fred Harris of Oklahoma, co-chairman of Humphrey's pre-convention campaign was in the running and there was some talk that Delton Houtchens, Missouri state chairman, might be in line for the post.

Second only to the demonstration for Humphrey was the convention's tribute to Robert F. Kennedy, who might have wrested the nomination from Humphrey if he had not been assassinated on the night that he won the June 4 California primary.

Delegates responded with a cheering, singing tribute to the showing of a 20-minute film depicting Kennedy's career and life.

Some of those who wanted to draft Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts, the surviving brother, went home hardly mollified by Humphrey's choice of Muskie. Kennedy himself had stopped what at one point looked like a threat to Humphrey by saying he could not accept either nomination.

There was some grumbling among Southerners that Muskie was too much of a liberal to suit their conservative taste. And the doubt whether Humphrey can beat Nixon in November hovered like a cloud over some state delegations.

The 6-foot-5 Muskie, a 54-year-old Roman Catholic who has served in the Senate since 1959, epitomized party disagreement over how to end the Vietnam war. He supported a Humphrey-endorsed platform plank that called for a halt in the bombing of North Vietnam only when Hanoi shows a willingness to reciprocate militarily.

But Muskie conceded that he and Humphrey "have a different evaluation of the risks involved in stopping the bombing." For his own part, the vice presidential nominee said he would "actively pursue the prospects of a bombing halt" while consulting with Paris peace negotiators and military leaders.

The convention's deep split when it rejected a dovish

Parma Votes Plant Bonds

PARMA--A $450,000 municipal industrial revenue bond issue for an industrial development project on behalf on New England Industries Inc. of Connecticut was approved by voters Thursday, 294-3.

The bond issue was for an expansion project of Inland Shoe Co. of Clayton, a subsidiary of New England Industries.

Mayor Randall Ramsey said construction should start in 30 days. The new facility will have 100,000 square feet of floor space. The present Inland facility will be converted into a warehouse.

The plant employs 100. The company expects to employ 400 to 500 within two years after the new building is completed.

The bonds will be retired in 15 years from revenue received from the company.

Soviet Tanks Pull out Of Prague

PRAGUE (AP) — Scores of Soviet tanks pulled out of Prague today as Communist leaders assembled for a party congress debate on Moscow's demands for sharp curtailment of Cechoslovak liberalization.

The liberal leaders who signed an accord in Moscow already have cautioned against resistance. The local party leaders have to decide whether to reject the accord or find ways to live with it in hope they can convince Moscow that most of the 350,000 Soviet bloc occupation troops can leave the country soon.

The National Assembly already had rejected the accord, which says Soviet, Polish, East German, Hungarian and Bulgarian forces will remain until the situation "normalizes." But in Communist countries, it is what the party does that counts.

The Soviet tank withdrawal to camps outside the city apparently was part of the effort of the occupying forces and the Czechoslovak government to make the situation appear as nearly normal as possible.

The main points in the city were still occupied by Soviet forces, especially the newspaper offices, the radio and television studios and Ceteka, the national news agency. Russian trucks with machine gunners still patrolled the streets.

Employes of the streetcars and buses served notice on city authorities they would not operate after 8 p.m. unless they had guarantees for the safety of their passengers and themselves.

Life in Prague was hardly changed. There were queues at food stores and any place where motorcyclists distrubuted copies of underground newspapers.

Prazke Noviny, a mimeographed newspaper purportedly issued by the Prague city administration, said Soviet officials called on the deputy mayor and demanded that "illegal" newspapers and radio transmitters cease their activities and posters and painted slogans calling for resistance against the occupation be removed. The deputy mayor called on the Russians to withdraw their tanks from several points in the city so that work on the Prague subway project could continue, the newspaper said.

Antioccupation posters and painted slogans were still evident in most sections of Prague but they appeared to be gradually getting fewer.

While pledging to cooperate with the government in ceasing anti-Soviet polemics, the editorial staffs of several newspapers have come out strictly against reimposition of censorship, one of Moscow's demands.

Meanwhile, the old and the new central committees of the Czechoslovak Communist party were reported to be in contact to discuss the future set-up of the party. The Russians have called on party chief Alexander Dubcek to void the election of the new liberal Central Committee formed at a secret party congress in Prague last week.

There were various rumors on the circumstances of Dubcek's arrest by the Russians. One said President Ludvik Svoboda threatened to shoot himself unless Dubcek was permitted to join in at the Moscow conference table. There was no way to verify such rumors.

Kidnaped Child Rescued

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — FBI agents rescued the 4-year-old son of a banker from a kidnaper today after an auto chase that ended in a ramming and a gun battle — with the boy used as a shield.

Officers said they arrested the kidnaper, wounded. The boy suffered a leg injury. A ransom of $250,000 in $20 bills apparently never was turned over.

FBI agent Emmett D. Doherty suffered what was described as minor bullet wound and the kidnaper was shot in the right arm.

"Why don't you kill me," agents quoted Robert L. Dacy as saying as they pulled him from a car in south central Los Angeles after the fight.

Dacy, 39, of nearby Lakewood, was taken to Morningside Hospital for treatment.

So was Stanley Stalford Jr. The little boy with curly red hair was still wearing the blue swim suit he had on when abducted Wednesday from the family's expensive home in this plush community.

Doctors took seven stitches in the boy's left knee and treated a scratch on his head. He suffered both injuries in the auto crash that involved the car of at least one additional motorist passing by.

The boy's father, chairman of the board of the $100-million Fidelity Bank of Beverly Hills, and his mother, Joanne, waited in an anteroom while the doctors worked.

Then Stalford, 49, clutched the boy to his chest and took him to the family's luxury car.

"It is impossible to say how pleased my wife and I are," he said. "Needless to say we are very pleased."

Mrs. Stalford could only mutter, "Wonderful. Just wonderful!"

She said the boy couldn't recount his frightening experience "because he is under sedation and he is dazed."

The youngster looked stunned as his father hoisted him over his right shoulder.

The family got into the car and drove home.

The rescue followed anguished hours of negotiating between an intermediary of the parents and the kidnaper, who agents said left a note demanding $250,000 in the same closet where he dumped Mrs. Stalford after taping her hands, feet and mouth before fleeing with the boy in one of the family's luxury cars.

The intermediary was a friend of the family, restaurant owner Red Tracton, who said he talked to the kidnaper by telephone "15 times from 7 p.m. on" Thursday night.

"He called me at the restaurant first," said Tracton, a stocky man with red hair. "We set up places to meet. I kept the appointments, but he never showed up."

Tracton said the kidnaper finally set a meeting place on a "lonely, deserted road" in the Los Angeles suburb of El Segundo near Los Angeles International Airport.

"I broke every traffic regulation I could think of" getting there, Tracton said, fearing he had lost contact.

An officer stopped him and started writing a ticket.

"Get away from me," he told the policeman. "Call the FBI and tell them I'm meeting the kidnaper. If you don't believe

A one car accident in Perry county, and a two-motorcycle accident in Cape Girardeau, accounted for two highway accidents.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

The shock of the Kremlin bloc countries' invasion of Czechoslovakia isn't what it was 20 years ago.

It does reveal that the essential nature of Communism as an unyielding, unreasonable, bloody, dishonest, dictatorial, rigid and inflexible force is essentially unchanged.

It was a cat and a mouse game that the Russians played on Czechoslovakia, culminating with the unexpected and brutal invasion of the unhappy country.

It is obvious that Russian Communism permits no slight deviation from the party line and that even the smallest freedoms will not be tolerated.

Russia cannot be trusted by friend or foe alike. No one was more surprised by the invasion than the leaders of Czechoslovakia, who had just gone throught the window dressing routine of receiving leaders of Soviet bloc countries in a series of state visits.

The negotiations were merely a deceptive implication that Russia would be content to work out an accommodation over the table instead of at gunpoint.

Those who believed that Czechoslovakia's immediate troubles were over after the visits didn't reckon with the desperation and insecurity of the Kremlin rulers.

Even though a small breath of freedom has been savagely cut in Czechoslovakia, the United States must continue to try to work wherever possible with Russia to keep the peace of the world.

The threat of nuclear war makes this essential.

President Lyndon B. Johnson's offer to go to Russia after the invasion are ill advised and poorly timed.

This is a time when Russia's hand should not be strengthened voluntarily by the United States.

A presidential visit to Russia now would be playing a propaganda game directly into the hands of the Soviet Union.

The message that all countries under Russian domination, including Czechoslovakia, would get from the visit would be that as far as the United States is concerned all is forgiven.

All isn't forgiven but there is little that the United States can do to help the liberty loving Czechs now except to give them vocal support and avoid fraternizing or knuckling down to the Russians.

A new enterprise is received with acclaim in a town. If it should succeed (and it cannot prove useful unless it does) the people will be ready to rob it within three or four years. The principle is not wrong, but unfair and not for the general good. A big and useful enterprise is entitled to the same consideration and fairness that a farmer receives when he saves a thousand dollars and lends it to a neighbor.

Mr. William A. Gemmel, president of the South Jersey Gas Company, remarked: "Business is losing the battle for public opinion and understanding. If prevailing attitudes and practices continue unchecked, the free enterprise system will be weakened. In time it will give way to other systems which would dissolve our individual freedoms . . . destroy our great standard of living, and rob us of our world leadership. If this happens then the record of America's free enterprise system will be lost to our heirs -- to become the greatest story never told."

We are continuously asked why Kennett can get industries and those already located there are expanding their plant facilities and increasing their employees.

Many folks do not recall but the labor conditions in Kennett are a hell of a lot more favorable than those in Sikeston.

In each time that the unions have demanded an election to be called to see about representing the labor in the Kennett plants, the unions have been decisively defeated.

You might give that a thought and you will probably have your answer.

A CLASSIC SENATE RACE

From the Kansas City Times

From an intellectual point of view, the voters of Missouri face what very well may be a dream campaign for the United States Senate, with the lines clearly drawn on point of view and party.

We would expect to hear both Representative Tom Curtis and Lt. Gov. Tom Eagleton discuss the issues openly and frankly. Whatever the decision on Nov. 5, we are confident that the new junior Senator will represent his state capably.

On the Republican side, Curtis can speak as an experienced member of the U.S. House. Without a serious challenge in the primary - and somewhat restricted by his schedule in Washington - Curtis has received less state-wide attention. This is understandable. We would guess that the situation of the day will be heard more and more.

Eagleton was involved in one of the most hotly contested Democratic primary battles in the state's history. Even so, his attention was centered on the issues in a high - level drive to victory. Certainly he demonstrated his capacity as a thoughtful campaigner concerned with the major problems of the nation and of Missouri.

We have rated Tom Eagleton as a middle - of - the roader, and the Curtis approach has been on the more conservative side. The Curtis record has been written largely in Washington, and as a member of the House he has been hardworking, attentive to duty and has won the respect of his colleagues. Eagleton's experience has been at the state level, but he has been tested thoroughly as Attorney General and Lieutenant Governor. The primary campaign proved that he has done his homework on both the national and international problems that confront the nation.

Accepting the differences of ideology, it seems likely that the victor in November will have the potential of becoming one of the outstanding members of the U. S. Senate. In the meantime, the state will have the opportunity to witness two energetic, articulate campainers in action, and to make its ultimate decision on the basis of what each has to say about many matters. This, we take it, is the way the political process is supposed to work.

RUNAWAY TAXES -- ANY END IN SIGHT?

Most Americans are becoming aware that it isn't only the Government in Washington that is raising taxes. All across the nation, states, counties, cities and school districts are taking a bigger tax bite.

Striking close to home is the approval of the city's tax levy of $39.11 per $1,000 of assessed valuation as compared to $36.24 for this year. Besides the city levy, the others are Atchison county $26.98, board of education USD 409 $40.48, White Clay Creek Watershed 81 cents and the state $1.50.

The city taxpayer this year will pay approximately $108.88 per $1,000 of assessed valuation as compared to $98.42 last year.

Although the cost increases of inflation is pointed to as a major reason for the necessity of increasing taxes and we believe that our local commissions and boards tried to hold the line, this country is undergoing a tax-increase binge the likes of which have never been seen before.

Taxpayers, as a result, are beginning to scream - and revolt against higher taxes has broken out in many areas. This is why school and improvement bond issues are being voted down.

But the fact is, the load on taxpayers will get heavier -- and there is no relief in sight until there is an end to so-called "demands" for government services.

NEW YORK (AP) —The American business office is firmly believed by many jealous wives to be a place where innocent husbands are led astray by conniving secretaries and voluptuous receptionists.

If this were only true, of course, every U.S. farm and store and factory would be deserted. Every man in the nation would want an office job.

However, it's only a wifely delusion, created partly by sensation-seeking novelists, that business offices are oases of orgy inhabited by sultry Delilahs. The truth is that passion in the executive suite tends to be prim rather than primordial.

And as every working girl knows, it is not she who usually initiates any romantic overtures that may occur. The advances are made by the male swivelchair daydreamers.

No office is without its quota of these would-be wolves, who are usually more clawless than lawless. If you glance around your own office the following Romeo types may be familar:

The Junior Executive: He chucks the chins or kisses the fading cheeks of all the old biddies, hoping by flattery and charm to get them to tell him what skeletons are hidden in the closets of the top executives. He feels that this knowledge will sooner or later help him up the success ladder.

The Frankenstein Monster: For 364 days of the year, harmless Harold is as shy and timid as a gazelle. But after the second drink at the annual Christmas party, he begins beating his chest, a wild look comes into his eyes, and he runs from desk top to desk top after any and every girl who comes into view. He winds up alone with his arms around a coat hanger, pleading to it, "Don't go home, baby. Let's make a real night of it."

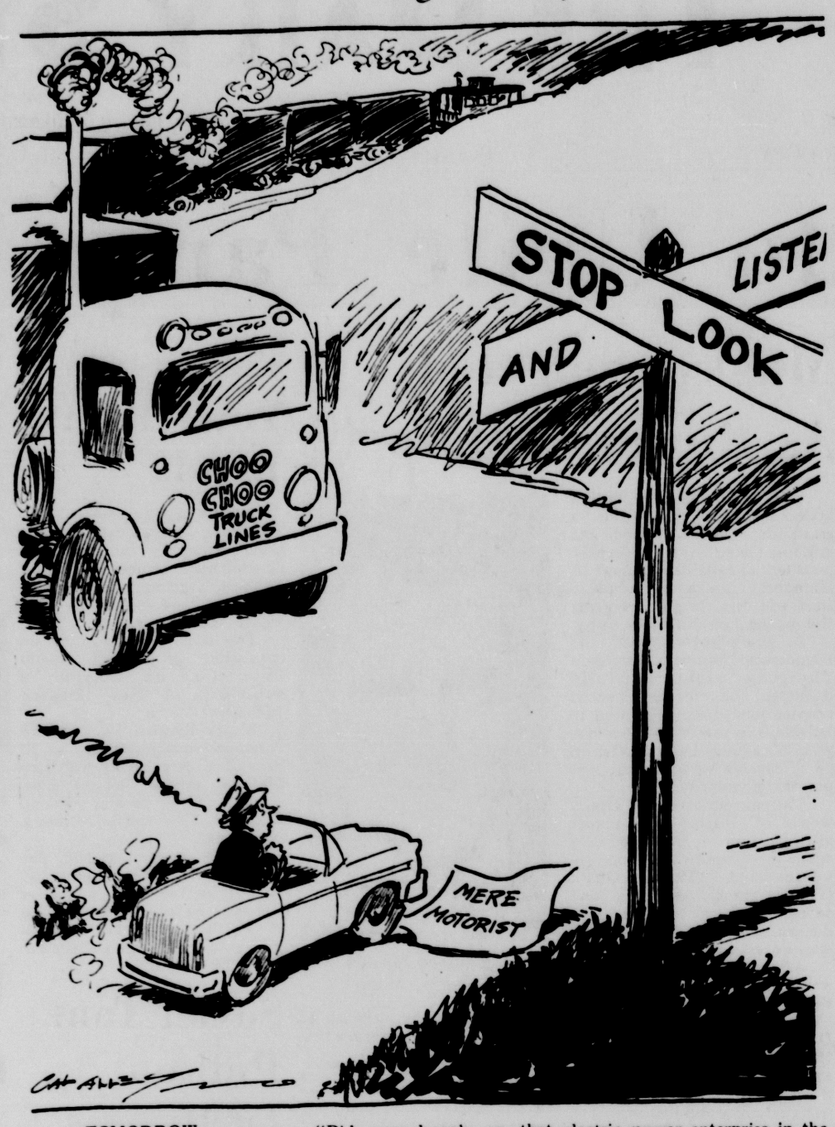

The Cunning Prude: At least once a week this hypocrite strolls through the secretarial pool pulling down a skirt here and there and exclaiming coldly: "It's far too short—this is a business office not a strip-tease show." This tactic wins him a reputation of a killjoy; it also enables him to brush his hands across a lot of lovely knees.

Calculating Charlie: He always brings in a cake and a dozen roses for his secretary and gives her a chaste kiss on her forehead. This convinces him that he has swept her off her feet, and she should be willing to work overtime for nothing.

The senior vice president: He likes to think of himself as the lovable old Mr. Chips of the office. The fatherly attitude—that's his gimmick. Whenever he sees one of the girls looking blue, he consoles her by putting a fatherly arm around her and giving her fatherly pats. It generally takes him five fatherly pats to range from the shoulder to the hemline.

That's a fair sampling of white collar Romeos, isn't it girls? Most office wolves are really so dull they wouldn't know what to do if you gave them "yes" for an answer.

The Landlady of a boarding house was talking to her maid one morning.

"Did you knock on that traveling man's door and wake him up like I told you to do?" she inquired.

"Yes'm," replied the girl, "but he didn't wake up, so I finally had to go in and shake him."

"Good grief, girl," exclaimed the landlady, "Don't you know better than to ever go into a traveling salesman's room?"

"BIG GOVERNMENT AT ITS WORST"

Another instance of the blessings of a free -ress and the penetrating editorial competence of thousands of editors across the land who make up that press may be seen in an item from The California Farmer. The editor briefly summarizes the history of the Tennessee Valley Authority, the federal government's gigantic socialized electric power enterprise in the southeastern part of the United States, with the words, "What started out as a single dam to provide cheap electrical power and flood control for the Tennessee Valley has mushroomed into a socialist's dream . . ."

Today, TVA is the nation's biggest purchaser of coal and is in the process of entering in a major way the atomic energy field. But that is not all. According to the editor of The California Farmer, "Now TVA wants to buy 200,000 acres of land to set up a showcase for the Nation of how an area can be developed for recreation and conservation education programs. Land and homes in the area would be condemned if they refused to be bought out." He concludes, "In our book, this is big government at its worst."

Many thinking editors wonder, and with good reason, how far down the path of big government we can go and still retain freedom of the press.

Washington - Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

DREW PEARSON AND JACK ANDERSON SAY: Democrats will have to heal wounds again; Forgiving and forgetting now in order; McCarthy likely to become President of Columbia University.

CHICAGO--The big question now before the Democratic party is: Can it heal its wounds as effectively as it opens them up? Democrats have always been famous for practicing Democracy. They row and feud and castigate each other, and usually afterward they have been able to forget and forgive--but not always.

Twice in the last half century wounds have been so deep that they festered for some years thereafter. After the 1924 battle between Al Smith, a Catholic, and William Gibbs McAdoo, Woodrow Wilson's son-in-law and a Protestant, the party did not entirely recover from this religious battle until 1960, when it elected its first Catholic President, John F. Kennedy.

Again in 1948 when Hubert Humphrey forced a showdown on civil rights and the South walked out, it took almost 20 years for the wounds to heal. The fact that the south generally supported Hubert in Chicago is proof that is has been willing to forgive and forget, though it took time to do.

But will the thousands of passionate youngsters who mill in the streets and the hotel lobbies for McCarthy and McGovern be able to forgive and forget? Or the other thousands of long-hairs with dirty bare feet with Indian jackets and chains around their necks be able to forgo their demonstrations and their shouts of hatred? Humphrey and the war in vietnam have given them a rallying cry that they will forget easily. They have been able to transfer their chant, "LBJ, LBJ, how many kids have you killed today?" To various new versions of "Hubert go home." And they have loved it.

No, they will not forgive and forget. Those who are of voting age can be chalked up as doing their best to disrupt the Democratic party from now until November.

MIDDLE-CLASS AMERICANS

But what about the housewives, the schoolteachers, the sincere middle-class Americans, the intellectuals who took a passionate dive into politics, many for the first time because they were against the war and became enamored by the charm and courage and the aloof coolness of Eugene McCarthy? They represent a substantial portion of the Democratic party. Will they come back to the Democratic fold? That is the really important question. This could tip the scale between victory or defeat in November.

Most of the Negroes, except for the very young who can't remeber the civil rights courage of Hubert Humphrey--or else don't want to--will support him. Most of white suburbia middle-class America in the south, and part in the north, will vote for George Wallace. This will hurt Nixon about as much as it hurts Humphrey.

But what about the very large group of middle-age, middle-bracket McCarthyites who raised millions of dollars for their idol and worked for him day and night, partly in opposition to the war, partly because they came to idolize McCarthy? In doing so they developed almost a hatred for Humphrey. How will they vote in November? Upon that question may depend who will be the next president of the United States.

UP TO LEADERS

The answer will depend in part on the leaders of these dissidents. Both are former college professors. Sen. George McGovern of Dakota Wesleyan University is a tolerant former neighbor of Hubert Humphrey, himself a former professor at Macalester College McGovern undoubtedly remembers the occasions when Hubert raised money for his campaigns and pushed him to head the food for peace committee.

Professor Eugene McCarthy may not have such a clearcut memory for the days when Professor Humphrey pushed him ahead in politics, how in 1958 when Gene was running his first time for the Senate, Humphrey brought in Sen. William Benton of Connecticut, who was born in Minnesota, and Sen. Paul Douglas of Illinois to campaign for him, or how in 1960 HHH tried to persuade Lyndon Johnson to take McCarthy as Vice President on the first LBJ ticket.

Those were days when the memory of Joe McCarthy of Wisconsin was very much alive and the campaigning of Sen. Benton, the man who had the courage to propose the censoring of Joe McCarthy, was important to prevent any confusion with the new Eugene McCarthy.

COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY

In the end Gene will doubtless remember those days. However, there's been a lot of bitterness generated between the two men of late. Chiefly by McCarthy's followers. They even concocted a song reflecting on Humphrey's mental stability.

McCarthy is almost certain to be invited to be President of Columbia University, where President Grayson Kirk has just retired, a university which very much needs McCarthy leadership and inspiration.

In many respects, the Presidency of a great university is better suited to Gene McCarthy's talents than either the Senate or the White House. He is more of a scholar than a politician, more a philosopher than an executive.

He made a great contribution to the present campaign. He made it come alive. He lifted up several million young people and others who hated war. He had the courage to jump into what looked like a hopeless Presidential race with no money, nothing except an idea and faith. Like Estes Kefauver, the lone Senator from Tennessee, he tramped the snowy streets of New Hampshire when no one was with him except the youth of the nation. And he showed that even without money and old guard political support you could make an impact on the nation.

It was a service that will not soon be forgotten. But will the youngsters who rallied round him and the housewives and the schoolteachers and the others who are against war? Will they move over to Humphrey; Will they remember that Humphrey has been a man of courage too? That remains to be seen. People's memories are short and political passions run deep. Many of them will not move over.

Another column on the personal bitterness inside the Democratic party will follow soon.

COMMUNIST "DAILY WORLD"

On August 28, 1923, Grigori Zinoviev, chief of the Communist International, sent a cablegram from Moscow to Charles E. Ruthenberg, head of the Workers Party, which was the American section of the International. The cablegram read:

"Know of no more important task for American workers than establishment of a militant daily. This should be rallying point for concentration of all forces at the present time. Only after foundation of a daily will Comintern consider we have a real mass party in America. Zinoviev."

Toward this goal, the "Daily Worker" was introduced in Chicago. It made little headway toward the circulation needed to influence Americans toward communism, so William Weinstone, a Party representative, purchased a building at 30 Union Square in New York City to house the paper and the Party printing plant.

The Comintern had invested $35,000 in the Chicago venture, and Weinstone paid $70,000 down on the New York building. With repairs and the printing plant, Moscow sunk well over $300,000 into this propaganda investment.

The Party, which had evolved into the present Communist Party, USA, ceased publication of a daily in the Fifties, and the name "The Worker" was revived for a weekly in 1958. After the Kremlin's current drive against anti-communists was begun, the Worker stepped up publication to twice weekly. And on July 4, 1968, a new Communist daily, the "Daily World," appeared. Zinoviev did not send a cable this time. Stalin long ago had caused him to be shot. HLH

President '72? Reuther Behind Ted Kennedy Boom

Chicago: -- Behind the Ted Kennedy "draft" were some of Walter Reuther's strategically deployed forces. Actually the redheaded auto union chief was booming the junior senator for President -- in 1972.

Unknown to the frezied crowds, unnoticed even by the press and the pros, this was the decade-old Reuther-Kennedy combine in action.

When the Kennedy clan drum beat began booming in the Palmer House last Sunday night, the drive for the third Kennedy had been all pressed up (the propaganda was rolling), but had no place to go. It needed a headquarters -- something frenetic, something fresh, something untouched except by youthful hands.

Within a few hours the boom was fully housed in the Bal Tabarin Suite, on the sixth floor of the Sherman House, which comes with built-in frenetics.

The logistics had been supplied by an anonymous Reuther regional aide, one Paul Korman, staffer for the big UAW Region 4, which did so much for the late Bob Kennedy during the primary heats.

With Walter Reuther ensconced in the Sheraton-Chicago tower suite practically down the street, no regional staffman would move in on tense make-or-break national politics without the leader's permission. Especially since Reuther had been pushing hard for Hubert Humphrey, to the point of calling in union convention delegates and ordering them to jump off the McCarthy wagon immediately.

Reuther, along with George Meany and Hubert Humphrey were three men on a horse. But that did not keep the Detroiter from throwing support to "young Ted." Another day, another campaign. By sheer reflex the auto union leader always looks years ahead. Ted Kennedy had been made to order. What mattered now the cost of a few buttons, balloons, pamphlets, hand-lettered signs, and office space. Some auto union delegates were already quartered at the Sherman House anyway.

Soon other auto union officials, such as Bob Kennedy's young friend, California's Paul Schrade, who were convention delegates, pinned "Draft Kennedy" slogans atop their McCarthy buttons and began booming it up for "Ted" on the floor.

The strategy was simple. If nothing happened, Reuther lost no Humphrey friends. He could blame the Kennedy sentiment on his younger, more impetuous staffmen. If a miracle was conjured, it would come with a UAW label.

After all, Reuther was, except for some California grape-picking delegates, Ted Kennedy's only labor support.

The union establishment over at the Hotel Drake had let it be known to Ted's brother-in-law, Steve Smith, in the Standard Club, and to Mayor Richard Daley, that young Kennedy would have to face to face a floor fight if he moved. And 1956 was recalled as a warning. At that time, in this city, at the convention which Adlai Stevenson opened up, labor had shoved some steel into Estes Kefauver's backbone, had forced him to unpack his bags and not flee from Jack Kennedy. The latter then lost his vice-presidential fight by 26 votes. Ted Kennedy was told he's too young to take such chances.

Meanwhile back at the ranch, Lyndon Johnson began forming the agons into a circle. He surrounded the Kennedy forces. Old friend Jack Valenti moved quietly into Hilton suite 22-A. By phone and back stairs he could get to old friends Marvin Watson and Hubert Humphrey on the 25th floor.

Across town at the Hotel Drake's suite 169, President Johnson put his old trouble shooter, big George Ready, a devoted man, far too honest for politics. There Ready, unobserved by the media, kept in close touch with the nation's labor leaders on the upper floors.

If manpower was needed, it was in heavy supply. There was, for example, longshormen's leader Ted Gleason virtually next door to Mr. Humphrey's rooms at the Hilton.

The dockwalloper, as did scores of other labor chiefs, came with publicity men, researchers, statisticians and political muscle.

Wherever President Johnson wanted them, they went. Whenever the Kennedy boom came up for air, they sat on it, balloons and all.

But Walter Reuther played it cool. From his tower suite he could see 1972 - and another convention. By that time the auto union leader would have his new labor federation swinging. He has been seeking a large headquarters in Washington, D. C., and reportedly has decided to purchase a building in the neighborhood of 18th and L Streets. Though in 1972 he will be 65 years old, some of his adversaries will be in their late seventies.

And even during the 1976 election Reuther would still be younger than some of his colleagues are today. And Ted Kennedy will be but 44.

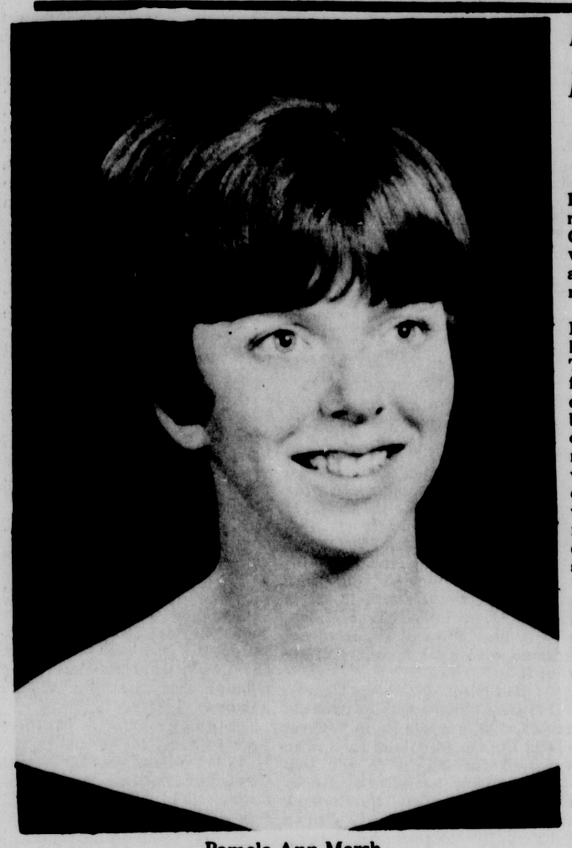

So, for the price of a few balloons and the time of some staffers, Reuther made a policial friend here. He who gambles on time builds with sand, my friend K.C. Wu once told me in Hong Kong.

But to Reuther and his colleagues it was worth a try. And so Ted Kennedy's boom found a home.

The Gospel Visitor

By REEDUS M. BAUGHER

You are invited to look for articles which will appear in this paper, under the above heading. The gospel visitor because, we desire to visit with you a few moments each week, with the gospel. To preach the gospel is a serious business, it carries with it grave responsiblities, to alter it in any manner is disastrous. See Galatians 1:7,8.

Thus, being aware of these things, it will be the aim of this writer to present gospel articles as they are written in the Scriptures, without any change whatsoever. The general trend in our country, and the world, is away from God and religion. The sickening effects of "rising crime, breakdown of homes, rebellion and anarchy, immorality, ect." may have many causes. But one thing for certain the sure remedy for these ills is God and the religion of His Son. In speaking of the religion of Christ I am not refering to another of man's. We can readily see that these many religions have not healed the desease with which we are effected. But rather I speak of the one Christ freely advocates in His word. The apostle Paul, said, "Whatsoever ye do in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus," (Col. 3:17) Thus, all our actions and words must be approved by Christ. How long has it been since yours were? It will make a great difference at the judgement. Jesus said, "My words shall judge you" (John 12:48)

The Eastside Church of Christ for which I preach, in Vanduser will soon be meeting in their new building. Which is located about one mile east of Vanduser, on route Z. We welcome any and all to come and reason with us from God's word. We are convinced that the Bible, God's word, is a book of system. That it was given to man through the Spirit of God. It can be understood, and obeyed and offers eternal life to all. Read Ephesians 3:1-6. Man may be confused but God is not the author of such. 1 Corinthians 14:33. Will you join with us in understandning what the will of God is? I also preach at Blodgett, and if you live in this vicinity they would rejoice to have you with them.

Ex-Ace Spahn Getting His Wish As Manager of a Winning Team

They practically had to drag Warren Spahn screaming and kicking out of the National League when his pitching days ended after the 1965 season.

The still trim 47-year-old Spahn, the winningest left hander in major league history with 363 victories who now manages the Tulsa Oilers, is mum on when he thinks he'll be ready to manage in the majors. He is just as quiet on another subject close to his heart — baseball's Hall of Fame.

There are many who fell Spahn will be voted into Cooperstown in 1971 after the customary five year waiting period.

Spahn, in his second year as Oiler manager in the Eastern Division of the Pacific Coast League, had 13 season in which he won 20 or more games, equaling the great Christy Mathewson's feat and only three behind Cy Young's record 16.

Major league expansion will open more managerial jobs but Spahn wants to look hard before he leaps.

"I'd have to weigh the prospects because those teams are not going to win the first few years," says Spahnie. "I think I'd rather have a front office job with an expansion club than manage one. I would first like to have an offer to consider, but I'm happy where I am."

And where Spahn is happens to be one step away from the majors. Tulsa is the No. 1 farm team of the world champion St. Louis Cardinals.

A. Ray Smith, Oiler owner, believes Spahn will make the Hall of Fame on the first ballot and that he'll manage in the majors.

"He is one of the best," Smith says. "He's smart and he knows the game. He knows how to handle men'"

Spahn took the Oilers last year as the team nose-dived from the 1966 league pennant to the cellar. But this year he had the Oilers in first place in midseason.

"I'm doing what I always wanted to do after ending my playing career," says Spahn. "This year we've got a great bunch of kids."

He thinks three pitchers, Mike Torrez, Chuch Taylor and Clay Kirby, have a bright baseball future.

Torrez came to the Oilers after starting with St. Louis and was optioned out to get more work. "When he goes back," says Spahn, "he will be a starter.

"Taylor is the best pitcher we've had this spring. Kirby has just turned 20 and is a fine prospect."

Spahn has strong opinions on the lack of hitting in the majors this year. While blaming the batters he also credits the pitchers.

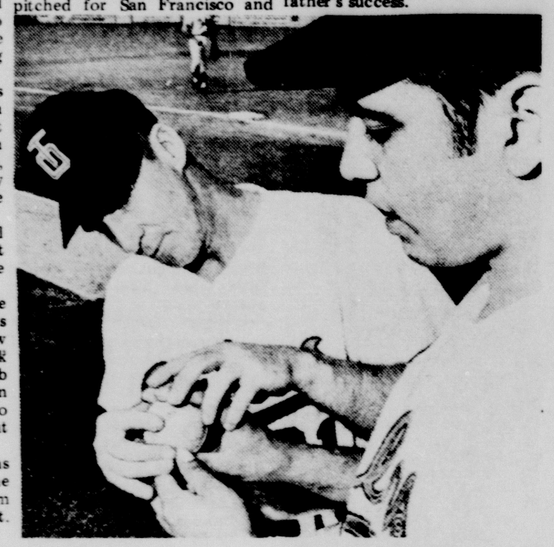

"Early in the year I would have said it was the weather," says Spahn. "But now I'm inclined to say the pitchers have learned their business better than the hitters. Everybody is swinging from their hips, trying to hit the ball out of the park."

Spahn had his great years with the Braves, first in Boston then in Milwaukee. He pitched two nohitters in the twilight of his career which shows 63 shutouts, second only to Eddie Plank's 70.

In 1964 Milwaukee sold him to the Mets. After the Mets put him on waivers in 1965 he pitched for San Francisco and ended the season with a 7-16 record. He still hoped to pitch after the Giants released him.

His comeback as a manager if more for the love of the game than for money. For several years he earned about $80,000 and he now owns a 3,000 acre ranch near Hartshorne in southeastern Oklahoma, his winter home.

Spahn's son, Gregory, is a 20-year-old University of Oklahoma student and plays amateur ball in the aummer. After graduation he would like to follow his father in pro baseball. He has a long way to go if he ever expects to match his father's success.

Comments From Author

NEW YORK (AP)— Bob Gibson, the well known author, politely declined to take a firm stand on such controversial subjects as the National League's Most Valuable Player award or the pitching prize, the Cy Young Award.

"You don't think about such things," he said. "Besides, no one gets both of them, or hardly ever."

But this St. Louis Cardinal giant might. Now breezing along with a won and lost record of 19-6 that includes 11 shutouts, a club record, he seems sure to win the league's pitching honors.

As to Most Valuable Player - "Oh, it could be Curt Flood or Lou Brock or Mike Shannon," said Gibson. All are Cardinals, of course. Flood and Brock are outfielders and Shannon is a third baseman.

Gibson, resplendent in Nehru jacket, blue turtle neck sweater, and a fancy medallion, showed up at a luncheon Thursday to kick off his book, From Ghetto to Glory.

It should be, he said, "helpful to Negro kids in the ghetto providing they can pay for it." The cost is $5.95.

He offered opinions on a variety of subjects:

On the Cardinals' baseball pennant chances noww scandalously in front in the National League-"I think we have a shot at the pennant."

On himself-"The things I've gone through have made me a better person."

On the Cardinals-"We don't have a team with one super-star. We get along like one family."

On the possibility of facing Dennis McLain of the Detroit Tigers in the World Series- "My main concern is to get there."

On his personal problems - "I have a lot of trouble with left-handers."

BOSTON AP- The Boston Celtics announced today the signing of Mal Graham, former New York University backcourt star, for the 1968-69 National Basketball Association season.

In limited action as the Celtics' No. 1 draft choice last season, Graham scored 290 points.

Sports Corner

By Ron Jaynes

The St. Louis football Cardinals announced Wednesday they picked up Wayne Trimble on waivers from the San Francisco 4934s.

Trimble is expected to fill a slot vacated by veteran Jerry Stovall, who the Cardinals place on the injured list. Stovall suffered a thigh bruise in a game with the New York Giants last Sunday.

The Cardinals also announced the release of Clarence Childs, recently obtained in a trade with the Giants, and Bill Wosilius, a reserve linebacker. Rookie running back Don Fitzgerald, from Kent State, was traded to the Philadelphia Eagles.

Starting time is 9 p.m.

Cincinnati, which is in its first year of operation, enters the game with a 13 mark while the Jets are 2-1. The Bengals of Coach Paul Brown, probably pulled the biggest upset of the pre-season inter-league competition when they downed Pittsburgh 19-3.

New York, behind the passing of Joe Namath, who was making his 1968 debut, and the running of Lee White, Matt Snell and Bill Mathis, and a tough defense, whipped Atlanta, 27-12.

Coach Webb Ewbank doesn't plan any changes as he works to get his club finely tuned for regular season play. Ewbank said he would use Namath for the first half and Babe Parilli in the second period.

"Joe looked very sharp (12 of 21 for 140 yards and 2 TD's), especially considering the long layoff," said Ewbank. "We'll work him and Babe each a half so that the both can get their timing down pat."

The Jets defense, which has not allowed a touchdown in the last two games -- Boston scored when it recovered a fumble and Atlanta kicked four field goals -- will be tested by the Bengals' rookie quarterback Dewey Warren. The former Tennessee star threw for 268 yards as he completed 12 of 21 against the Steelers.

Ewbank lauded his defensive unit's play against Atlanta. "We had the sharpest hitting in a long time. The front four put a lot of pressure on the quarterback and our linebackers were hitting hard."

The front four of ends Gerry Philbin and Verlon Biggs and tackles John Elliott and Paul Rochester, bot to the Falcons' quarterbacks four times for losses of 42 and came up with its second safety in two weeks.

Preston Gomez, is not depending on luck to pull him through his first baseball season as manager of the National League San Deigo Padres.

Gomez, a coach for the Los Angeles Dodgers since 1965, was named Thursday to manage the new San Diego franchise. He indicated that youth, speed and the capacity for hard work are the attributes he'll look for in selecting his coaches and players.

"You can't gamble without speed and speed is something we'll need in San Diego Stadium's big ball park," Gomez said.

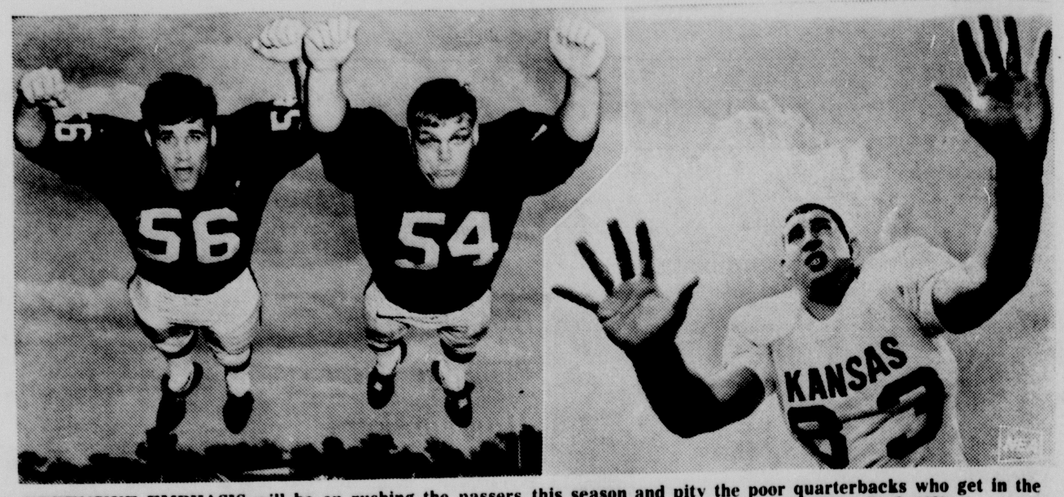

He's confident the National League expansion draft will provide the speed he seeks.

"I think there'll be some good players available in the draft-especially pitchers. But the main thing is to be strong up the middle of the field," Gomez said.

Gomez, who has a one-year contract at an undisclosed salary, also plans to be particular about the coaches he hires.

"The main thing is a pitching coach," he said, "and I want coaches who are willing to work. We have a teaching job to do."

NFL Pulling For Browns' Victory Over Bills

By The Associated Press

The Cleveland Browns encounter the Buffalo Bills tonight, their first American Football League opposition ever, and the National Football League sorely needs a Browns' victory.

The AFL holds a 10-5 edge over the NFL and needs only two more victories to clinch the interleague, preseason series with eight games remaining, six of them this weekend.

There also are two AFL games on tap tonight—Cincinnati vs. the New York Jets at Memphis, Tenn., and Denver against San Diego at San Antonio, Tex.

The Washington Redskins scored 16 points in the second period and held on for a 16-10 victory over the Detroit Lions in an NFL game at Washington Thursday night.

Jerry Allen ran three yards for the first touchdown and Jim Ninowski passed 25 yards to Jerry Smith. Both touchdowns were set up when the Lions were penalized on third down after Washington drives apparently had stalled.

The Redskins got a safety when linebacker Ed Breding blocked a Jerry DePoyster punt in the end zone.

Detroit, who scored on a 59yard pass from Bill Munson to Earl McCullouch and DePoyster's 37-yard field goal, lost a chance to win when Munson's 39-yard scoring pass to McCullouch late in the final quarter was nullified by offensive holding.

Cleveland is expected to make its first appearance against an AFL team a victorious one as the Bills have serious problems at quarterback.

Buffalo's regular quarterback, veteran Jack Kemp, tore ligaments in his right knee in a scrimmage last Monday and will be lost for the season. No. 1 backup man Tom Flores also is on the injured list with a sore passing arm and is ineligible to play.

This means the Bills will go with rookie Dan Darragh and Kay Stephenson, obtained from San Diego Wednesday, at quarterback.

Frank Ryan and Bill Nelsen will be at quarterback for Cleveland, which will have Charley Harraway at halfback in place of the injured Ernie Green.

The Browns go into the game with a 2-1 record, Buffalo at 21-1.

San Diego, 2-2, meets Denver, 1-2, fresh from an upset over the NFL Los Angeles Rams. Denver will have to stop John Hadl, who passed for 300 yards and two touchdowns against the Rams.

With regular quarterback Steve Tensi sidelined with a broken collarbone, John McCormick, attempting a comeback at 31, is expected to start for Denver.

The Jets, who won their last two games after an opening loss, could get some unexpected trouble from a Cincinnati team that was perked up by an upset victory over the NFL Pittsburgh Steelers last weekend.

Cincinnati 1-3, was tough on rushing against Pittsburgh, allowing the Steelers only 29 yards, but the Bengals' main problem against New York will be stopping the passing of Joe Namath. Namath saw his first action last weekend and threw for two touchdowns in a triumph over the NFL Atlanta Falcons.

Saturday's schedule has three interleague games—Baltimore, NFL, at Miami, AFL: Kansas City, AFL, at Los Angeles and Dallas, NFL, at Houston, AFL. New Orleans is at Atlanta and Green Bay takes on Pittsburgh at Milwaukee, Wis., in NFL GAMES Saturday.

Oakland of the AFL plays at NFL San Francisco and Minnesota is at St. Louis in an NFL game Sunday, while Philadelphia, NFL, plays Boston, AFL, at Cambridge, Mass., Monday.

The Minnesota-St. Louis game Sunday night will be televised nationally.

Brock Speeds Up-Takes Four In 5-0 Decision

By The Associated Press

The Pittsburgh Pirates had the right idea but the place for pine tar was on Lou Brock's spikes, not Bob Moose's hand.

Brock stole four bases and the St. Louis Cardinals rapped the Pirates 5-0 Thursday night smacking Moose and his somewhat sticky pitches for four runs and six hits in less than three innings.

The Cards complained that Moose had pine tar on his pitching hand and the umpires ordered him to the dugout in the middle of the third inning to clean his hand. He came back to face four batters, surrender a walk and two singles and leave again—this time for a relief pitcher.

Elsewhere in the National League Thursday, New York shut out Cincinnati 2-0, Atlanta blanked Philadelphia 6-0 and Houston rapped San Francisco 6-1. Chicago and Los Angeles were not scheduled.

In the American League, Chicago shut out New York 1-0, Boston battered Oakland 11-2, Detroit blanked California 2-0, Minnesota shaded Cleveland 3-2 and Washington edged Baltimore 5-4 in 11 innings.

Brock, who scored twice, had a single and four walks. The only time he didn't steal was in the third inning when there were two runners on base in front of him and he had no place to go.

The four thefts gave the Cardinal speedster 41 for the season, just one back of Pittsburgh's Maury Wills, the National League leader.

Brock and Curt Flood walked in the first and scooted home on run-scoring singles by Roger Maris and Tim McCarver. Dal Maxvill and pitcher Ray Washburn singled two more across in the third and Maris' single delivered a wrapup run in the sixth.

Cal Koonce and Ron Taylor combined for a two-hitter against the Reds, giving the Mets their 62nd victory—one more than New York managed all of last season.

Koonce, making his first start after 45 relief appearances, stymied Cincinnati until the seventh when Taylor took over. Bud Harrelson had three hits for the Mets and Cincinnati's Pete Rose went hitless, ending a 19-game batting streak.

Phil Niekro fired a two-hitter at Philadelphia and Atlanta used home runs by Felipe Alou, Hank Aaron and Deron Johnson to beat the Phillies.

Niekro didn't allow a runner past first base and won his 11th game. Alou and Aaron both homered in the first and Johnson connected in the eighth as the Braves pinned a fifth straight loss on the Phillies.

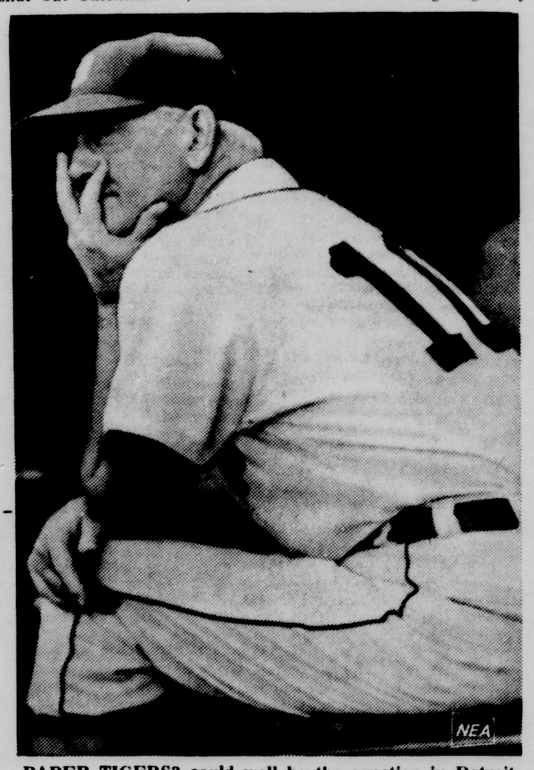

Houston pounded Juan Marichal for six runs in less than two innings and cruised past the Giants on Dave Giusti's four-hitter.

Denis Menke tagged a threerun homer in the first inning and the Astros knocked Marichal out after 1 2-3 innings—the earliest kayo of his career. It was the second straight loss for the Giant right-hander, now 237.

Engineers Tame River At Caruthersville

CARUTHERSVILLE - The Mississippi River, which used to keep many Delta families stranded on levees for weeks, is becoming tamer each year.

The US Engineers work steadily to control its sometimes erratic behavior, planning such programs as dike construction, ship channel maintenance and erosion control on the river's banks.

Noel Dudley, a construction inspector with the Memphis District of the engineers, said "construction is nearing completion on a series of five stone dikes near Caruthersville. They are a set of several being built along the river to maintain the channel and control flooding."

He said, when completed, about the middle of December, each dike will stretch 2,800 feet across. "There will still be enough room left for a ship channel," Dudley siad.

Dudley said cost of the projects near here will cost about $500,000. The projects began in 1966.

He said the dikes, under construction on the west side of the river, will push the water to the opposite side of the river. This will cause the area behind the dikes to fill with sand and dirt and force the river to dig itself a deeper channel.

The basic summer camp provides active-duty training in lieu of two years on-campus study, allowing him to enter the advanced ROTC program at the university.

During the six-week encampment, he received intensive training in leadership, rifle marksmanship, physical conditioning and other military subjects.

Upon completion of the advanced ROTC program and graduation from college, he s eligible to be commissioned as a second lieutenant in the U.S. Army.

Conventions Bear out Odd Political Year

CHICAGO (AP) — What went on at the National Democratic Convention this week fits in with the unpredictable and unusual character that has set down 1968 as the year of the political oddity.

Little has been normal about political '68. Nothing has been predictable except unpredictability—and coincidence. And from the bitter fights over delegate credentials and a Vietnam plank to the naming of a little known Maine senator as its vice presidential candidate, the Democratic convention joined in opposing Republicans in straying from the usual.

When the Republican party nominated Richard M. Nixon as its presidential candidate, some party members said he had a loser's image, that he couldn't win.

When the Democrats nominated Hubert H. Humphrey, again some party members said it was a mistake, that he couldn't win.

They said, too, that Humphrey's foreign policies were inconsistent with the feelings of American voters.

What the nay-sayers neglected to take into account, however, was that in political '68, the will of the voters has been a dubious force so far.

The polls said New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller was the man who could pull in votes most successfully for the Republicans. The polls said Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy was the man most likely to get elected for the Democrats. Yet neither could get elected by his own party.

Within each party, there was bitter dissention. The Republicans had a miniwar over their vice presidential choice. The Democrats fought a bitter battle over a real war in Vietnam.

There were other ironies and oddities to political '68.

Eight years ago, John F. Kennedy's Catholicism became a major issue that dogged him down the campaig trail. If Eugene McCarthy or the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy encountered similar religious prejudice, they did not mention it.

The two principal contenders for the Democratic nomination, Humphrey and McCarthy, both are from Minnesota. The third candidate, Sen. George McGovern, is from South Dakota where Humphrey was born. And while he was in the Senate, Humphrey lived next door to McGovern. Both challengers owed Humphrey a great deal politically.

The two top Republican candidates, Nixon and Rockefeller, are from New York and, in fact, both have apartments in the same big grey stone building on fashionable upper Fifth Avenue.

The two men who finally won the nominations don't live anywhere near each other, but they have worked in the same place. Both have held the office of vice president of the United States.

And both, of course, want to go higher.

Cost of Going to College Still Rising

NEW YORK (AP) — The price of a college education, like the tab for real estate and taxes and a suit of clothes, is going up again this year. Four out of five schools queried in an impartial survey confirm this.

Increases for fall tuition will average from a low of 5 per cent in state colleges to 7 per cent in private men's schools, the survey showed, meaning an average minimum increase in tuition-fees-room-board of $56 to $166.

These figures come from perhaps an unusual source, the Life Insurance Agency Management Association, but they represent a poll of more than 1,000 colleges. Insurance agents like to have such figures in talking up total security plans.

Some hope, however, is offered by another study, this one by the Bureau of Census, whose figures suggest that the investment in education still is one of the best. The young college grad, the bureau figures, will earn $167,000 more than the high school grad before retirement.

The problem for parents who view the expenditure solely as an investment, however, is that they aren't likely to be around to count up the total payoff. Better to consider it a responsibility or a gift.

Here are the results of the insurance agents' study of the costs of tuition, fees and roomboard for colleges throughout the country:

Private men's schools, $1,530 tuition fees, $958 room-board, total $2,488, an increase of $166 or 7 per cent from last year.

Private women's colleges, $1,331 tuition fees, $1,019 roomboard, $2,350 total, an increase of $136 or 6 per cent.

Private coeducational colleges, $1,284 plus $850 for a total of $2,134, an increase of $131 or 7 per cent.

Public colleges, for resident of the state, $332 plus $770, total $1,102, an increase of $56 or 4 per cent. For nonresidents the tuition rises to $769, while other costs remain the same, for a $100 or 7 per cent increase.

Wide variations were found for different parts of the country. In the Northeast the median for men's private colleges will be $2,894 this fall, meaning that one-half the totals will be above and one-half below that figure.

Now this $10,000 or so for four years doesn't cover nearly all the expenses. It is a basic figure, and has nothing to do with transportation, clothing, books, football game tickets, dates and whatever else a student is likely to need money for.

But here's the brighter side. The Bureau of Census released this month the following expected lifetime incomes for young men:

Less than eight years of education, $189,000; elementary school diploma, $247,000; one to three years of high school, $284,000; high school diploma, $341,000; one to three years college, $394,000; college degree, $508,000; and college degree plus a year of postgraduate work, $587,000.

The disparity in incomes between the better educated and the less educated is also growing larger and is likely to continue to do so in the immediate future.

As any good investor knows, there are variables in any situation, many pitfalls that cannot be foreseen. The lifetime incomes, it goes without saying, aren't assured. Junior, after all, could waste everything.

SEC Alters Stance on Stock Tips

NEW YORK (AP) — Recent government moves against the misuse for profit of corporate inside information indicates the government is getting awfully tough to work with or that things are really bad in Wall Street. It could be both.

Inside information, broadly speaking, is private knowledge of corporate affairs that should be public knowledge. Generally it is information which enables a trader to buy or sell in advance of a major change in stock prices.

The classic case involves Texas Gulf Sulphur Co. Knowledge of a big metal ore strike in Ontario, the Securities and Exchange Commission claims, enabled corporate officials and friends to make a stock market killing a few years ago.

But there have been other less publicized charges against insiders and there is little doubt that what reaches the surface is only a part of the picture.

The use of inside information is not an uncommon practice in the securities business. In fact, such information is the goal of securities analysts and the managers of today's big mutual funds, among others.

Now the rules are changing, and the SEC is shouting it out: Corporate information that involves the fortunes of publicly held company should be made available to all shareholders, not to a privileged few.

Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, says the SEC, obtained information through a privileged position with Douglas Aircraft Co. that the firm's earnings were going to be less than had been forecast.

The brokerage house, the SEC said, passed on this information to some of its biggest customers and enabled them to sell before the knowledge became widespread. In addition, it continued to accept orders for the stock from other customers, the SEC said. Merrill Lynch says it is innocent of the charges.

Should these charges be proved by the SEC in a highly publicized case the result could be shattering to the confidence of the nation's 24 million investors. But benefits could accrue also if privilege is eliminated.

Merrill Lynch isn't just another broker. It is everyone's firm and its 1.1 million customers may be found almost everywhere. Its influence is widespread; its reputation shines; its name, in fact, is a household word.

The case is bound to raise doubts about the habits and methods of brokers, for Merrill Lynch has long held a very special position in the investment world. It has a reputation for encouraging and instructing small investors.

This most recent case by the SEC also brings up questions regarding the size, power and influence of instituions such as billion-dollar mutual funds.

In the performance game, which requires that a fund always try to show at any one time better percentage gains than its neighbor, the quest for information, perhaps even inside information, is part of the battle.

It brings up the question also of the close association of corporate executives and large purchasers of the firm's stock. In this day of acquisitions it is necessary to keep high the price of shares, and one way to do this is to court the big funds.

What is it that the corporate executives tell the funds that the funds shouldn't already know through the regular public information channels?

The English poets, Wordsworth, Coleridge and Southey, were called the "lake poets" because they chose to live in the lake district of Cumberland and Westmoreland.

Ambulance Service Rules Out Road Calls

CAPE GIRARDEAU - The Cape County Private Ambulance Service Inc., plans to discontinue only its service "concerning any type of emergency on any road, street or highway," Sept. 10, George F. Rouse, president, said Tuesday.

All other phases will continue on a 24-hour a day basis.

Rouse, in a letter dated Aug. 25, notified the Cape County Court, Jackson and Cape Girardeau city officials and law enforcement agencies and the county sheriff's department of the discontinuance.

Rest assured that this decision has been reached only after much consideration and searching for a way to continue this particular phase of our service," he wrote. "However, the financial cost and the inability to collect the charges for services have forced us to take this action."

He added, "Please be advised that we stand ready at any time to confer on this matter with anyone who may be concerned in order to find a solution to this particular problem."

Rouse, elaborating on the letter Tuesday said in the 4½ months he has been in business he has not been able to collect 85 per cent of the charges arising from ambulance service provided on roads, streets and highways. These were mainly from traffic accidents.

He said he will only reconsider continuing to answer these calls if they can be put on a paying basis. He said constant efforts to collect have been futile.

The service he will continue will be for emergency calls to anywhere off roads, streets or highways. The ambulance firm will also make non-emergency runs.

It's called the Budget-Master plan -- a life insurance plan for which people age 0-80 may qualify. You can choose the amount, and later select any funeral home you wish.

These plans are important because research indicates that people put only an approximate 3% of their earnings into life insurance. Yet this 3% accounts for a very substantial part of all that most men leave for their families.

Rebellion Divides Party

Editor's Note: This is another of a series written by Briney Welborn of Bloomfield from the Democratic National Convention in Chicago.

By BRINEY WELBORN

CHICAGO—There is a specter haunting Chicago, the specter of November.

One need not be a political analyist to see this. One sees it in the countless handmade signs appealing to a 36-year-old senator who has seen more tragedy than most see in three score and 10.

Tuesday, at the Convention, I saw no fewer than 15 Kennedy buttons in a few minutes. Perhaps this does not convert into delegate votes, but it is indicative of a restlessness that cannot be hidden.

Hubert Humphrey may have this convention sewed up, but many delegates are asking, "What will happen in November?"

The statement of Senator Kennedy did not help the atmosphere.

Ted Kennedy is in no position to run for the presidency. He lacks the experience, the age, and the desire to be president in 1968.

This does not mean that there will be no attempt to recover Camelot. Just not this year.

The security tactics are another sign of the situation. In Miami, there was a great deal of enthusiasm for Richard Nixon. This was unquestionably justified. Nixon received at least two thirds of the vote in all of the primaries. He was elected on the first ballot. He was the choice of the Republican party. The enthusiasm was real.

Here, the enthusiasm for Humphrey is not so real. The majority of the delegates are clearly for him, but many of them are worried about his electability.

Assurance of an enthusiastic reception was bought by bringing in many people into the galleries who don't have credentials. This is not necessary. Security is tight, unless you have Mayor Daley's O.K.

Finally, over 40 per cent of this convention, the President's party convention, voted to repudiate the central policy of the President. The last time such a rebellion was attempted was in 1896 over the silver issue. Willian Jennings lost the election.

A lesson was learned. As I heard a Missouri delegate explain it, we have to support the President's policy, because, we did the best we could do, and, if necessary, we must go down with the ship.

That, apparently, is the view of the majority of the convention.

One delegate from Ohio said on the shuttle bus from the convention that he felt that Humphrey would at least elect his congressman.

This seems to be the main interest of an awful lot of the men and women who are supposed to be making history. But, by the same token, it is perhaps the one thing that holds the fragile fabric of a national party.

I was involved in a heated discussion on the press platform about the future of these quadrennial spectacles.

Some advocated biannual conventions. Others advocated a national primary.

I fear that both would wreck the two-party system.

Perhaps the convention system may allow Mayor Daley to make a mockery of democracy but only at a convention could Abraham Lincoln have been elected president of the United States.

Delegates Have Run-ins With Chicago Police

CHICAGO (AP) — Police arrested at least two Democratic delegates in antiwar protests Thursday night and took another into custody on the convention floor in a squabble over credentials.

David C. Hoeh, chairman of the New Hampshire delegation, was handcuffed and taken to a police station after he tried a credit card in an electronic machine used to scan credentials for admission to the convention floor.

Thomas D. Frasier, an Oklahoma delegate confined to a wheel chair, was seized by Chicago police in an antiwar march near the downtown lakefront area.

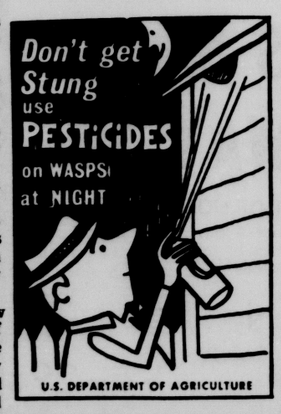

Also appearing in police court early today were a New York delegate and a Washington alternate.

Hoeh, from Hanover, N.H., said convention guards arrested him even after he identified himself. He said glasses were knocked off and the crystal of his watch smashed in a brief scuffle.

The New Hampshire chairman, who was wearing his proper delegate badge, said, "I just wanted to show that the machine would accept a false card, and it did." Hoeh was held up to an hour by police before he was released without charges being filed.

Frasier, a county Democratic chairman from Tulsa, Okla., had joined in an antiwar protest march led by comedian Dick Gregory south of the lakefront hotel row where demonstrators clashed with police in another night of tear gas and bloodshed. Police blocked the march and arrested leades.

LBJ Edges Close to Endorsement

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson, while declaring a hands-off attitude toward the work of the Democratic National Convention, has edged close to an indirect endorsement of Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

Meeting with newsmen at an informal 60th birthday party here Tuesday night, Johnson said he hoped the views of the Democratic and Republican presidential candidates "will not be too divergent" so the world won't have to wait until the November election to assess the nation's future course.

With Vietnam and foreign policy obviously uppermost in his mind, Johnson's statement was widely interpreted as meaning he would prefer a Humphrey nomination—though he carefully had some kind words, too, for the vice president's principal rivals, Sens. Eugene J. McCarthy and George McGovern.

Republican nominee Richard M. Nixon is on record with Vietnam views much closer to those of Johnson and Humphrey than either McCarthy or McGovern.

The President passed up a chance to fly to Chicago for a birthday salute at the convention. But he said he might go later—after candidates have been nominated.

The presidential nominating is set for Wednesday, the vice presidential selecting for Thursday.

Then the First Family flew to the LBJ Ranch, 65 miles west, where they were joined by their other daughter, Lynda Robb, for a country-style birthday dinner topped off by homemade peach ice cream and angel food cake.

Both Johnson sons-in-law are on active duty in Vietnam and the President, after being asked to state one birthday wish, said:

"I guess I'd like for all of our boys to be able to lay down their arms and come home and live in dignity without fear."

As his 13-month-old grandson romped at his feet, Johnson remarked that it would have been wonderful had the child's father, Airman Patrick J. Nugent, been at leave Vietnam behind and join the rest of the family.

Talking about the Democratic convention, Johnson said he'd been watching it on television and found it exciting and generally pleasing. Democrats don't always think alike, he said, but he predicted party harmony once the job of the nominating parley is completed.

As for his own convention role, he said he had none—that he had no emissaries in Chicago, was receiving no private reports from the convention city and did not intend to get involved.

Johnson bowed in the direction of McCarthy and McGovern by saying they shared his domestic policy views and that, on their voting record, were with him in foreign policy, too. But he acknowledged that the two senators, in their campaign utterances, had been challenging his foreign policy.

Johnson said that never in his career had he ever tried to drum up sentiment for any particular individual to succeed him in any office he's ever held.

CARUTHERSVILLE - Plans were made Friday by Concord Convelescent Centers, Inc. of Wichita, to develop a nursing center in Caruthersville. The facility will accomodate more than 100 residents. The project is sponsored by Christian Investors, Inc., a non-profit corporation.

The new facility will cost approximately $500,000.00 and construction will start within the next 60 to 90 days. The center should be completed in five to six months after work is started. It will be located on a spacious site adjoining the Central Church of Christ of Caruthersville on Highway U, just across from the Municipal Airport.

Agnew Believes Demos Will Patch Split

OCEAN CITY, Md. (AP) — Whatever divisions remain after Democrats finish patching up their convention quarrels will be of little help to Republicans in the November election, says Spiro T. Agnew, the GOP vice presidential nominee.

The Maryland governor, who kept up with the convention while resting at this Atlantic Ocean resort, told newsmen Thursday he believed Democrats would be able to heal the split brought about by the dispute over Vietnam.

"If the Republican ticket is going to win, it's going to be on basis of what we do, not what they do," he said.

Agnew was critical of both police and peace demonstrators involved in disorders at Chicago during the Democratic convention.

He said many of the demonstrators "are not fine young people, but are professional troublemakers" who set out to disrupt the convention and to deprive others of their civil rights.

But Agnew said this was no excuse for "what I would have to term to be, to some extent, an overreaction of the Chicago police."

Vogel Heads Republicans Committee

POPLAR BLUFF—The 10th District Republican committees meeting Tuesday night selected new chairmen.

Raymond H. Vogel, Cape Girardeau lawyer, who two weeks ago was elected Cape County Republican chairman, was elected as his party's 10th District chairman. He succeeds Gary Rust, Cape Girardeau businessman, in both the county and district offices.

Other Republican district officers elected were vice chairman, Mrs. Rolla Fraley of Oregon County; secretary, Mrs. Edna Eads of St. Francois County and treasurer, Frank Brown of Dunklin County.

State committeemen elected were Rust, Joe Scott of Poplar Bluff and Ivan Forshee of Leadwood. State committeewomen are Mrs. Hannah Amyx of Willow Springs, Mrs. Geneva Graham of Bollinger country, and Mrs. Dorothy Burford of Ripley county.

Rust and Mrs. Amyx are new to the state committee, succeeding Frank Carter of Mississippi County and Mrs. Gladys Stiver of Cape Girardeau, respectively, Mrs. Stiver did not seek re-election to the committee.

There were contests in the Republican meeting for the chairman's post and for the state committee slots.

Vogel was opposed by Newt Brill of Howell county.

Other nominees for committeemen were Carter and Brill while Mrs. Lowell Stephens of Advance was a nominee for committeewoman.

A representative of Rep. Thomas B. Curtis, Republican candidate for U.S. senator, appeared before the GOP committee and announced the candidate's Southeast Missouri intinerary for the coming campaign. It will include an appearance in Cape Girardeau Sept. 11.

Also appearing before the committee were Vernon H. Landgraf of Cape Girardeau, Republican candidate for Congress, and his campaign manager, Byron Mercer.

Rust, as outgoing chairman, presided. He had served one term as district chairman and two as county chairman.

Multiple Breaks In Bearden's Legs

J. D. Bearden, 48, Cairo night club operator, is in fair condition following surgery on his legs at the Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

Bearden had both legs placed in casts after surgery and is reported to have at least 12 breaks in one leg and three on the other.

He was the victim of an attempted slaying in Charleston, Monday night when a bomb was placed under the hood of his car. It exploded when he turned the ignition switch to start the auto.

Mississippi County Sheriff Pedro Simmons said an investigation had produced no evidence or leads on who might have placed the bomb in Bearden's car.

The bomb apparently was placed in Bearden's car while he visited friends in Charleston.

James New Dunklin Party Chairman

MALDEN—S. H. (Smokey) James of Clarkton was elected as the new chairman of the Dunklin county Democratic committee at its first meeting since the primary election last Thursday night.

James has served on the committee from Freeborn Township 14 years. He succeeds Lonnie Kinchen of Kennett, who resigned as committeeman from Clay township because he and his family moved to Kennett recently.

Other officers elected were Mrs. Charles Cable of Senath, vice chairman; Margaret Dirks Baker of Kennett, treasurer.

Man Accused Of Attacking State Trooper

POPLAR BLUFF—Charges of felonious assault and resisting arrest were filed against Billy Charles Stacy, 38, who allegedly threatened and beat a state trooper with an automatic shotgun Sunday night on highway 67 North.

Stacy was stopped by Trooper Ronald Jones for a traffic violation and allegedly pulled a shotgun from under the seat of his truck and struck Jones with it. The gun was not loaded.

Jones subdued Stacy and held him until other officers arrived. The trooper was off duty and had his wife and two small children with him in his personal car.

Stacy, a farmer who lives on Rt. five, was booked Sunday night for careless and imprudent driving while drinking.

YOGI CRITICIZED

S.A. Dange, leader of the pro-Moscow Communists in Parliament, said of the Beatles' mentor that what the Yogi is promising is "cheap instant liberation, like instant coffee."

Cruise Ship Tourists Discover Mexican Coast

By DICK KLEINER
NEA Hollywood Correspondent

LOS ANGELES—(N E A)—The West Coast is suffering from an a c u t e shortage of islands. If that little problem can be solved, the business of cruising out of Los Angeles is in for a major boom.

Even without the islands, cruises are growing. A few years ago, the only passenger boats operating out of the Port of Los Angeles were the Matson liners to Hawaii and the ferry to Catalina. But by next winter there are expected to be eight cruise ships using Los Angeles as a home port.

Compared to the East Coast, this is only a drop in the ocean. Fifty to 100 ships cruise out of New York and Miami, but Los Angeles is just starting.

The problem has always been—no place to go. Hawaii is a bit too far, the South Seas are out of the question and the Aleutians offer little in the way of recreational facilities.

What has happened lately is the discovery that the ports along Mexico's West Coast—which cruise operators are trying to rename glamorously La Costa De Oro, or the Gold Coast — has an a p p e a l. Acapulco is the prime port-target, but ships are now putting in at Puerto Vallarta, Mazatlan, Manzanillo and La Paz, at the southern tip of Baja California.

A MARIACHI BAND greets happy passengers at dockside at the Port of Los Angeles as they come ashore from the cruise ship Princess Italia.

The Mexican National Tourist Council and the Mexican government—as well as various Mexican state governments—are eager to encourage this trend. Mexico has co-operated with the Princess Cruise group in building piers at various ports that didn't have facilities for docking a big liner.

Max Linder, P r i n c e s s' executive vice-president, says that his company is working now with Mexico to open up other ports—notably a sleepy, picturesque v i l l a g e called Zihuatanejo, which he thinks will be the Puerto Vallarta of the future.

At the moment, Princess is operating only the beautiful, one-year-old Italia. But a new Italian-built liner will be added next December, another new vessel is set for 1970 and they expect to wind up with a fleet of five by 1973.

Next winter, the Holland-American line will cruise the Statendam out of Los Angeles to Mexico. The Jason will also ply the same waters. And four o t h e r ships have announced tentative plans to join the g r o w i n g cruise armada.

Princess' o f f i c i a l s see a great future for Los Angeles-based cruises. They are now investigating the possibility of operating to Central America —Costa Rica, primarily, but perhaps also Guatemala, El Salvador and Nicaragua. Already they have scheduled the Italia for several trips through the P a n a m a Canal to the Caribbean, where there are plenty of islands. And by a year from now they hope to begin regular cruise service to Alaskan waters.

Eventually, they even hope to have cruises to the South Seas. There is, they believe, enough money in West Coast pockets to afford such luxury.

The clients for these trips are not o n l y southern Californians. They are finding plenty of eager buyers in the Southwest (Arizona and New Mexico) and along the northern California and Pacific Northwest coasts. They are advertising as far east as Chicago.

The only thing missing is a destination for a short cruise. Acapulco is 3½ days away, so it is possible to make it in a week with a quick turnaround. But there is nothing comparable to Bermuda or Nassau, out of New York.

For cruise addicts, though, the destination is almost secondary to the trip itself. At the m o m e n t, the Italia is handling this part of the voyage beautifully. She is a slim, trim vessel, but almost too modern.

The air conditioning is so good some passengers catch cold. And the deck is treated with an antiskid substance which works so well that they can't play shuffleboard.

Wall Reveals Historic Past

By RODNEY PINDER
Associated Press Writer

JERUSALEM (AP) — Exactly a year to the day after Israeli paratroopers seized the holy Wailing Wall and the rest of Jerusalem from Jordan, a team of enthusiastic Hebrew University archaeologists made an exciting find beneath the wall's time-worn face.

Far below the rubble of 2,000 years of battles and conquest around the wall they discovered a pavement built by King Herod to lead to the platform of his fabulous and revered second Jewish temple.

Herod's temple rose 200 years before Christ on the sacred Mount Moriah in the old Holy City.

Herod's temple was razed by the triumphant Roman Titus in 70 A.D. to mark his victory over the rebellious Jews. The best preserved part to the present day was the Western Wall — the Wailing Wall.

Soon after the 1967 Israeli-Arab war Professor Benjamin Mazar, 61, one of Israel's most noted archaeologists and historians, started to dig around the foot of the Southern Temple Wall which runs at right angles to the Wailing Wall.

Twenty foreign volunteers worked in his team of 120, and one of them — a girl from London — helped shift the last layers of soil which covered the pavement.

Sylvia Nisbeth, who owns a ceramic shop in Brompton Road in London's chic Knightsbridge district, was working late June 6 with Johana Mizrahi, an Israeli workman.

Mazar described the discovery:

"The pavement is of large slabs, beautifully carved in gray Jerusalem stone, measuring almost two yards by one yard and weighing about three-fourths of a ton each.

"Over it lie great boulders and charred wood — debris from the destruction wrought by Titus.

"There are a considerable number of coins dating from the first century after Christ, some minted during the Jewish rebellion against Rome. There are also pieces of pottery and lamps — all unbelievably well preserved."

The pavement was part of a broad plaza leading to the temple platform. It was from a double gate on this side of the wall that worshippers entered the temple compound.

Inside the compound now are two mosques: the Dome of the Rock — a magnificent mosque built around a rock from which the prophet Mohammed is said to have ascended to Heaven — and the Aksa Mosque, considered to have been a basilica built in honor of St. Mary by Justinian in 536 A.D., then claimed and converted by Moslems.

The Southern Wall now exposed is 90 feet high, including additions throughout the centuries. The dig went down 30 feet from ground level and through 13 layers of occupation.

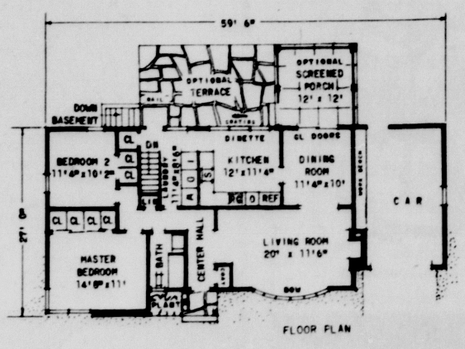

The archaeologists now plan to extend their work farther along the Southern Wall and alongside the Wailing Wall. They believe much more remains to be found.

Swaziland, the last relic of Britain's once vast African colonial empire, gains its independence Sept. 6. The small, land-locked country seems assured of a right-wing one-party government for at least the immediate future. The 400,000 inhabitants are virtually all members of the Swazi tribe, with a white minority numbering about 9,000 persons.

HINTS FOR TEENAGERS

...From your Sewing Editor

THE BEFORE AND AFTER OF A SECONDHAND SUITCASE

With the gypsy in your soul, you and your sleek red, shining, white-piped, vinyl covered suitcase are going places . . .

Motoring down to the country for a weekend, tote along a flower printed suitcase. Checking into a city hotel, let the bellhop carry your trim piece of striped luggage. Bouncing around another continent, go lightly with an off-beat plaid bag. Luggage is a fashion accessory. How well does your luggage live up to the rest of your travel wardrobe?

Smart Slipcovering with Vinyl

If you have an unmatchable assortment of begged, borrowed and hand-me-down suitcases, do what Cinderella's "Fairy Godmother" did to the pumpkin. Change them into a smart set of coordinated pieces. It is simply a matter of slipcovering an old suitcase with a colorful piece of vinyl fabric. In addition to the vinyl and a sewing machine, you will need piping for trim, metal slipcover and jacket zippers and "Heavy Duty" sewing thread. Make one of the covers with a pocket on the side to hold an umbrella. The possibility of dressing a suitcase in a removable cover lets you change your luggage wardrobe to match your outfit and the season. Instructions are free. Just send your request for "Vinyl Suitcase Cover" leaflet to the sewing editor of this newspaper along with a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Sew as You Go

Before you commence your journey, here are a few sewing tips to send you away looking as fresh as your suitcase and to keep you from fraying around the edges in transit. Give your travel wardrobe a careful once-over with needle and thread. Look for loose buttons, missing snaps, pulled out belt loops, hanging hems and open seams. Take along a sewing kit for emergency repairs. This should contain needles, straight and safety pins, scissors, thread in basic colors, iron-on seam binding and even an extra skirt zipper. It is more fun to be a jet setter than a stowaway.

Priest Likes Life Away From Parish

NEW YORK (AP) — Three years ago, Father Joseph Pintauro was celebrating Mass in his Brooklyn parish.

Two years ago, after a brief fling as a caterer's assistant, he was writing television commercials for a Fifth Avenue advertising agency.

This year, the 37-year-old priest is the author of rapidly selling book, "To Believe in God," and has left his advertising job to devote full time to writing.

"The priest needs more than an existence as a sacred cow," said the slightly built Father Pintauro, who has substituted a smartly tailored suit and wide, patterned tie or comfortable dungarees and moccasins for his clerical collar.

Father Pintauro's leave of absence from his parish and liturgical duties was granted on Aug. 16, 1966, the day bishops were given the right to make decisions on priestly vocations.

He talks animatedly about the changing role of the Church. Often his conversation turns to his new experiences in the secular world—new friends, his garden, guitar playing and Manhattan's East Side.

"It's like leaving one country and going to another," said the native New Yorker, speaking about leaving his parish. "I feel like I'm in Sydney, Australia."

Easy-going and quick-witted, Father Pintauro hardly appears the angry young man of the Church, and he has little patience with people who ask why he is a "failure" as a priest. He sees himself as setting a precedent, but stresses that everything he has done was with the approval of his Roman Catholic superiors.

"The priesthood is getting its greatest challenge in history," said Father Pintauro, who praises the late Pope John XXIII and Vatican II for prompting "the mingling of the secular and spiritual worlds."

"It's unfair to a priest to be burdened with a reputation of angelic perfection, which is an absurd denial of humanity with all its drives," he said.

Too many people in the Church, he said, are so concerned with experiencing the love of God, that they are missing the "fundamental experience of the love of man that will teach us what love really is. There is a priesthood of all men. Each man has his own magic, which is his own sacrament."

"That's what my book is about," the long-haired priest explained. "It's my own expression of human love."

Father Pintauro said he doesn't expect to return to parish life, nor does he visit his Brooklyn parish.

"I can't go back; it would blow their minds," said the priest, who feels most comfortable attending Mass in Greenwich Village.

Blonde Can't Collect For Wrong Rinse

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Milly was living proof that blonde's have more fun. A real beauty, her primary desire in life was to remain a blonde and to continue to have all that fun. Consequently, when she had her hair rinsed in a beauty parlor one day, she became absolutely horrified when her hair turned jet black. It seemed, for some unknown and revolting reason, the rinse had produced a reverse reaction.

Gasping as she looked at a mirror on a wall, Milly no longer saw herself as the fairest one of all and sued the owner of the beauty parlor for damages.

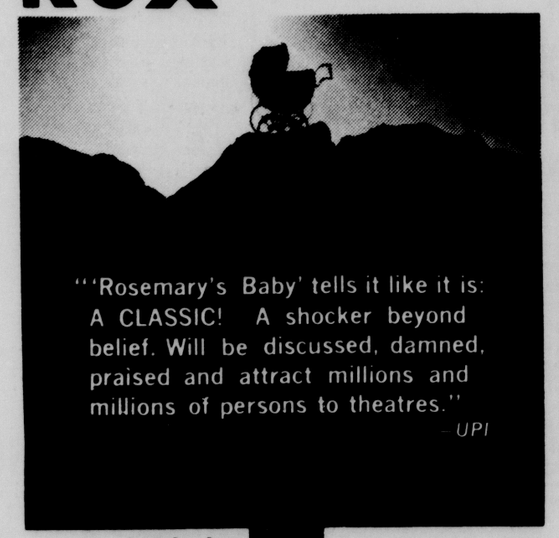

"For the two weeks it took to have my hair color restored," she complained in court, "I was one blonde gentlemen didn't prefer. It was the most miserable and humilating two weeks I ever spent."

"The situation was unfortunate," conceded the owner of the beauty parlor, "but Milly can't collect any damages since she didn't suffer any. When we got done with her, she was as light-headed as she ever was."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit Milly to collect for her "dark" period?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that while the results of the rinse were not quite what Milly had expected, there was no evidence that her hair had in any way been damaged; that since her hair had not been damaged, she had not been damaged. Therefore, she is not entitled to be paid.

Ann Landers

Guy Looks Like Gal With His Long Hair and Beads

Dear Ann Landers: This girl Marge is the best thing that ever happened to me. Last year I wanted to quit high school in my senior year and stay on at the job I worked Christmas vacation. The pay was good and I hated to give up the steady money. Marge made me see that I had to go back to school and now I am glad I did. She's really a great girl, Ann.

Here's the problem. This evening she told me we were through. It seems that during lunch hour she saw me riding around with a girl. So help me, Ann, I wasn't riding around with a girl. It was a guy. He's one of those flower kids who likes to wear his hair kind of long, and with the beads and all that, I can see how she made the mistake.

I offered to bring the guy over and introduce her but she said not to put myself out. Please tell me what to do. I can't lose Marge. -- LOVE HER

Dear Love: Bring the flower kid over and introduce him to Marge-- beads and all. That will settle it. I can't understand why she doubted your story. Nowadays when I see long hair and beads, I just assume it's a boy.

Dear Ann Landers: I should be washing my dishes but here I am writing to you because what I have to say won't wait.

That woman who wrote to complain about her husband's sex drive (she called him a dead battery) got me mad. I wonder if it has occurred to her that maybe she is the one who is to blame. Does she nag him to pick up his things, get his feet off the furniture, get his junk out of the den? Does she complain about how hard she works all day, how difficult the kids are to manage ALONE, how prices are going up and what a hard time she has trying to stretch the paycheck? I know the type, Ann. I see them every week at bridge club.

If these women would stop complaining and give their hubbies a few compliments in front of the kids once in a while, offer to shampoo the guy's hair and be sweet and loving they might discover that the "dead battery" wasn't dead at all, it just needed re-charging. ---HAZEL NUTS.

Dear Hazel: You're not nuts, dearie.. You're a smart girl. Thanks for sharing the wisdom.

Dear Ann Landers: Several weeks ago my mother's college friend came to visit for a weekend and she brought along her 16-year-old daughter. (I am a boy 17.) We got quite friendly but didn't do anything we are ashamed of, if you know what I mean. We kissed several times and that was about it.

Yesterday my mother got a letter saying Linda Sue has mononucleosis. I have heard this is a highly contagious disease. How come I didn't get it? -MR. QUESTION MARK.

Dear Mr.: Just lucky, I guess.

Confidential To No Baby But Treated Like One: Sorry, but a 13-year-old girl who must be told to wash her neck, clean out the bathtub and sew a rip in her blouse sounds pretty babyish to me. The best way to get your mother to treat you like an adult is to behave like one.

How will you know when the real thing comes along? Ask Ann Landers. Send for her booklet "Love Or Sex And How To Tell The Difference." Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Couple Gives up Keeping House In County Jail

PALMYRA, Mo. (AP)—Two year's residence in the sheriff's quarters at Marion County jail is ending this week for Sheriff Wes Bross and his petite wife Thawana.

The sheriff's 4-foot-9, 80-pound wife has had a busy schedule. She's taken and relayed messages for her husband, typed records, helped with statements taken from prisoners, and tended the normal domestic tasks of a household.

Bross, sheriff since 1960, resigned the position this week and he and his wife are moving to Florida where he will take a sales position. R. J. Rothweiler has been appointed acting sheriff to serve until a successor is elected in November and qualifies for office in January.

When Thawana and Bross were married two years ago she moved into the old Marion County jail, a brick structure built in 1858. Still on the bricks at the front corner of the building are marks said to have been made by bayonets of Civil War soldiers guarding prisoners in the jail during the war.

During a normal day while Thawana and her husband have lived in the quarters three different people prepared meals in her kitchen. A woman employe prepared meals for the prisoners, a jailer cooked for himself, and Thawana prepared meals for heself and her husband.

The Prayer from The Upper Room

Peter seeing him saith to Jesus, Lord, and what shall this man do? Jesus saith unto him.. What is that to thee? follow thou me. (John 21:21-22).

PRAYER: Dear God, forgive us for neglecting our talents. Help us to believe that the little we have when consecrated wholly to Thee, Thou wilt accept and use to the enrichment of life and the salvation of souls. In Christ's name we pray. Amen.

He pointed to a satchel containing the ransom money.

Tracton said he drove on a dirt road, parked his car and walked about three blocks carrying the satchel. A car drove up. He thought it belonged to the kidnaper, but it contained FBI agents.

The agents drove away, leaving him alone. Seconds later, the suspect's car pulled up and stopped. Tracton said the boy was out of sight.

The kidnaper "insisted on me giving him the money," Tracton said. "I wouldn't do it until I knew the kid was alive." The boy appeared.

By pre-arranged code with the kidnaper, Tracton asked the youngster through the window of the car the name of his dog.

"Misty," came the reply.

"What was Susan's brother's name?"

Tracton said the ransom money "weighed a ton. It was the heaviest damn thing. Believe me, I was very happy to give him the money."

But the kidnaper didn't get the money.

By agreement, Tracton dropped the satchel and walked away. The kidnaper was supposed to release the child, and the boy was to run to Tracton.

Tracton was to turn and leave with the boy, allowing the abductor to claim the money and leave too.

But nobody got out of the car immediately, and the FBI car returned. The suspect sped away.

Tracton said he heard four shots. He ran back to pick up the satchel, walked to his own car and drove to the nearest police station.

Slugs sailed around the youngster, riddling the suspect's car—but the boy wasn't hit.

As one agent rammed the suspect's car with his pursuit car, the spinning vehicles hit a car driven by Homer Hart, 20, of Los Angeles, a passing motorist.

When Hart regained control of his auto, he said "I saw officers dragging this guy out of one of the other cars and he was saying, 'Why don't you kill me?'"

The FBI said the suspect tried to use his small captive as a shield.

As agents took the boy away from the suspect, a fourth auto careened into the pileup.

A man posing as an electrician abducted the red-haired Stalford child, who was clad only in a bathing suit, after tying up the attractive blonde mother, Joanne. It was the day off for all four maids in the $90,000 home.

proposal for an unconditional bombing halt appeared to Muskie to be "not so great it should be permanently divisive."

But Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., did not agree. McCarthy, Humphrey's chief rival for the top nomination, declined to endorse his fellow Minnesotan.

He said he will devote his time in the fall campaign to electing Vietnam war critics to the Senate so that body will have a larger voice in foreign affairs.

McCarthy avoided the closing convention session but Sen. George S. McGovern of South Dakota, another Humphrey opponent, attended as a sign of unity.

Muskie won the second place nomination overwhelmingly but not without some shortlived efforts to stage a revolt. Insurgents offered the name of Julian Bond, 28-year-old Negro legislator from Georgia, but he withdrew. He explained that he wasn't old enough to meet the constitutional requirement that a candidate be at least 35 years old.

Muskie took notice in his acceptance speech of the street violence which has plagued delegates at their hotels.

He said the awareness of the shortcomings in national life had fired young Americans to various forms of protest.

"There are, however, disquieting aspects to this force," he said. "It can be expressed in unrestrained, irrational and sometimes explosive ways." He suggested that some protests were "the product of exploitation by militants whose motives are suspect."

Humphrey Thursday denounced "storm trooper tactics" in the street battles and "rowdyism" he said had broken out in the hall. He said it was about time to call a halt to violent protests.

"Self righteous minorities don't have a monopoly on the truth," he said. "Shouting is not a substitute for reason."

13 Acres for Housing Units Purchased

DEXTER - Thirteen acres of ground has been purchased by the Dexter Housing Authority for the construction of 100 low rent housing mits, which will cost approximately $1,476,000., it was announced by Harry Jennings, executive director.

The property was purchased from Ira Holmes on Rainey and Locust Streets, or west of Carney's Market.

Seventy of the units will be designed for elderly living with the remaining 30 units for low-income families. There will also be an office and maintenance building. The community building, according to Jennings, can be used by the public, but will need a "sponsor" to help with a portion of the operational expenses. In surrounding communities, Jennings said, various clubs, city councils of chambers of commerce, sponsor the buildings.

Surveys have been made, Jennings said, and the tentative layout of the design has been made. The architect designing the units for Dexter, Stanley Brown of Dallas, also designed the new housing complex at Bloomfield.

When the plans for the units are complete, they will be returned to Dexter for approval, Jennings said, by the local Housing board, composed of Howard Chrisman, who is chairman, Dr. F. C. Northington, vice chairman; and members Howard Hill, Bill Edwards, and Marsh Watkins.

The units will be of brick construction and it is expected to take 12 months or 270 working days to complete the project.

Police Oust Protesters From Hotel

CHICAGO (AP) — Police stormed through the 15th floor of the Conrad Hilton Hotel early today, clubbing and chasing supporters and aides of Sen. Eugene McCarthy after a barrage of smoked fish and empty beer cans clanged down on Michigan Avenue.

Illinois National Guardsmen were stationed on the avenue.

The police swept some 50 youths from the floor down to the lobby. Police said there were no arrests. They said none of the youths was registered in the hotel. McCarthy's people claimed otherwise.

Anthony Podesta, 24, McCarthy's convention advance man, said he and about 20 McCarthy people were in suites 1506 and 1508 when the police "barged in."

"They claimed the room was listed as vacant on the hotel's lists and we had to leave," Podesta said. "This simply was not true."

John Warren, 24, the Arkansas coordinator for the McCarthy campaign, was struck on the head by a nightstick. Dr. William Davidson of Boston, McCarthy headquarters medical chief, said he treated three persons who had been clubbed.

One of those chased down to the lobby was Mary Beth McCarthy, 19, the senator's niece. In the lobby, some 30 of the youths sat on the floor in the elevator area, singing: "We Shall Overcome."

Many of the youths were allowed to return to the 15th floor after McCarthy interceded with officials.

"I'm shocked beyond belief," McCarthy said as he viewed the melee scene on the 15th floor.

"If this was a case of smoked fish and beer cars that provoked this incident, then political conventions are through," he added.

Police said they used telescopes to determine the windows from which the debris was falling onto the Illinois National Guardsmen patrolling Michigan Avenue in front of the Hilton, the headquarters hotel for the Democratic National Convention which ended Thursday night.

Muskie Selected As Running Mate

CHICAGO (AP) — With a little-known senator from a small state as his handpicked running mate, Democratic presidential candidate Hubert H. Humphrey starts a campaign that will first require plugging the gaping holes of party unity.

At Humphrey's request, the Democratic National Convention Thursday night dutifully delivered the vice presidential nomination to Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, a former Maine governor who has acquired the reputation of a capable senator, but not national popularity.

The convention closed after a week of discord, sometimes vitrioloc, on a night marked again in downtown Chicago by police and National Guard troops firing tear gas and swinging clubs to break up demonstrations by anti-Vietnam war protesters.

After going through the motions of selecting Muskie, delegates cheered and waved banners to the tune of "Happy Days Are Here Again" as Humphrey took the podium to accept the presidential nomination and plead for national unity and justice.

Signalling his promotion from President Johnson's team to his now sovereign position as his party's nominee, the vice president told the delegates that their areas of agreement are much greater than those of division.

On the sorest issue of all, he said:

"Let those who believe our cause in Vietnam has been right —and those who believe it has been wrong—agree here and now: Neither vindication nor repudiation will bring peace or be worthy of our country...

"If there is one lesson we should have learned, it is that the policies of tomorrow need not be limited by the policies of yesterday.

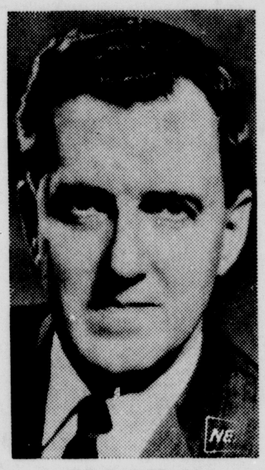

"If I am president, I shall apply that lesson to the search for peace in Vietnam as to all other areas of national politics..."

He told the convention that the "trouble in America ... comes not from lack of faith but from a killing of hope." He said new aspirations have been awakened but have been accompanied by impatience for solutions of the problems of race, poverty, crime, hunger and despair. But he added:

"Violence breeds counterviolence. Disorder destroys. Only order can build. Riot makes for ruin, reason makes for solution." He said any president must assume responsibility to "guarantee to every American the right to personal security."

With the pattern of his campaign thus sketched, Humphrey begins overhauling the party organization with the election today of a national party chairman to succeed John M. Bailey of Connecticut, who has served in the spot since 1960.

Gov. John N. Dempsey of Connecticut said the word had come down that Lawrence F. O'Brien, former postmaster general and a long-time political adviser to the assassinated Kennedy brothers, had been tapped for the post. O'Brien was Humphrey's convention manager.

Edmund Muskie

Others thought that Sen. Fred Harris of Oklahoma, co-chairman of Humphrey's pre-convention campaign was in the running and there was some talk that Delton Houtchens, Missouri state chairman, might be in line for the post.

Second only to the demonstration for Humphrey was the convention's tribute to Robert F. Kennedy, who might have wrested the nomination from Humphrey if he had not been assassinated on the night that he won the June 4 California primary.

Delegates responded with a cheering, singing tribute to the showing of a 20-minute film depicting Kennedy's career and life.

Some of those who wanted to draft Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts, the surviving brother, went home hardly mollified by Humphrey's choice of Muskie. Kennedy himself had stopped what at one point looked like a threat to Humphrey by saying he could not accept either nomination.

There was some grumbling among Southerners that Muskie was too much of a liberal to suit their conservative taste. And the doubt whether Humphrey can beat Nixon in November hovered like a cloud over some state delegations.

The 6-foot-5 Muskie, a 54-year-old Roman Catholic who has served in the Senate since 1959, epitomized party disagreement over how to end the Vietnam war. He supported a Humphrey-endorsed platform plank that called for a halt in the bombing of North Vietnam only when Hanoi shows a willingness to reciprocate militarily.

But Muskie conceded that he and Humphrey "have a different evaluation of the risks involved in stopping the bombing." For his own part, the vice presidential nominee said he would "actively pursue the prospects of a bombing halt" while consulting with Paris peace negotiators and military leaders.

The convention's deep split when it rejected a dovish

The bonds will be retired in 15 years from revenue received from the company.

Soviet Tanks Pull out Of Prague

PRAGUE (AP) — Scores of Soviet tanks pulled out of Prague today as Communist leaders assembled for a party congress debate on Moscow's demands for sharp curtailment of Cechoslovak liberalization.

The liberal leaders who signed an accord in Moscow already have cautioned against resistance. The local party leaders have to decide whether to reject the accord or find ways to live with it in hope they can convince Moscow that most of the 350,000 Soviet bloc occupation troops can leave the country soon.

The National Assembly already had rejected the accord, which says Soviet, Polish, East German, Hungarian and Bulgarian forces will remain until the situation "normalizes." But in Communist countries, it is what the party does that counts.

The Soviet tank withdrawal to camps outside the city apparently was part of the effort of the occupying forces and the Czechoslovak government to make the situation appear as nearly normal as possible.

The main points in the city were still occupied by Soviet forces, especially the newspaper offices, the radio and television studios and Ceteka, the national news agency. Russian trucks with machine gunners still patrolled the streets.

Employes of the streetcars and buses served notice on city authorities they would not operate after 8 p.m. unless they had guarantees for the safety of their passengers and themselves.

Life in Prague was hardly changed. There were queues at food stores and any place where motorcyclists distrubuted copies of underground newspapers.

Prazke Noviny, a mimeographed newspaper purportedly issued by the Prague city administration, said Soviet officials called on the deputy mayor and demanded that "illegal" newspapers and radio transmitters cease their activities and posters and painted slogans calling for resistance against the occupation be removed. The deputy mayor called on the Russians to withdraw their tanks from several points in the city so that work on the Prague subway project could continue, the newspaper said.

Antioccupation posters and painted slogans were still evident in most sections of Prague but they appeared to be gradually getting fewer.

While pledging to cooperate with the government in ceasing anti-Soviet polemics, the editorial staffs of several newspapers have come out strictly against reimposition of censorship, one of Moscow's demands.

Meanwhile, the old and the new central committees of the Czechoslovak Communist party were reported to be in contact to discuss the future set-up of the party. The Russians have called on party chief Alexander Dubcek to void the election of the new liberal Central Committee formed at a secret party congress in Prague last week.

There were various rumors on the circumstances of Dubcek's arrest by the Russians. One said President Ludvik Svoboda threatened to shoot himself unless Dubcek was permitted to join in at the Moscow conference table. There was no way to verify such rumors.

Kidnaped Child Rescued

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — FBI agents rescued the 4-year-old son of a banker from a kidnaper today after an auto chase that ended in a ramming and a gun battle — with the boy used as a shield.

Officers said they arrested the kidnaper, wounded. The boy suffered a leg injury. A ransom of $250,000 in $20 bills apparently never was turned over.

FBI agent Emmett D. Doherty suffered what was described as minor bullet wound and the kidnaper was shot in the right arm.

"Why don't you kill me," agents quoted Robert L. Dacy as saying as they pulled him from a car in south central Los Angeles after the fight.

Dacy, 39, of nearby Lakewood, was taken to Morningside Hospital for treatment.

So was Stanley Stalford Jr. The little boy with curly red hair was still wearing the blue swim suit he had on when abducted Wednesday from the family's expensive home in this plush community.

Doctors took seven stitches in the boy's left knee and treated a scratch on his head. He suffered both injuries in the auto crash that involved the car of at least one additional motorist passing by.

The boy's father, chairman of the board of the $100-million Fidelity Bank of Beverly Hills, and his mother, Joanne, waited in an anteroom while the doctors worked.

Then Stalford, 49, clutched the boy to his chest and took him to the family's luxury car.

"It is impossible to say how pleased my wife and I are," he said. "Needless to say we are very pleased."

Mrs. Stalford could only mutter, "Wonderful. Just wonderful!"

She said the boy couldn't recount his frightening experience "because he is under sedation and he is dazed."

The youngster looked stunned as his father hoisted him over his right shoulder.

The family got into the car and drove home.

The rescue followed anguished hours of negotiating between an intermediary of the parents and the kidnaper, who agents said left a note demanding $250,000 in the same closet where he dumped Mrs. Stalford after taping her hands, feet and mouth before fleeing with the boy in one of the family's luxury cars.

The intermediary was a friend of the family, restaurant owner Red Tracton, who said he talked to the kidnaper by telephone "15 times from 7 p.m. on" Thursday night.

"He called me at the restaurant first," said Tracton, a stocky man with red hair. "We set up places to meet. I kept the appointments, but he never showed up."

Tracton said the kidnaper finally set a meeting place on a "lonely, deserted road" in the Los Angeles suburb of El Segundo near Los Angeles International Airport.

"I broke every traffic regulation I could think of" getting there, Tracton said, fearing he had lost contact.

An officer stopped him and started writing a ticket.

"Get away from me," he told the policeman. "Call the FBI and tell them I'm meeting the kidnaper. If you don't believe

Car, Cycles Involved in Mishaps

A one car accident in Perry county, and a two-motorcycle accident in Cape Girardeau, accounted for two highway accidents.

Mark Peckham, 22, St. Louis was injured Thursday at 6:10 p.m. on highway 61, two miles north of Brewer in Perry county.

He was driving a 1964 Volkswagon, when it skidded off the road, struck a fence and overturned, the state patrol reported.

He was taken to Perry County Memorial hospital, and treated for cuts on his forehead, and a possible concussion.

Two motorcyclist were traveling west on route E, one mile west of Oak Ridge in Cape Girardeau county, Thursday at 6:35 p.m., when Ronald Dallas, 18, Oak Ridge, lost control of his 1968 Kawasaki and fell off the vehicle, the patrol said.

His companion, Terry Berkbigler, 18, Friedheim, riding a 1967 Yamaha traveling behind ran over Dallas, bruising the cyclist. Dallas was taken to Southeast Missouri hospital in Cape Girardeau.

Police Oust Protesters From Hotel

CHICAGO (AP) — Police stormed through the 15th floor of the Conrad Hilton Hotel early today, clubbing and chasing supporters and aides of Sen. Eugene McCarthy after a barrage of smoked fish and empty beer cans clanged down on Michigan Avenue.

Illinois National Guardsmen were stationed on the avenue.

The police swept some 50 youths from the floor down to the lobby. Police said there were no arrests. They said none of the youths was registered in the hotel. McCarthy's people claimed otherwise.

Anthony Podesta, 24, McCarthy's convention advance man, said he and about 20 McCarthy people were in suites 1506 and 1508 when the police "barged in."

"They claimed the room was listed as vacant on the hotel's lists and we had to leave," Podesta said. "This simply was not true."

John Warren, 24, the Arkansas coordinator for the McCarthy campaign, was struck on the head by a nightstick. Dr. William Davidson of Boston, McCarthy headquarters medical chief, said he treated three persons who had been clubbed.

One of those chased down to the lobby was Mary Beth McCarthy, 19, the senator's niece. In the lobby, some 30 of the youths sat on the floor in the elevator area, singing: "We Shall Overcome."

Many of the youths were allowed to return to the 15th floor after McCarthy interceded with officials.

"I'm shocked beyond belief," McCarthy said as he viewed the melee scene on the 15th floor.

"If this was a case of smoked fish and beer cans that provoked this incident, then political conventions are through," he added.

Police said they used telescopes to determine the windows from which the debris was falling onto the Illinois National Guardsmen patrolling Michigan Avenue in front of the Hilton, the headquarters hotel for the Democratic National Convention which ended Thursday night.

Muskie Selected As Running Mate

CHICAGO (AP) — With a little-known senator from a small state as his handpicked running mate, Democratic presidential candidate Hubert H. Humphrey starts a campaign that will first require plugging the gaping holes of party unity.

At Humphrey's request, the Democratic National Convention Thursday night dutifully delivered the vice presidential nomination to Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, a former Maine governor who has acquired the reputation of a capable senator, but not national popularity.

The convention closed after a week of discord, sometimes vitrioloc, on a night marked again in downtown Chicago by police and National Guard troops firing tear gas and swinging clubs to break up demonstrations by anti-Vietnam war protesters.

After going through the motions of selecting Muskie, delegates cheered and waved banners to the tune of "Happy Days Are Here Again" as Humphrey took the podium to accept the presidential nomination and plead for national unity and justice.

Signalling his promotion from President Johnson's team to his now sovereign position as his party's nominee, the vice president told the delegates that their areas of agreement are much greater than those of division.

On the sorest issue of all, he said:

"Let those who believe our cause in Vietnam has been right —and those who believe it has been wrong—agree here and now: Neither vindication nor repudiation will bring peace or be worthy of our country...

"If there is one lesson we should have learned, it is that the policies of tomorrow need not be limited by the policies of yesterday.

"If I am president, I shall apply that lesson to the search for peace in Vietnam as to all other areas of national politics..."

He told the convention that the "trouble in America ... comes not from lack of faith but from a killing of hope." He said new aspirations have been awakened but have been accompanied by impatience for solutions of the problems of race, poverty, crime, hunger and despair. But he added:

"Violence breeds counterviolence. Disorder destroys. Only order can build. Riot makes for ruin, reason makes for solution." He said any president must assume responsibility to "guarantee to every American the right to personal security."

With the pattern of his campaign thus sketched, Humphrey begins overhauling the party organization with the election today of a national party chairman to succeed John M. Bailey of Connecticut, who has served in the spot since 1960.

Gov. John N. Dempsey of Connecticut said the word had come down that Lawrence F. O'Brien, former postmaster general and a long-time political adviser to the assassinated Kennedy brothers, had been

Edmund Muskie

tapped for the post. O'Brien was Humphrey's convention manager.

Others thought that Sen. Fred Harris of Oklahoma, co-chairman of Humphrey's pre-convention campaign was in the running and there was some talk that Delton Houtchens, Missouri state chairman, might be in line for the post.

Second only to the demonstration for Humphrey was the convention's tribute to Robert F. Kennedy, who might have wrested the nomination from Humphrey if he had not been assassinated on the night that he won the June 4 California primary.

Delegates responded with a cheering, singing tribute to the showing of a 20-minute film depicting Kennedy's career and life.

Some of those who wanted to draft Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts, the surviving brother, went home hardly mollified by Humphrey's choice of Muskie. Kennedy himself had stopped what at one point looked like a threat to Humphrey by saying he could not accept either nomination.

There was some grumbling among Southerners that Muskie was too much of a liberal to suit their conservative taste. And the doubt whether Humphrey can beat Nixon in November hovered like a cloud over some state delegations.

The 6-foot-5 Muskie, a 54-year-old Roman Catholic who has served in the Senate since 1959, epitomized party disagreement over how to end the Vietnam war. He supported a Humphrey-endorsed platform plank that called for a halt in the bombing of North Vietnam only when Hanoi shows a willingness to reciprocate militarily.

But Muskie conceded that he and Humphrey "have a different evaluation of the risks involved in stopping the bombing." For his own part, the vice presidential nominee said he would "actively pursue the prospects of a bombing halt" while consulting with Paris peace negotiators and military leaders.

The convention's deep split when it rejected a dovish

Parma Votes Plant Bonds

PARMA--A $450,000 municipal industrial revenue bond issue for an industrial development project on behalf on New England Industries Inc. of Connecticut was approved by voters Thursday, 294-3.

The bond issue was for an expansion project of Inland Shoe Co. of Clayton, a subsidiary of New England Industries.

Mayor Randall Ramsey said construction should start in 30 days. The new facility will have 100,000 square feet of floor space. The present Inland facility will be converted into a warehouse.

The plant employs 100. The company expects to employ 400 to 500 within two years after the new building is completed.

The bonds will be retired in 15 years from revenue received from the company.

Soviet Tanks Pull out Of Prague

PRAGUE (AP) — Scores of Soviet tanks pulled out of Prague today as Communist leaders assembled for a party congress debate on Moscow's demands for sharp curtailment of Cechoslovak liberalization.

The liberal leaders who signed an accord in Moscow already have cautioned against resistance. The local party leaders have to decide whether to reject the accord or find ways to live with it in hope they can convince Moscow that most of the 350,000 Soviet bloc occupation troops can leave the country soon.

The National Assembly already had rejected the accord, which says Soviet, Polish, East German, Hungarian and Bulgarian forces will remain until the situation "normalizes." But in Communist countries, it is what the party does that counts.

The Soviet tank withdrawal to camps outside the city apparently was part of the effort of the occupying forces and the Czechoslovak government to make the situation appear as nearly normal as possible.

The main points in the city were still occupied by Soviet forces, especially the newspaper offices, the radio and television studios and Ceteka, the national news agency. Russian trucks with machine gunners still patroiled the streets.

Employes of the streetcars and buses served notice on city authorities they would not operate after 8 p.m. unless they had guarantees for the safety of their passengers and themselves.

Life in Prague was hardly changed. There were queues at food stores and any place where motorcyclists distrubuted copies of underground newspapers.

Prazke Noviny, a mimeographed newspaper purportedly issued by the Prague city administration, said Soviet officials called on the deputy mayor and demanded that "illegal" newspapers and radio transmitters cease their activities and posters and painted slogans calling for resistance against the occupation be removed. The deputy mayor called on the Russians to withdraw their tanks from several points in the city so that work on the Prague subway project could continue, the newspaper said.

Antioccupation posters and painted slogans were still evident in most sections of Prague but they appeared to be gradually getting fewer.

While pledging to cooperate with the government in ceasing anti-Soviet polemics, the editorial staffs of several newspapers have come out strictly against reimposition of censorship, one of Moscow's demands.

Meanwhile, the old and the new central committees of the Czechoslovak Communist party were reported to be in contact to discuss the future set-up of the party. The Russians have called on party chief Alexander Dubcek to void the election of the new liberal Central Committee formed at a secret party congress in Prague last week.

There were various rumors on the circumstances of Dubcek's arrest by the Russians. One said President Ludvik Svoboda threatened to shoot himself unless Dubcek was permitted to join in at the Moscow conference table. There was no way to verify such rumors.

Kidnaped Child Rescued

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — FBI agents rescued the 4-year-old son of a banker from a kidnaper today after an auto chase that ended in a ramming and a gun battle — with the boy used as a shield.

Officers said they arrested the kidnaper, wounded. The boy suffered a leg injury. A ransom of $250,000 in $20 bills apparently never was turned over.

FBI agent Emmett D. Doherty suffered what was described as minor bullet wound and the kidnaper was shot in the right arm.

"Why don't you kill me," agents quoted Robert L. Dacy as saying as they pulled him from a car in south central Los Angeles after the fight.

Dacy, 39, of nearby Lakewood, was taken to Morningside Hospital for treatment.

So was Stanley Stalford Jr. The little boy with curly red hair was still wearing the blue swim suit he had on when abducted Wednesday from the family's expensive home in this plush community.

Doctors took seven stitches in the boy's left knee and treated a scratch on his head. He suffered both injuries in the auto crash that involved the car of at least one additional motorist passing by.

The boy's father, chairman of the board of the $100-million Fidelity Bank of Beverly Hills, and his mother, Joanne, waited in an anteroom while the doctors worked.

Then Stalford, 49, clutched the boy to his chest and took him to the family's luxury car.

"It is impossible to say how pleased my wife and I are," he said. "Needless to say we are very pleased."

Mrs. Stalford could only mutter, "Wonderful. Just wonderful!"

She said the boy couldn't recount his frightening experience "because he is under sedation and he is dazed."

The youngster looked stunned as his father hoisted him over his right shoulder.

The family got into the car and drove home.

The rescue followed anguished hours of negotiating between an intermediary of the parents and the kidnaper, who agents said left a note demanding $250,000 in the same closet where he dumped Mrs. Stalford after taping her hands, feet and mouth before fleeing with the boy in one of the family's luxury cars.

The intermediary was a friend of the family, restaurant owner Red Tracton, who said he talked to the kidnaper by telephone "15 times from 7 p.m. on" Thursday night.

"He called me at the restaurant first," said Tracton, a stocky man with red hair. "We set up places to meet. I kept the appointments, but he never showed up."

Tracton said the kidnaper finally set a meeting place on a "lonely, deserted road" in the Los Angeles suburb of El Segundo near Los Angeles International Airport.

"I broke every traffic regulation I could think of" getting there, Tracton said, fearing he had lost contact.

An officer stopped him and started writing a ticket.

"Get away from me," he told the policeman. "Call the FBI and tell them I'm meeting the kidnaper. If you don't believe

Car, Cycles Involved in Mishaps

A one car accident in Perry county, and a two-motorcycle accident in Cape Girardeau, accounted for two highway accidents.

Mark Peckham, 22, St. Louis was injured Thursday at 6:10 p.m. on highway 61, two miles north of Brewer in Perry county.

He was driving a 1964 Volkswagon, when it skidded off the road, struck a fence and overturned, the state patrol reported.

He was taken to Perry County Memorial hospital, and treated for cuts on his forehead, and a possible concussion.

Two motorcyclist were traveling west on route E, one mile west of Oak Ridge in Cape Girardeau county, Thursday at 6:35 p.m., when Ronald Dallas, 18, Oak Ridge, lost control of his 1968 Kawasaki and fell off the vehicle, the patrol said.

His companion, Terry Berkbigler, 18, Friedheim, riding a 1967 Yamaha traveling behind ran over Dallas, bruising the cyclist. Dallas was taken to Southeast Missouri hospital in Cape Girardeau.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

The shock of the Kremlin bloc countries' invasion of Czechoslovakia isn't what it was 20 years ago.

It does reveal that the essential nature of Communism as an unyielding, unreasonable, bloody, dishonest, dictatorial, rigid and inflexible force is essentially unchanged.

It was a cat and a mouse game that the Russians played on Czechoslovakia, culminating with the unexpected and brutal invasion of the unhappy country.

It is obvious that Russian Communism permits no slight deviation from the party line and that even the smallest freedoms will not be tolerated.

Russia cannot be trusted by friend or foe alike. No one was more surprised by the invasion than the leaders of Czechoslovakia, who had just gone throught the window dressing routine of receiving leaders of Soviet bloc countries in a series of state visits.

The negotiations were merely a deceptive implication that Russia would be content to work out an accommodation over the table instead of at gunpoint.

Those who believed that Czechoslovakia's immediate troubles were over after the visits didn't reckon with the desperation and insecurity of the Kremlin rulers.

Even though a small breath of freedom has been savagely cut in Czechoslovakia, the United States must continue to try to work wherever possible with Russia to keep the peace of the world.

The threat of nuclear war makes this essential.

President Lyndon B. Johnson's offer to go to Russia after the invasion are ill advised and poorly timed.

This is a time when Russia's hand should not be strengthened voluntarily by the United States.

A presidential visit to Russia now would be playing a propaganda game directly into the hands of the Soviet Union.

The message that all countries under Russian domination, including Czechoslovakia, would get from the visit would be that as far as the United States is concerned all is forgiven.

All isn't forgiven but there is little that the United States can do to help the liberty loving Czechs now except to give them vocal support and avoid fraternizing or knuckling down to the Russians.

A new enterprise is received with acclaim in a town. If it should succeed (and it cannot prove useful unless it does) the people will be ready to rob it within three or four years. The principle is not wrong, but unfair and not for the general good. A big and useful enterprise is entitled to the same consideration and fairness that a farmer receives when he saves a thousand dollars and lends it to a neighbor.

Mr. William A. Gemmel, president of the South Jersey Gas Company, remarked: "Business is losing the battle for public opinion and understanding. If prevailing attitudes and practices continue unchecked, the free enterprise system will be weakened. In time it will give way to other systems which would dissolve our individual freedoms . destroy our great standard of living, and rob us of our world leadership. If this happens then the record of America's free enterprise system will be lost to our heirs -- to become the greatest story never told."

We are continuously asked why Kennett can get industries and those already located there are expanding their plant facilities and increasing their employees.

Many folks do not recall but the labor conditions in Kennett are a hell of a lot more favorable than those in Sikeston.

In each time that the unions have demanded an election to be called to see about representing the labor in the Kennett plants, the unions have been decisively defeated.

You might give that a thought and you will probably have your answer.

A CLASSIC SENATE RACE

From the Kansas City Times

From an intellectual point of view, the voters of Missouri face what very well may be a dream campaign for the United States Senate, with the lines clearly drawn on point of view and party.

We would expect to hear both Representative Tom Curtis and Lt. Gov. Tom Eagleton discuss the issues openly and frankly. Whatever the decision on Nov. 5, we are confident that the new junior Senator will represent his state capably.

On the Republican side, Curtis can speak as an experienced member of the U.S. House. Without a serious challenge in the primary - and somewhat restricted by his schedule in Washington - Curtis has received less state-wide attention. This is understandable. We would guess that the situation of the day will be heard more and more.

Eagleton was involved in one of the most hotly contested Democratic primary battles in the state's history. Even so, his attention was centered on the issues in a high - level drive to victory. Certainly he demonstrated his capacity as a thoughtful campaigner concerned with the major problems of the nation and of Missouri.

We have rated Tom Eagleton as a middle - of - the roader, and the Curtis approach has been on the more conservative side. The Curtis record has been written largely in Washington, and as a member of the House he has been hardworking, attentive to duty and has won the respect of his colleagues. Eagleton's experience has been at the state level, but he has been tested thoroughly as Attorney General and Lieutenant Governor. The primary campaign proved that he has done his homework on both the national and international problems that confront the nation.

Accepting the differences of ideology, it seems likely that the victor in November will have the potential of becoming one of the outstanding members of the U. S. Senate. In the meantime, the state will have the opportunity to witness two energetic, articulate campainers in action, and to make its ultimate decision on the basis of what each has to say about many matters. This, we take it, is the way the political process is supposed to work.

RUNAWAY TAXES -- ANY END IN SIGHT?

Most Americans are becoming aware that it isn't only the Government in Washington that is raising taxes. All across the nation, states, counties, cities and school districts are taking a bigger tax bite.

Striking close to home is the approval of the city's tax levy of $39.11 per $1,000 of assessed valuation as compared to $36.24 for this year. Besides the city levy, the others are Atchison county $26.98, board of education USD 409 $40.48, White Clay Creek Watershed 81 cents and the state $1.50.

The city taxpayer this year will pay approximately $108.88 per $1,000 of assessed valuation as compared to $98.42 last year.

Although the cost increases of inflation is pointed to as a major reason for the necessity of increasing taxes and we believe that our local commissions and boards tried to hold the line, this country is undergoing a tax-increase binge the likes of which have never been seen before.

Taxpayers, as a result, are beginning to scream - and revolt against higher taxes has broken out in many areas. This is why school and improvement bond issues are being voted down.

But the fact is, the load on taxpayers will get heavier -- and there is no relief in sight until there is an end to so-called "demands" for government services.

NEW YORK (AP) —The American business office is firmly believed by many jealous wives to be a place where innocent husbands are led astray by conniving secretaries and voluptuous receptionists.

If this were only true, of course, every U.S. farm and store and factory would be deserted. Every man in the nation would want an office job.

However, it's only a wifely delusion, created partly by sensation-seeking novelists, that business offices are oases of orgy inhabited by sultry Delilahs. The truth is that passion in the executive suite tends to be prim rather than primordial.

And as every working girl knows, it is not she who usually initiates any romantic overtures that may occur. The advances are made by the male swivelchair daydreamers.

No office is without its quota of these would-be wolves, who are usually more clawless than lawless. If you glance around your own office the following Romeo types may be familar:

The Junior Executive: He chucks the chins or kisses the fading cheeks of all the old biddies, hoping by flattery and charm to get them to tell him what skeletons are hidden in the closets of the top executives. He feels that this knowledge will sooner or later help him up the success ladder.

The Frankenstein Monster: For 364 days of the year, harmless Harold is as shy and timid as a gazelle. But after the second drink at the annual Christmas party, he begins beating his chest, a wild look comes into his eyes, and he runs from desk top to desk top after any and every girl who comes into view. He winds up alone with his arms around a coat hanger, pleading to it, "Don't go home, baby. Let's make a real night of it."

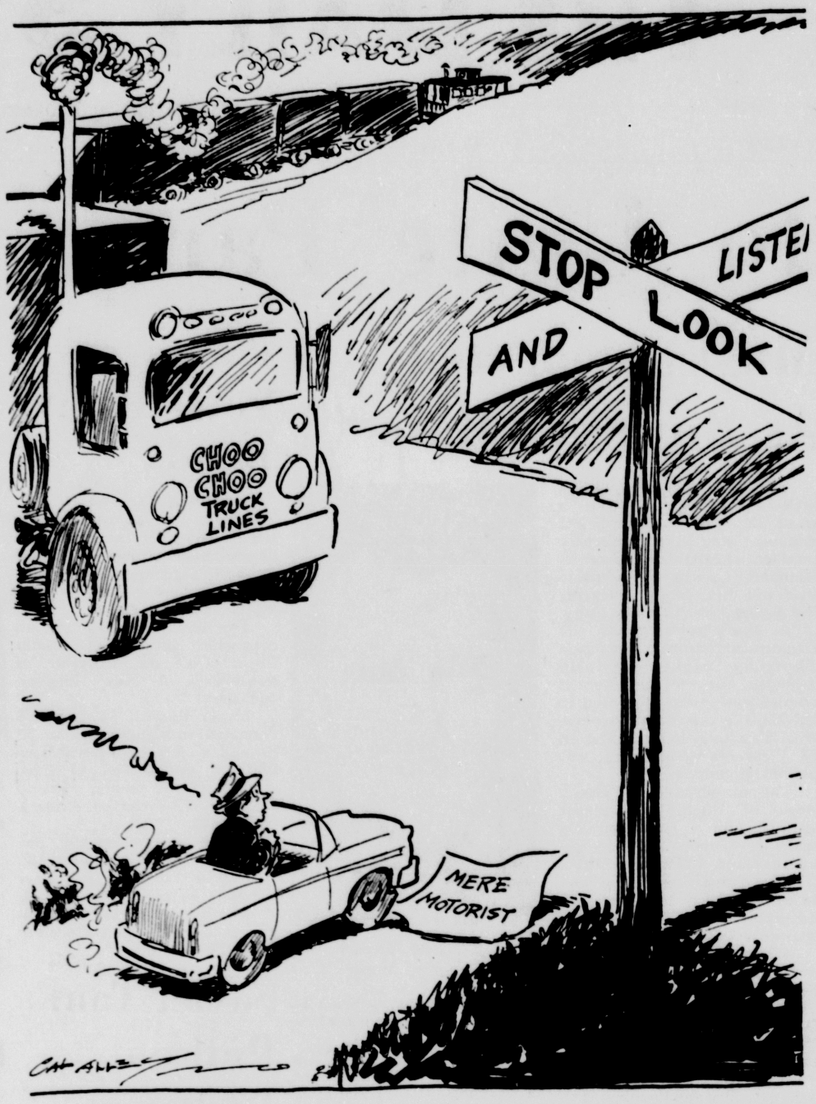

The Cunning Prude: At least once a week this hypocrite strolls through the secretarial pool pulling down a skirt here and there and exclaiming coldly: "It's far too short—this is a business office not a strip-tease show." This tactic wins him a reputation of a killjoy; it also enables him to brush his hands across a lot of lovely knees.

Calculating Charlie: He always brings in a cake and a dozen roses for his secretary and gives her a chaste kiss on her forehead. This convinces him that he has swept her off her feet, and she should be willing to work overtime for nothing.

The senior vice president: He likes to think of himself as the lovable old Mr. Chips of the office. The fatherly attitude—that's his gimmick. Whenever he sees one of the girls looking blue, he consoles her by putting a fatherly arm around her and giving her fatherly pats. It generally takes him five fatherly pats to range from the shoulder to the hemline.

That's a fair sampling of white collar Romeos, isn't it girls? Most office wolves are really so dull they wouldn't know what to do if you gave them "yes" for an answer.

"BIG GOVERNMENT AT ITS WORST"

Another instance of the blessings of a free -ress and the penetrating editorial competence of thousands of editors across the land who make up that press may be seen in an item from The California Farmer. The editor briefly summarizes the history of the Tennessee Valley Authority, the federal government's gigantic socialized electric power enterprise in the southeastern part of the United States, with the words, "What started out as a single dam to provide cheap electrical power and flood control for the Tennessee Valley has mushroomed into a socialist's dream . "

Today, TVA is the nation's biggest purchaser of coal and is in the process of entering in a major way the atomic energy field. But that is not all. According to the editor of The California Farmer, "Now TVA wants to buy 200,000 acres of land to set up a showcase for the Nation of how an area can be developed for recreation and conservation education programs. Land and homes in the area would be condemned if they refused to be bought out." He concludes, "In our book, this is big government at its worst."

Washington - Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

DREW PEARSON AND JACK ANDERSON SAY: Democrats will have to heal wounds again; Forgiving and forgetting now in order; McCarthy likely to become President of Columbia University.

CHICAGO--The big question now before the Democratic party is: Can it heal its wounds as effectively as it opens them up? Democrats have always been famous for practicing Democracy. They row and feud and castigate each other, and usually afterward they have been able to forget and forgive--but not always.

Twice in the last half century wounds have been so deep that they festered for some years thereafter. After the 1924 battle between Al Smith, a Catholic, and William Gibbs McAdoo, Woodrow Wilson's son-in-law and a Protestant, the party did not entirely recover from this religious battle until 1960, when it elected its first Catholic President, John F. Kennedy.

Again in 1948 when Hubert Humphrey forced a showdown on civil rights and the South walked out, it took almost 20 years for the wounds to heal. The fact that the south generally supported Hubert in Chicago is proof that is has been willing to forgive and forget, though it took time to do.

But will the thousands of passionate youngsters who mill in the streets and the hotel lobbies for McCarthy and McGovern be able to forgive and forget? Or the other thousands of long-hairs with dirty bare feet with Indian jackets and chains around their necks be able to forgo their demonstrations and their shouts of hatred? Humphrey and the war in vietnam have given them a rallying cry that they will forget easily. They have been able to transfer their chant, "LBJ, LBJ, how many kids have you killed today?" To various new versions of "Hubert go home." And they have loved it.

No, they will not forgive and forget. Those who are of voting age can be chalked up as doing their best to disrupt the Democratic party from now until November.

MIDDLE-CLASS AMERICANS

But what about the housewives, the schoolteachers, the sincere middle-class Americans, the intellectuals who took a passionate dive into politics, many for the first time because they were against the war and became enamored by the charm and courage and the aloof coolness of Eugene McCarthy? They represent a substantial portion of the Democratic party. Will they come back to the Democratic fold? That is the really important question. This could tip the scale between victory or defeat in November.

Most of the Negroes, except for the very young who can't remeber the civil rights courage of Hubert Humphrey--or else don't want to--will support him. Most of white suburbia middle-class America in the south, and part in the north, will vote for George Wallace. This will hurt Nixon about as much as it hurts Humphrey.

But what about the very large group of middle-age, middle-bracket McCarthyites who raised millions of dollars for their idol and worked for him day and night, partly in opposition to the war, partly because they came to idolize McCarthy? In doing so they developed almost a hatred for Humphrey. How will they vote in November? Upon that question may depend who will be the next president of the United States.

UP TO LEADERS

The answer will depend in part on the leaders of these dissidents. Both are former college professors. Sen. George McGovern of Dakota Wesleyan University is a tolerant former neighbor of Hubert Humphrey, himself a former professor at Macalester College McGovern undoubtedly remembers the occasions when Hubert raised money for his campaigns and pushed him to head the food for peace committee.

Professor Eugene McCarthy may not have such a clearcut memory for the days when Professor Humphrey pushed him ahead in politics, how in 1958 when Gene was running his first time for the Senate, Humphrey brought in Sen. William Benton of Connecticut, who was born in Minnesota, and Sen. Paul Douglas of Illinois to campaign for him, or how in 1960 HHH tried to persuade Lyndon Johnson to take McCarthy as Vice President on the first LBJ ticket.

Those were days when the memory of Joe McCarthy of Wisconsin was very much alive and the campaigning of Sen. Benton, the man who had the courage to propose the censoring of Joe McCarthy, was important to prevent any confusion with the new Eugene McCarthy.

COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY

In the end Gene will doubtless remember those days. However, there's been a lot of bitterness generated between the two men of late. Chiefly by McCarthy's followers. They even concocted a song reflecting on Humphrey's mental stability.

McCarthy is almost certain to be invited to be President of Columbia University, where President Grayson Kirk has just retired, a university which very much needs McCarthy leadership and inspiration.

In many respects, the Presidency of a great university is better suited to Gene McCarthy's talents than either the Senate or the White House. He is more of a scholar than a politician, more a philosopher than an executive.

He made a great contribution to the present campaign. He made it come alive. He lifted up several million young people and others who hated war. He had the courage to jump into what looked like a hopeless Presidential race with no money, nothing except an idea and faith. Like Estes Kefauver, the lone Senator from Tennessee, he tramped the snowy streets of New Hampshire when no one was with him except the youth of the nation. And he showed that even without money and old guard political support you could make an impact on the nation.

It was a service that will not soon be forgotten. But will the youngsters who rallied round him and the housewives and the schoolteachers and the others who are against war? Will they move over to Humphrey; Will they remember that Humphrey has been a man of courage too? That remains to be seen. People's memories are short and political passions run deep. Many of them will not move over.

Another column on the personal bitterness inside the Democratic party will follow soon.

COMMUNIST "DAILY WORLD"

On August 28, 1923, Grigori Zinoviev, chief of the Communist International, sent a cablegram from Moscow to Charles E. Ruthenberg, head of the Workers Party, which was the American section of the International. The cablegram read:

"Know of no more important task for American workers than establishment of a militant daily. This should be rallying point for concentration of all forces at the present time. Only after foundation of a daily will Comintern consider we have a real mass party in America. Zinoviev."

Toward this goal, the "Daily Worker" was introduced in Chicago. It made little headway toward the circulation needed to influence Americans toward communism, so William Weinstone, a Party representative, purchased a building at 30 Union Square in New York City to house the paper and the Party printing plant.

The Comintern had invested $35,000 in the Chicago venture, and Weinstone paid $70,000 down on the New York building. With repairs and the printing plant, Moscow sunk well over $300,000 into this propaganda investment.

The Party, which had evolved into the present Communist Party, USA, ceased publication of a daily in the Fifties, and the name "The Worker" was revived for a weekly in 1958. After the Kremlin's current drive against anti-communists was begun, the Worker stepped up publication to twice weekly. And on July 4, 1968, a new Communist daily, the "Daily World," appeared. Zinoviev did not send a cable this time. Stalin long ago had caused him to be shot. HLH

President '72? Reuther Behind Ted Kennedy Boom

Chicago: -- Behind the Ted Kennedy "draft" were some of Walter Reuther's strategically deployed forces. Actually the redheaded auto union chief was booming the junior senator for President -- in 1972.

Unknown to the frezied crowds, unnoticed even by the press and the pros, this was the decade-old Reuther-Kennedy combine in action.

When the Kennedy clan drum beat began booming in the Palmer House last Sunday night, the drive for the third Kennedy had been all pressed up (the propaganda was rolling), but had no place to go. It needed a headquarters -- something frenetic, something fresh, something untouched except by youthful hands.

Within a few hours the boom was fully housed in the Bal Tabarin Suite, on the sixth floor of the Sherman House, which comes with built-in frenetics.

The logistics had been supplied by an anonymous Reuther regional aide, one Paul Korman, staffer for the big UAW Region 4, which did so much for the late Bob Kennedy during the primary heats.

With Walter Reuther ensconced in the Sheraton-Chicago tower suite practically down the street, no regional staffman would move in on tense make-or-break national politics without the leader's permission. Especially since Reuther had been pushing hard for Hubert Humphrey, to the point of calling in union convention delegates and ordering them to jump off the McCarthy wagon immediately.

Reuther, along with George Meany and Hubert Humphrey were three men on a horse. But that did not keep the Detroiter from throwing support to "young Ted." Another day, another campaign. By sheer reflex the auto union leader always looks years ahead. Ted Kennedy had been made to order. What mattered now the cost of a few buttons, balloons, pamphlets, hand-lettered signs, and office space. Some auto union delegates were already quartered at the Sherman House anyway.

Soon other auto union officials, such as Bob Kennedy's young friend, California's Paul Schrade, who were convention delegates, pinned "Draft Kennedy" slogans atop their McCarthy buttons and began booming it up for "Ted" on the floor.

The strategy was simple. If nothing happened, Reuther lost no Humphrey friends. He could blame the Kennedy sentiment on his younger, more impetuous staffmen. If a miracle was conjured, it would come with a UAW label.

After all, Reuther was, except for some California grape-picking delegates, Ted Kennedy's only labor support.

The union establishment over at the Hotel Drake had let it be known to Ted's brother-in-law, Steve Smith, in the Standard Club, and to Mayor Richard Daley, that young Kennedy would have to face to face a floor fight if he moved. And 1956 was recalled as a warning. At that time, in this city, at the convention which Adlai Stevenson opened up, labor had shoved some steel into Estes Kefauver's backbone, had forced him to unpack his bags and not flee from Jack Kennedy. The latter then lost his vice-presidential fight by 26 votes. Ted Kennedy was told he's too young to take such chances.

Meanwhile back at the ranch, Lyndon Johnson began forming the agons into a circle. He surrounded the Kennedy forces. Old friend Jack Valenti moved quietly into Hilton suite 22-A. By phone and back stairs he could get to old friends Marvin Watson and Hubert Humphrey on the 25th floor.

Across town at the Hotel Drake's suite 169, President Johnson put his old trouble shooter, big George Ready, a devoted man, far too honest for politics. There Ready, unobserved by the media, kept in close touch with the nation's labor leaders on the upper floors.

If manpower was needed, it was in heavy supply. There was, for example, longshormen's leader Ted Gleason virtually next door to Mr. Humphrey's rooms at the Hilton.

The dockwalloper, as did scores of other labor chiefs, came with publicity men, researchers, statisticians and political muscle.

Wherever President Johnson wanted them, they went. Whenever the Kennedy boom came up for air, they sat on it, balloons and all.

But Walter Reuther played it cool. From his tower suite he could see 1972 - and another convention. By that time the auto union leader would have his new labor federation swinging. He has been seeking a large headquarters in Washingon, D. C., and reportedly has decided to purchase a building in the neighborhood of 18th and L Streets. Though in 1972 he will be 65 years old, some of his adversaries will be in their late seventies.

And even during the 1976 election Reuther would still be younger than some of his colleagues are today. And Ted Kennedy will be but 44.

So, for the price of a few balloons and the time of some staffers, Reuther made a policial friend here. He who gambles on time builds with sand, my friend K.C. Wu once told me in Hong Kong.

But to Reuther and his colleagues it was worth a try. And so Ted Kennedy's boom found a home.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

The shock of the Kremlin bloc countries' invasion of Czechoslovakia isn't what it was 20 years ago.

It does reveal that the essential nature of Communism as an unyielding, unreasonable, bloody, dishonest, dictatorial, rigid and inflexible force is essentially unchanged.

It was a cat and a mouse game that the Russians played on Czechoslovakia, culminating with the unexpected and brutal invasion of the unhappy country.

It is obvious that Russian Communism permits no slight deviation from the party line and that even the smallest freedoms will not be tolerated.

Russia cannot be trusted by friend or foe alike. No one was more surprised by the invasion than the leaders of Czechoslovakia, who had just gone throught the window dressing routine of receiving leaders of Soviet bloc countries in a series of state visits.

The negotiations were merely a deceptive implication that Russia would be content to work out an accommodation over the table instead of at gunpoint.

Those who believed that Czechoslovakia's immediate troubles were over after the visits didn't reckon with the desperation and insecurity of the Kremlin rulers.

Even though a small breath of freedom has been savagely cut in Czechoslovakia, the United States must continue to try to work wherever possible with Russia to keep the peace of the world.

The threat of nuclear war makes this essential.

President Lyndon B. Johnson's offer to go to Russia after the invasion are ill advised and poorly timed.

This is a time when Russia's hand should not be strengthened voluntarily by the United States.

A presidential visit to Russia now would be playing a propaganda game directly into the hands of the Soviet Union.

The message that all countries under Russian domination, including Czechoslovakia, would get from the visit would be that as far as the United States is concerned all is forgiven.

All isn't forgiven but there is little that the United States can do to help the liberty loving Czechs now except to give them vocal support and avoid fraternizing or knuckling down to the Russians.

A new enterprise is received with acclaim in a town. If it should succeed (and it cannot prove useful unless it does) the people will be ready to rob it within three or four years. The principle is not wrong, but unfair and not for the general good. A big and useful enterprise is entitled to the same consideration and fairness that a farmer receives when he saves a thousand dollars and lends it to a neighbor.

Mr. William A. Gemmel, president of the South Jersey Gas Company, remarked: "Business is losing the battle for public opinion and understanding. If prevailing attitudes and practices continue unchecked, the free enterprise system will be weakened. In time it will give way to other systems which would dissolve our individual freedoms . destroy our great standard of living, and rob us of our world leadership. If this happens then the record of America's free enterprise system will be lost to our heirs -- to become the greatest story never told."

We are continuously asked why Kennett can get industries and those already located there are expanding their plant facilities and increasing their employees.

Many folks do not recall but the labor conditions in Kennett are a hell of a lot more favorable than those in Sikeston.

A CLASSIC SENATE RACE

From the Kansas City Times

From an intellectual point of view, the voters of Missouri face what very well may be a dream campaign for the United States Senate, with the lines clearly drawn on point of view and party.

We would expect to hear both Representative Tom Curtis and Lt. Gov. Tom Eagleton discuss the issues openly and frankly. Whatever the decision on Nov. 5, we are confident that the new junior Senator will represent his state capably.

On the Republican side, Curtis can speak as an experienced member of the U.S. House. Without a serious challenge in the primary - and somewhat restricted by his schedule in Washington - Curtis has received less state-wide attention. This is understandable. We would guess that the situation of the day will be heard more and more.

Eagleton was involved in one of the most hotly contested Democratic primary battles in the state's history. Even so, his attention was centered on the issues in a high - level drive to victory. Certainly he demonstrated his capacity as a thoughtful campaigner concerned with the major problems of the nation and of Missouri.

We have rated Tom Eagleton as a middle - of - the roader, and the Curtis approach has been on the more conservative side. The Curtis record has been written largely in Washington, and as a member of the House he has been hardworking, attentive to duty and has won the respect of his colleagues. Eagleton's experience has been at the state level, but he has been tested thoroughly as Attorney General and Lieutenant Governor. The primary campaign proved that he has done his homework on both the national and international problems that confront the nation.

Accepting the differences of ideology, it seems likely that the victor in November will have the potential of becoming one of the outstanding members of the U. S. Senate. In the meantime, the state will have the opportunity to witness two energetic, articulate campainers in action, and to make its ultimate decision on the basis of what each has to say about many matters. This, we take it, is the way the political process is supposed to work.

RUNAWAY TAXES -- ANY END IN SIGHT?

Most Americans are becoming aware that it isn't only the Government in Washington that is raising taxes. All across the nation, states, counties, cities and school districts are taking a bigger tax bite.

Striking close to home is the approval of the city's tax levy of $39.11 per $1,000 of assessed valuation as compared to $36.24 for this year. Besides the city levy, the others are Atchison county $26.98, board of education USD 409 $40.48, White Clay Creek Watershed 81 cents and the state $1.50.

The city taxpayer this year will pay approximately $108.88 per $1,000 of assessed valuation as compared to $98.42 last year.

Although the cost increases of inflation is pointed to as a major reason for the necessity of increasing taxes and we believe that our local commissions and boards tried to hold the line, this country is undergoing a tax-increase binge the likes of which have never been seen before.

Taxpayers, as a result, are beginning to scream - and revolt against higher taxes has broken out in many areas. This is why school and improvement bond issues are being voted down.

But the fact is, the load on taxpayers will get heavier -- and there is no relief in sight until there is an end to so-called "demands" for government services.

NEW YORK (AP) —The American business office is firmly believed by many jealous wives to be a place where innocent husbands are led astray by conniving secretaries and voluptuous receptionists.

If this were only true, of course, every U.S. farm and store and factory would be deserted. Every man in the nation would want an office job.

However, it's only a wifely delusion, created partly by sensation-seeking novelists, that business offices are oases of orgy inhabited by sultry Delilahs. The truth is that passion in the executive suite tends to be prim rather than primordial.

And as every working girl knows, it is not she who usually initiates any romantic overtures that may occur. The advances are made by the male swivelchair daydreamers.

No office is without its quota of these would-be wolves, who are usually more clawless than lawless. If you glance around your own office the following Romeo types may be familar:

The Junior Executive: He chucks the chins or kisses the fading cheeks of all the old biddies, hoping by flattery and charm to get them to tell him what skeletons are hidden in the closets of the top executives. He feels that this knowledge will sooner or later help him up the success ladder.

The Frankenstein Monster: For 364 days of the year, harmless Harold is as shy and timid as a gazelle. But after the second drink at the annual Christmas party, he begins beating his chest, a wild look comes into his eyes, and he runs from desk top to desk top after any and every girl who comes into view. He winds up alone with his arms around a coat hanger, pleading to it, "Don't go home, baby. Let's make a real night of it."

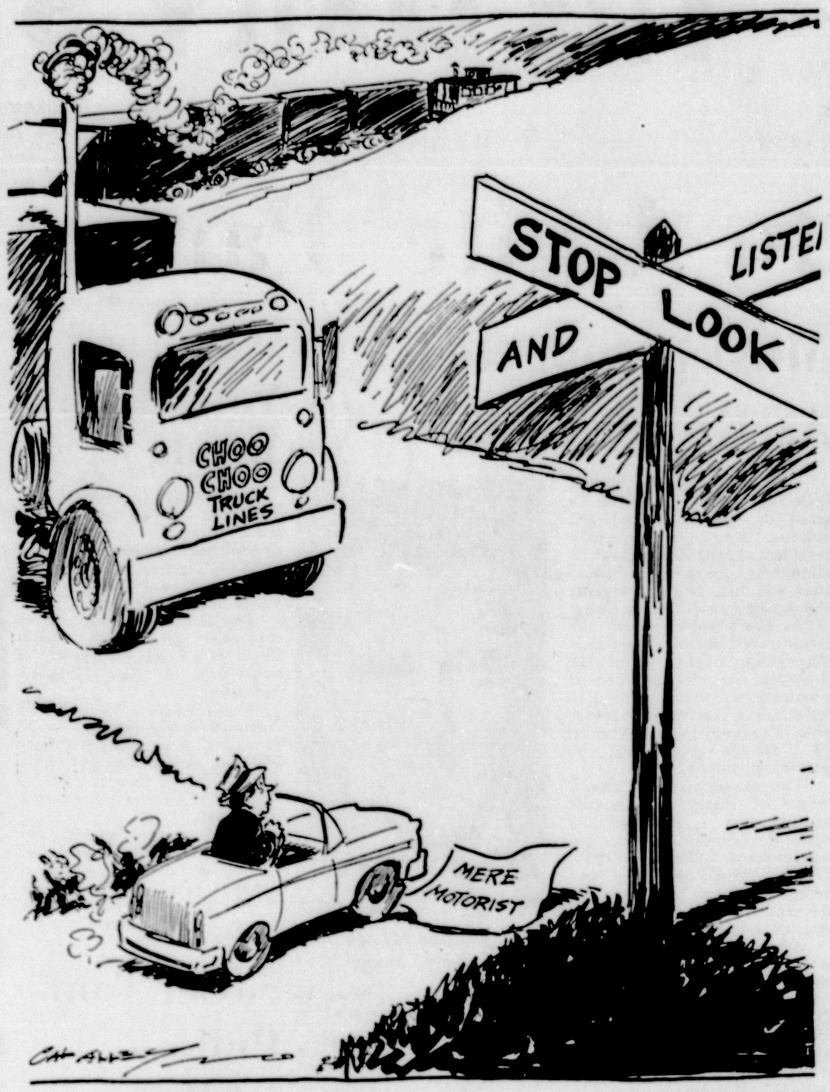

The Cunning Prude: At least once a week this hypocrite strolls through the secretarial pool pulling down a skirt here and there and exclaiming coldly: "It's far too short—this is a business office not a strip-tease show." This tactic wins him a reputation of a killjoy; it also enables him to brush his hands across a lot of lovely knees.

Calculating Charlie: He always brings in a cake and a dozen roses for his secretary and gives her a chaste kiss on her forehead. This convinces him that he has swept her off her feet, and she should be willing to work overtime for nothing.

The senior vice president: He likes to think of himself as the lovable old Mr. Chips of the office. The fatherly attitude—that's his gimmick. Whenever he sees one of the girls looking blue, he consoles her by putting a fatherly arm around her and giving her fatherly pats. It generally takes him five fatherly pats to range from the shoulder to the hemline.

That's a fair sampling of white collar Romeos, isn't it girls? Most office wolves are really so dull they wouldn't know what to do if you gave them "yes" for an answer.

After the 1924 battle between Al Smith, a Catholic, and William Gibbs McAdoo, Woodrow Wilson's son-in-law and a Protestant, the party did not entirely recover from this religious battle until 1960, when it elected its first Catholic President, John F. Kennedy.

Again in 1948 when Hubert Humphrey forced a showdown on civil rights and the South walked out, it took almost 20 years for the wounds to heal. The fact that the south generally supported Hubert in Chicago is proof that is has been willing to forgive and forget, though it took time to do.

But will the thousands of passionate youngsters who mill in the streets and the hotel lobbies for McCarthy and McGovern be able to forgive and forget? Or the other thousands of long-hairs with dirty bare feet with Indian jackets and chains around their necks be able to forgo their demonstrations and their shouts of hatred? Humphrey and the war in vietnam have given them a rallying cry that they will forget easily. They have been able to transfer their chant, "LBJ, LBJ, how many kids have you killed today?" To various new versions of "Hubert go home." And they have loved it.

No, they will not forgive and forget. Those who are of voting age can be chalked up as doing their best to disrupt the Democratic party from now until November.

MIDDLE-CLASS AMERICANS

But what about the housewives, the schoolteachers, the sincere middle-class Americans, the intellectuals who took a passionate dive into politics, many for the first time because they were against the war and became enamored by the charm and courage and the aloof coolness of Eugene McCarthy? They represent a substantial portion of the Democratic party. Will they come back to the Democratic fold? That is the really important question. This could tip the scale between victory or defeat in November.

Most of the Negroes, except for the very young who can't remeber the civil rights courage of Hubert Humphrey--or else don't want to--will support him. Most of white suburbia middle-class America in the south, and part in the north, will vote for George Wallace. This will hurt Nixon about as much as it hurts Humphrey.

But what about the very large group of middle-age, middle-bracket McCarthyites who raised millions of dollars for their idol and worked for him day and night, partly in opposition to the war, partly because they came to idolize McCarthy? In doing so they developed almost a hatred for Humphrey. How will they vote in November? Upon that question may depend who will be the next president of the United States.

UP TO LEADERS

The answer will depend in part on the leaders of these dissidents. Both are former college professors. Sen. George McGovern of Dakota Wesleyan University is a tolerant former neighbor of Hubert Humphrey, himself a former professor at Macalester College McGovern undoubtedly remembers the occasions when Hubert raised money for his campaigns and pushed him to head the food for peace committee.

Professor Eugene McCarthy may not have such a clearcut memory for the days when Professor Humphrey pushed him ahead in politics, how in 1958 when Gene was running his first time for the Senate, Humphrey brought in Sen. William Benton of Connecticut, who was born in Minnesota, and Sen. Paul Douglas of Illinois to campaign for him, or how in 1960 HHH tried to persuade Lyndon Johnson to take McCarthy as Vice President on the first LBJ ticket.

Those were days when the memory of Joe McCarthy of Wisconsin was very much alive and the campaigning of Sen. Benton, the man who had the courage to propose the censoring of Joe McCarthy, was important to prevent any confusion with the new Eugene McCarthy.

COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY

In the end Gene will doubtless remember those days. However, there's been a lot of bitterness generated between the two men of late. Chiefly by McCarthy's followers. They even concocted a song reflecting on Humphrey's mental stability.

McCarthy is almost certain to be invited to be President of Columbia University, where President Grayson Kirk has just retired, a university which very much needs McCarthy leadership and inspiration.

In many respects, the Presidency of a great university is better suited to Gene McCarthy's talents than either the Senate or the White House. He is more of a scholar than a politician, more a philosopher than an executive.

He made a great contribution to the present campaign. He made it come alive. He lifted up several million young people and others who hated war. He had the courage to jump into what looked like a hopeless Presidential race with no money, nothing except an idea and faith. Like Estes Kefauver, the lone Senator from Tennessee, he tramped the snowy streets of New Hampshire when no one was with him except the youth of the nation. And he showed that even without money and old guard political support you could make an impact on the nation.

It was a service that will not soon be forgotten. But will the youngsters who rallied round him and the housewives and the schoolteachers and the others who are against war? Will they move over to Humphrey; Will they remember that Humphrey has been a man of courage too? That remains to be seen. People's memories are short and political passions run deep. Many of them will not move over.

Another column on the personal bitterness inside the Democratic party will follow soon.

Dear Editor

Seems like the President hopefuls can be for anything that appeals to the majority of voters they know they can do as they please once in the drivers seat like others have done in the past and got by with it, got to be some changes made Soc Duncan by the saverned.

H.L. Hunt Says

COMMUNIST "DAILY WORLD"

On August 28, 1923, Grigori Zinoviev, chief of the Communist International, sent a cablegram from Moscow to Charles E. Ruthenberg, head of the Workers Party, which was the American section of the International. The cablegram read:

"Know of no more important task for American workers than establishment of a militant daily. This should be rallying point for concentration of all forces at the present time. Only after foundation of a daily will Comintern consider we have a real mass party in America. Zinoviev."

Toward this goal, the "Daily Worker" was introduced in Chicago. It made little headway toward the circulation needed to influence Americans toward communism, so William Weinstone, a Party representative, purchased a building at 30 Union Square in New York City to house the paper and the Party printing plant.

The Comintern had invested $35,000 in the Chicago venture, and Weinstone paid $70,000 down on the New York building. With repairs and the printing plant, Moscow sunk well over $300,000 into this propaganda investment.

The Party, which had evolved into the present Communist Party, USA, ceased publication of a daily in the Fifties, and the name "The Worker" was revived for a weekly in 1958. After the Kremlin's current drive against anti-communists was begun, the Worker stepped up publication to twice weekly. And on July 4, 1968, a new Communist daily, the "Daily World," appeared. Zinoviev did not send a cable this time. Stalin long ago had caused him to be shot. HLH

President '72? Reuther Behind Ted Kennedy Boom

Chicago: -- Behind the Ted Kennedy "draft" were some of Walter Reuther's strategically deployed forces. Actually the redheaded auto union chief was booming the junior senator for President -- in 1972.

Unknown to the frezied crowds, unnoticed even by the press and the pros, this was the decade-old Reuther-Kennedy combine in action.

When the Kennedy clan drum beat began booming in the Palmer House last Sunday night, the drive for the third Kennedy had been all pressed up (the propaganda was rolling), but had no place to go. It needed a headquarters -- something frenetic, something fresh, something untouched except by youthful hands.

Within a few hours the boom was fully housed in the Bal Tabarin Suite, on the sixth floor of the Sherman House, which comes with built-in frenetics.

The logistics had been supplied by an anonymous Reuther regional aide, one Paul Korman, staffer for the big UAW Region 4, which did so much for the late Bob Kennedy during the primary heats.

With Walter Reuther ensconced in the Sheraton-Chicago tower suite practically down the street, no regional staffman would move in on tense make-or-break national politics without the leader's permission. Especially since Reuther had been pushing hard for Hubert Humphrey, to the point of calling in union convention delegates and ordering them to jump off the McCarthy wagon immediately.

Reuther, along with George Meany and Hubert Humphrey were three men on a horse. But that did not keep the Detroiter from throwing support to "young Ted." Another day, another campaign. By sheer reflex the auto union leader always looks years ahead. Ted Kennedy had been made to order. What mattered now the cost of a few buttons, balloons, pamphlets, hand-lettered signs, and office space. Some auto union delegates were already quartered at the Sherman House anyway.

Soon other auto union officials, such as Bob Kennedy's young friend, California's Paul Schrade, who were convention delegates, pinned "Draft Kennedy" slogans atop their McCarthy buttons and began booming it up for "Ted" on the floor.

The strategy was simple. If nothing happened, Reuther lost no Humphrey friends. He could blame the Kennedy sentiment on his younger, more impetuous staffmen. If a miracle was conjured, it would come with a UAW label.

After all, Reuther was, except for some California grape-picking delegates, Ted Kennedy's only labor support.

The union establishment over at the Hotel Drake had let it be known to Ted's brother-in-law, Steve Smith, in the Standard Club, and to Mayor Richard Daley, that young Kennedy would have to face to face a floor fight if he moved. And 1956 was recalled as a warning. At that time, in this city, at the convention which Adlai Stevenson opened up, labor had shoved some steel into Estes Kefauver's backbone, had forced him to unpack his bags and not flee from Jack Kennedy. The latter then lost his vice-presidential fight by 26 votes. Ted Kennedy was told he's too young to take such chances.

Meanwhile back at the ranch, Lyndon Johnson began forming the agons into a circle. He surrounded the Kennedy forces. Old friend Jack Valenti moved quietly into Hilton suite 22-A. By phone and back stairs he could get to old friends Marvin Watson and Hubert Humphrey on the 25th floor.

Across town at the Hotel Drake's suite 169, President Johnson put his old trouble shooter, big George Ready, a devoted man, far too honest for politics. There Ready, unobserved by the media, kept in close touch with the nation's labor leaders on the upper floors.

If manpower was needed, it was in heavy supply. There was, for example, longshormen's leader Ted Gleason virtually next door to Mr. Humphrey's rooms at the Hilton.

The dockwalloper, as did scores of other labor chiefs, came with publicity men, researchers, statisticians and political muscle.

Wherever President Johnson wanted them, they went. Whenever the Kennedy boom came up for air, they sat on it, balloons and all.

But Walter Reuther played it cool. From his tower suite he could see 1972 - and another convention. By that time the auto union leader would have his new labor federation swinging. He has been seeking a large headquarters in Washingon, D. C., and reportedly has decided to purchase a building in the neighborhood of 18th and L Streets. Though in 1972 he will be 65 years old, some of his adversaries will be in their late seventies.

And even during the 1976 election Reuther would still be younger than some of his colleagues are today. And Ted Kennedy will be but 44.

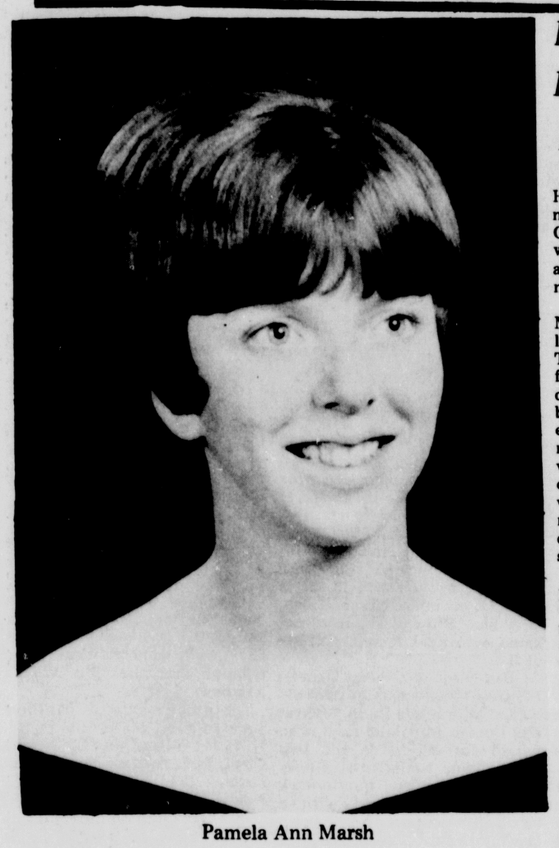

So, for the price of a few balloons and the time of some staffers, Reuther made a policial friend here. He who gambles on time builds with sand, my friend K.C. Wu once told me in Hong Kong.

But to Reuther and his colleagues it was worth a try. And so Ted Kennedy's boom found a home.

Center Striping For Highway 61 Discussed

CAPE GIRARDEAU – Harold J. Werner, supervisor here for the State Highway Department, and Coroner Donald Kremer met Thursday to work out a program for center striping the stretch of highway 61 between Fruitland and Old Appleton before the Labor Day weekend.

Kremer said he understood the highway department would make every effort to center stripe as much of this section of the highway as possible, particularly on hills and curves.

The coroner cited the danger of the highway, which is being given an asphalt surface, because center stripes and yellow passing lanes had been eliminated.

The Gospel Visitor

By REEDUS M. BAUGHER

You are invited to look for articles which will appear in this paper, under the above heading. The gospel visitor because, we desire to visit with you a few moments each week, with the gospel. To preach the gospel is a serious business, it carries with it grave responsiblities, to alter it in any manner is disastrous. See Galatians 1:7,8.

Thus, being aware of these things, it will be the aim of this writer to present gospel articles as they are written in the Scriptures, without any change whatsoever. The general trend in our country, and the world, is away from God and religion. The sickening effects of "rising crime, breakdown of homes, rebellion and anarchy, immorality, ect." may have many causes. But one thing for certain the sure remedy for these ills is God and the religion of His Son. In speaking of the religion of Christ I am not refering to another of man's. We can readily see that these many religions have not healed the desease with which we are effected. But rather I speak of the one Christ freely advocates in His word. The apostle Paul, said, "Whatsoever ye do in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus," (Col. 3:17) Thus, all our actions and words must be approved by Christ. How long has it been since yours were? It will make a great difference at the judgement. Jesus said, "My words shall judge you" (John 12:48)

The Eastside Church of Christ for which I preach, in Vanduser will soon be meeting in their new building. Which is located about one mile east of Vanduser, on route Z. We welcome any and all to come and reason with us from God's word. We are convinced that the Bible, God's word, is a book of system. That it was given to man through the Spirit of God. It can be understood, and obeyed and offers eternal life to all. Read Ephesians 3:1-6. Man may be confused but God is not the author of such. 1 Corinthians 14:33. Will you join with us in understandning what the will of God is? I also preach at Blodgett, and if you live in this vicinity they would rejoice to have you with them.

Center Striping For Highway 61 Discussed

CAPE GIRARDEAU – Harold J. Werner, supervisor here for the State Highway Department, and Coroner Donald Kremer met Thursday to work out a program for center striping the stretch of highway 61 between Fruitland and Old Appleton before the Labor Day weekend.

Kremer said he understood the highway department would make every effort to center stripe as much of this section of the highway as possible, particularly on hills and curves.

The coroner cited the danger of the highway, which is being given an asphalt surface, because center stripes and yellow passing lanes had been eliminated.

The Gospel Visitor

By REEDUS M. BAUGHER

You are invited to look for articles which will appear in this paper, under the above heading. The gospel visitor because, we desire to visit with you a few moments each week, with the gospel. To preach the gospel is a serious business, it carries with it grave responsiblities, to alter it in any manner is disastrous. See Galatians 1:7,8.

Thus, being aware of these things, it will be the aim of this writer to present gospel articles as they are written in the Scriptures, without any change whatsoever. The general trend in our country, and the world, is away from God and religion. The sickening effects of "rising crime, breakdown of homes, rebellion and anarchy, immorality, ect." may have many causes. But one thing for certain the sure remedy for these ills is God and the religion of His Son. In speaking of the religion of Christ I am not refering to another of man's. We can readily see that these many religions have not healed the desease with which we are effected. But rather I speak of the one Christ freely advocates in His word. The apostle Paul, said, "Whatsoever ye do in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus," (Col. 3:17) Thus, all our actions and words must be approved by Christ. How long has it been since yours were? It will make a great difference at the judgement. Jesus said, "My words shall judge you" (John 12:48)

The Eastside Church of Christ for which I preach, in Vanduser will soon be meeting in their new building. Which is located about one mile east of Vanduser, on route Z. We welcome any and all to come and reason with us from God's word. We are convinced that the Bible, God's word, is a book of system. That it was given to man through the Spirit of God. It can be understood, and obeyed and offers eternal life to all. Read Ephesians 3:1-6. Man may be confused but God is not the author of such. 1 Corinthians 14:33. Will you join with us in understandning what the will of God is? I also preach at Blodgett, and if you live in this vicinity they would rejoice to have you with them.

Ex-Ace Spahn Getting His Wish As Manager of a Winning Team

They practically had to drag Warren Spahn screaming and kicking out of the National League when his pitching days ended after the 1965 season.

The still trim 47-year-old Spahn, the winningest left hander in major league history with 363 victories who now manages the Tulsa Oilers, is mum on when he thinks he'll be ready to manage in the majors. He is just as quiet on another subject close to his heart — baseball's Hall of Fame.

There are many who fell Spahn will be voted into Cooperstown in 1971 after the customary five year waiting period.

Spahn, in his second year as Oiler manager in the Eastern Division of the Pacific Coast League, had 13 season in which he won 20 or more games, equaling the great Christy Mathewson's feat and only three behind Cy Young's record 16.

Major league expansion will open more managerial jobs but Spahn wants to look hard before he leaps.

"I'd have to weigh the prospects because those teams are not going to win the first few years," says Spahnie. "I think I'd rather have a front office job with an expansion club than manage one. I would first like to have an offer to consider, but I'm happy where I am."

And where Spahn is happens to be one step away from the majors. Tulsa is the No. 1 farm team of the world champion St. Louis Cardinals.

A. Ray Smith, Oiler owner, believes Spahn will make the Hall of Fame on the first ballot and that he'll manage in the majors.

"He is one of the best," Smith says. "He's smart and he knows the game. He knows how to handle men'"

Spahn took the Oilers last year as the team nose-dived from the 1966 league pennant to the cellar. But this year he had the Oilers in first place in midseason.

"I'm doing what I always wanted to do after ending my playing career," says Spahn. "This year we've got a great bunch of kids."

He thinks three pitchers, Mike Torrez, Chuch Taylor and Clay Kirby, have a bright baseball future.

Torrez came to the Oilers after starting with St. Louis and was optioned out to get more work. "When he goes back," says Spahn, "he will be a starter.

"Taylor is the best pitcher we've had this spring. Kirby has just turned, 20 and is a fine prospect."

Spahn has strong opinions on the lack of hitting in the majors this year. While blaming the batters he also credits the pitchers.

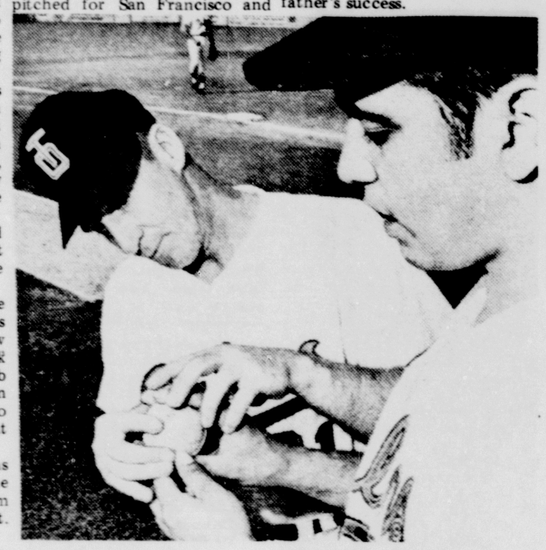

"Early in the year I would have said it was the weather," says Spahn. "But now I'm inclined to say the pitchers have learned their business better than the hitters. Everybody is swinging from their hips, trying to hit the ball out of the park."

Spahn had his great years with the Braves, first in Boston then in Milwaukee. He pitched two nohitters in the twilight of his career which shows 63 shutouts, second only to Eddie Plank's 70.

In 1964 Milwaukee sold him to the Mets. After the Mets put him on waivers in 1965 he pitched for San Francisco and ended the season with a 7-16 record. He still hoped to pitch after the Giants released him.

His comeback as a manager if more for the love of the game than for money. For several years he earned about $80,000 and he now owns a 3,000 acre ranch near Hartshorne in southeastern Oklahoma, his winter home.

Spahn's son, Gregory, is a 20-year-old University of Oklahoma student and plays amateur ball in the aummer. After graduation he would like to follow his father in pro baseball. He has a long way to go if he ever expects to match his father's success.

Comments From Author

NEW YORK (AP)— Bob Gibson, the well known author, politely declined to take a firm stand on such controversial subjects as the National League's Most Valuable Player award or the pitching prize, the Cy Young Award.

"You don't think about such things," he said. "Besides, no one gets both of them, or hardly ever."

But this St. Louis Cardinal giant might. Now breezing along with a won and lost record of 19-6 that includes 11 shutouts, a club record, he seems sure to win the league's pitching honors.

As to Most Valuable Player - "Oh, it could be Curt Flood or Lou Brock or Mike Shannon," said Gibson. All are Cardinals, of course. Flood and Brock are outfielders and Shannon is a third baseman.

Gibson, resplendent in Nehru jacket, blue turtle neck sweater, and a fancy medallion, showed up at a luncheon Thursday to kick off his book, From Ghetto to Glory.

It should be, he said, "helpful to Negro kids in the ghetto providing they can pay for it." The cost is $5.95.

He offered opinions on a variety of subjects:

On the Cardinals' baseball pennant chances noww scandalously in front in the National League-"I think we have a shot at the pennant."

On himself-"The things I've gone through have made me a better person."

On the Cardinals-"We don't have a team with one super-star. We get along like one family."

On the possibility of facing Dennis McLain of the Detroit Tigers in the World Series- "My main concern is to get there."

On his personal problems - "I have a lot of trouble with left-handers."

BOSTON AP- The Boston Celtics announced today the signing of Mal Graham, former New York University backcourt star, for the 1968-69 National Basketball Association season.

In limited action as the Celtics' No. 1 draft choice last season, Graham scored 290 points.

The St. Louis football Cardinals announced Wednesday they picked up Wayne Trimble on waivers from the San Francisco 49ers.

Trimble is expected to fill a slot vacated by veteran Jerry Stovall, who the Cardinals place on the injured list. Stovall suffered a thigh bruise in a game with the New York Giants last Sunday.

The Cardinals also announced the release of Clarence Childs, recently obtained in a trade with the Giants, and Bill Wosilius, a reserve linebacker. Rookie running back Don Fitzgerald, from Kent State, was traded to the Philadelphia Eagles.

Starting time is 9 p.m.

Cincinnati, which is in its first year of operation, enters the game with a 1 3 mark while the Jets are 2-1. The Bengals of Coach Paul Brown, probably pulled the biggest upset of the pre-season inter-league competition when they downed Pittsburgh 19-3.

New York, behind the passing of Joe Namath, who was making his 1968 debut, and the running of Lee White, Matt Shell and Bill Mathis, and a tough defense, whipped Atlanta, 27-12.

Coach Webb Ewbank doesn't plan any changes as he works to get his club finely tuned for regular season play. Ewbank said he would use Namath for the first half and Babe Parilli in the second period.

"Joe looked very sharp (12 of 21 for 140 yards and 2 TD's), especially considering the long layoff," said Ewbank. "We'll work him and Babe each a half so that the both can get their timing down pat."

The Jets defense, which has not allowed a touchdown in the last two games -- Boston scored when it recovered a fumble and Atlanta kicked four field goals -- will be tested by the Bengals' rookie quarterback Dewey Warren. The former Tennessee star threw for 268 yards as he completed 12 of 21 against the Steelers.

Ewbank lauded his defensive unit's play against Atlanta. "We had the sharpest hitting in a long time. The front four put a lot of pressure on the quarterback and our linebackers were hitting hard."

The front four of ends Gerry Philbin and Verlon Biggs and tackles John Elliott and Paul Rochester, bot to the Falcons' quarterbacks four times for losses of 42 and came up with its second safety in two weeks.

Preston Gomez, is not depending on luck to pull him through his first baseball season as manager of the National League San Deigo Padres.

Gomez, a coach for the Los Angeles Dodgers since 1965, was named Thursday to manage the new San Diego franchise. He indicated that youth, speed and the capacity for hard work are the attributes he'll look for in selecting his coaches and players.

"You can't gamble without speed and speed is something we'll need in San Diego Stadium's big ball park," Gomez said.

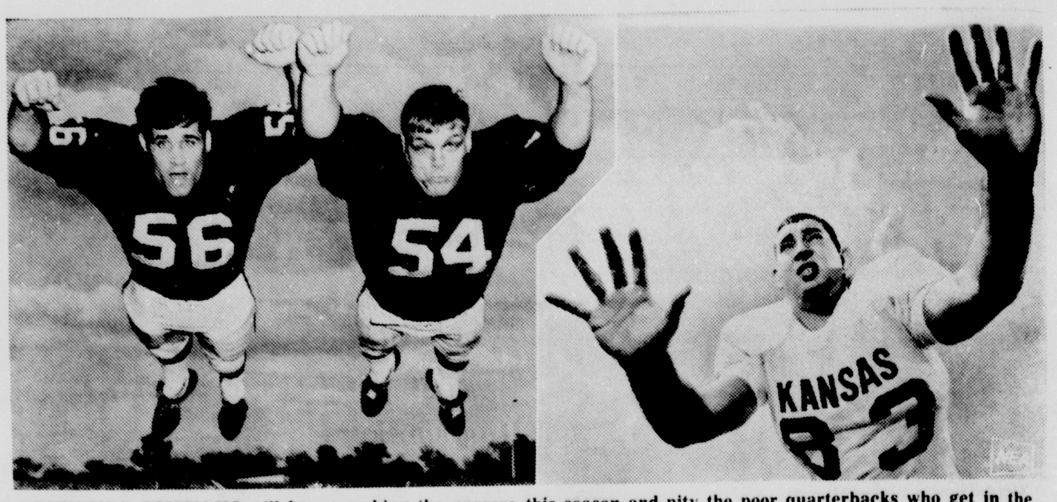

He's confident the National League expansion draft will provide the speed he seeks.

" I think there'll be some good players available in the draft-especially pitchers. But the main thing is to be strong up the middle of the field," Gomez said.

Gomez, who has a one-year contract at an undisclosed salary, also plans to be particular about the coaches he hires.

"The main thing is a pitching coach," he said, "and I want coaches who are willing to work. We have a teaching job to do."

NFL Pulling For Browns' Victory Over Bills

By The Associated Press

The Cleveland Browns encounter the Buffalo Bills tonight, their first American Football League opposition ever, and the National Football League sorely needs a Browns' victory.

The AFL holds a 10-5 edge over the NFL and needs only two more victories to clinch the interleague, preseason series with eight games remaining, six of them this weekend.

There also are two AFL games on tap tonight—Cincinnati vs. the New York Jets at Memphis, Tenn., and Denver against San Diego at San Antonio, Tex.

The Washington Redskins scored 16 points in the second period and held on for a 16-10 victory over the Detroit Lions in an NFL game at Washington Thursday night.

Jerry Allen ran three yards for the first touchdown and Jim Ninowski passed 25 yards to Jerry Smith. Both touchdowns were set up when the Lions were penalized on third down after Washington drives apparently had stalled.

The Redskins got a safety when linebacker Ed Breding blocked a Jerry DePoyster punt in the end zone.

Detroit, who scored on a 59yard pass from Bill Munson to Earl McCullouch and DePoyster's 37-yard field goal, lost a chance to win when Munson's 39-yard scoring pass to McCullouch late in the final quarter was nullified by offensive holding.

Cleveland is expected to make its first appearance against an AFL team a victorious one as the Bills have serious problems at quarterback.

Buffalo's regular quarterback, veteran Jack Kemp, tore ligaments in his right knee in a scrimmage last Monday and will be lost for the season. No. 1 backup man Tom Flores also is on the injured list with a sore passing arm and is ineligible to play.

This means the Bills will go with rookie Dan Darragh and Kay Stephenson, obtained from San Diego Wednesday, at quarterback.

Frank Ryan and Bill Nelsen will be at quarterback for Cleveland, which will have Charley Harraway at halfback in place of the injured Ernie Green.

The Browns go into the game with a 2-1 record, Buffalo at 21-1.

San Diego, 2-2, meets Denver, 1-2, fresh from an upset over the NFL Los Angeles Rams. Denver will have to stop John Hadl, who passed for 300 yards and two touchdowns against the Rams.

With regular quarterback Steve Tensi sidelined with a broken collarbone, John McCormick, attempting a comeback at 31, is expected to start for Denver.

The Jets, who won their last two games after an opening loss, could get some unexpected trouble from a Cincinnati team that was perked up by an upset victory over the NFL Pittsburgh Steelers last weekend.

Cincinnati 1-3, was tough on rushing against Pittsburgh, allowing the Steelers only 29 yards, but the Bengals' main problem against New York will be stopping the passing of Joe Namath. Namath saw his first action last weekend and threw for two touchdowns in a triumph over the NFL Atlanta Falcons.

Saturday's schedule has three interleague games—Baltimore, NFL, at Miami, AFL: Kansas City, AFL, at Los Angeles and Dallas, NFL, at Houston, AFL. New Orleans is at Atlanta and Green Bay takes on Pittsburgh at Milwaukee, Wis., in NFL GAMES Saturday.

Oakland of the AFL plays at NFL San Francisco and Minnesota is at St. Louis in an NFL game Sunday, while Philadelphia, NFL, plays Boston, AFL, at Cambridge, Mass., Monday.

The Minnesota-St. Louis game Sunday night will be televised nationally.

Brock Speeds Up-Takes Four In 5-0 Decision

By The Associated Press

The Pittsburgh Pirates had the right idea but the place for pine tar was on Lou Brock's spikes, not Bob Moose's hand.

Brock stole four bases and the St. Louis Cardinals rapped the Pirates 5-0 Thursday night smacking Moose and his somewhat sticky pitches for four runs and six hits in less than three innings.

The Cards complained that Moose had pine tar on his pitching hand and the umpires ordered him to the dugout in the middle of the third inning to clean his hand. He came back to face four batters, surrender a walk and two singles and leave again—this time for a relief pitcher.

Elsewhere in the National League Thursday, New York shut out Cincinnati 2-0, Atlanta blanked Philadelphia 6-0 and Houston rapped San Francisco 6-1. Chicago and Los Angeles were not scheduled.

In the American League, Chicago shut out New York 1-0, Boston battered Oakland 11-2, Detroit blanked California 2-0, Minnesota shaded Cleveland 3-2 and Washington edged Baltimore 5-4 in 11 innings.

Brock, who scored twice, had a single and four walks. The only time he didn't steal was in the third inning when there were two runners on base in front of him and he had no place to go.

The four thefts gave the Cardinal speedster 41 for the season, just one back of Pittsburgh's Maury Wills, the National League leader.

Brock and Curt Flood walked in the first and scooted home on run-scoring singles by Roger Maris and Tim McCarver. Dal Maxvill and pitcher Ray Washburn singled two more across in the third and Maris' single delivered a wrapup run in the sixth.

Cal Koonce and Ron Taylor combined for a two-hitter against the Reds, giving the Mets their 62nd victory—one more than New York managed all of last season.

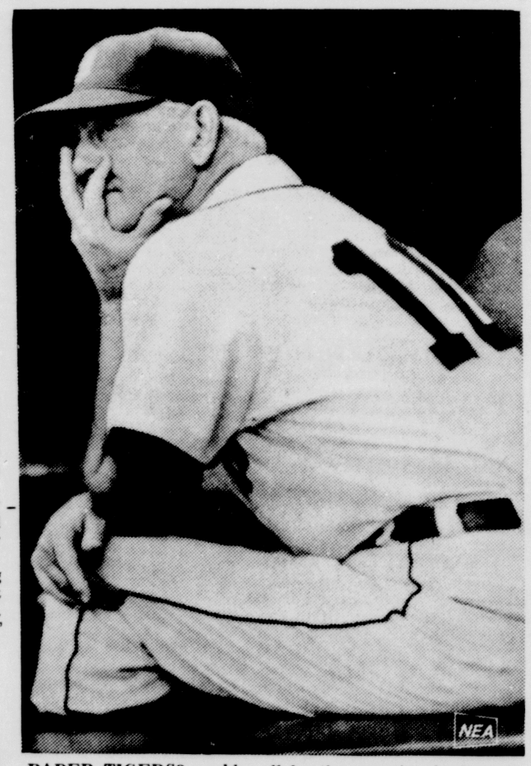

Koonce, making his first start after 45 relief appearances, stymied Cincinnati until the seventh when Taylor took over. Bud Harrelson had three hits for the Mets and Cincinnati's Pete Rose went hitless, ending a 19-game batting streak.

Phil Niekro fired a two-hitter at Philadelphia and Atlanta used home runs by Felipe Alou, Hank Aaron and Deron Johnson to beat the Phillies.

Niekro didn't allow a runner past first base and won his 11th game. Alou and Aaron both homered in the first and Johnson connected in the eighth as the Braves pinned a fifth straight loss on the Phillies.

Houston pounded Juan Marichal for six runs in less than two innings and cruised past the Giants on Dave Giusti's four-hitter.

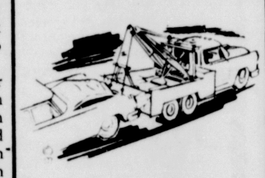

Denis Menke tagged a threerun homer in the first inning and the Astros knocked Marichal out after 1 2-3 innings—the earliest kayo of his career. It was the second straight loss for the Giant right-hander, now 237.

PAPER TIGERS? could well be the question in Detroit manager Mayo Smith's mind as Baltimore, Cleveland and Boston gain in the AL race.

Ex-Ace Spahn Getting His Wish As Manager of a Winning Team

They practically had to drag Warren Spahn screaming and kicking out of the National League when his pitching days ended after the 1965 season.

The still trim 47-year-old Spahn, the winningest left hander in major league history with 363 victories who now manages the Tulsa Oilers, is mum on when he thinks he'll be ready to manage in the majors. He is just as quiet on another subject close to his heart — baseball's Hall of Fame.

There are many who fell Spahn will be voted into Cooperstown in 1971 after the customary five year waiting period.

Spahn, in his second year as Oiler manager in the Eastern Division of the Pacific Coast League, had 13 season in which he won 20 or more games, equaling the great Christy Mathewson's feat and only three behind Cy Young's record 16.

Major league expansion will open more managerial jobs but Spahn wants to look hard before he leaps.

"I'd have to weigh the prospects because those teams are not going to win the first few years," says Spahnie. "I think I'd rather have a front office job with an expansion club than manage one. I would first like to have an offer to consider, but I'm happy where I am."

And where Spahn is happens to be one step away from the majors. Tulsa is the No. 1 farm team of the world champion St. Louis Cardinals.

A. Ray Smith, Oiler owner, believes Spahn will make the Hall of Fame on the first ballot and that he'll manage in the majors.

"He is one of the best," Smith says. "He's smart and he knows the game. He knows how to handle men"

Spahn took the Oilers last year as the team nose-dived from the 1966 league pennant to the cellar. But this year he had the Oilers in first place in midseason.

"I'm doing what I always wanted to do after ending my playing career," says Spahn. "This year we've got a great bunch of kids."

He thinks three pitchers, Mike Torrez, Chuch Taylor and Clay Kirby, have a bright baseball future.

Torrez came to the Oilers after starting with St. Louis and was optioned out to get more work. "When he goes back," says Spahn, "he will be a starter.

"Taylor is the best pitcher we've had this spring. Kirby has just turned 20 and is a fine prospect."

Spahn has strong opinions on the lack of hitting in the majors this year. While blaming the batters he also credits the pitchers.

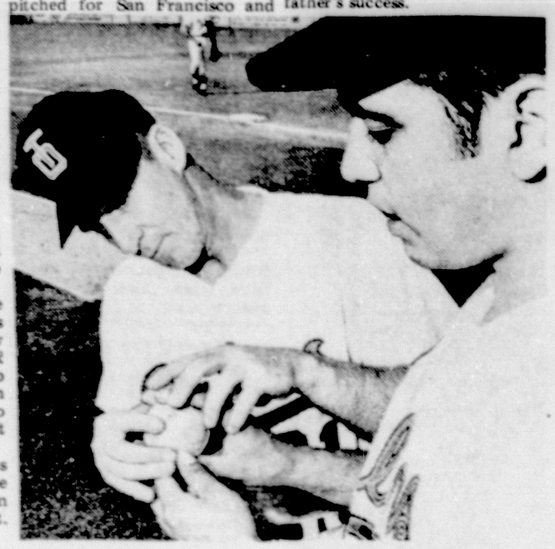

"Early in the year I would have said it was the weather," says Spahn. "But now I'm inclined to say the pitchers have learned their business better than the hitters. Everybody is swinging from their hips, trying to hit the ball out of the park."

Spahn had his great years with the Braves, first in Boston then in Milwaukee. He pitched two nohitters in the twilight of his career which shows 63 shutouts, second only to Eddie Plank's 70.

In 1964 Milwaukee sold him to the Mets. After the Mets put him on waivers in 1965 he pitched for San Francisco and ended the season with a 7-16 record. He still hoped to pitch after the Giants released him.

His comeback as a manager if more for the love of the game than for money. For several years he earned about $80,000 and he now owns a 3,000 acre ranch near Hartshorne in southeastern Oklahoma, his winter home.

Spahn's son, Gregory, is a 20-year-old University of Oklahoma student and plays amateur ball in the aummer. After graduation he would like to follow his father in pro baseball. He has a long way to go if he ever expects to match his father's success.

Comments From Author

NEW YORK (AP)— Bob Gibson, the well known author, politely declined to take a firm stand on such controversial subjects as the National League's Most Valuable Player award or the pitching prize, the Cy Young Award.

"You don't think about such things," he said. "Besides, no one gets both of them, or hardly ever."

But this St. Louis Cardinal giant might. Now breezing along with a won and lost record of 19-6 that includes 11 shutouts, a club record, he seems sure to win the league's pitching honors.

As to Most Valuable Player - "Oh, it could be Curt Flood or Lou Brock or Mike Shannon," said Gibson. All are Cardinals, of course. Flood and Brock are outfielders and Shannon is a third baseman.

Gibson, resplendent in Nehru jacket, blue turtle neck sweater, and a fancy medallion, showed up at a luncheon Thursday to kick off his book, From Ghetto to Glory.

It should be, he said, "helpful to Negro kids in the ghetto providing they can pay for it." The cost is $5.95.

He offered opinions on a variety of subjects:

On the Cardinals' baseball pennant chances noww scandalously in front in the National League-"I think we have a shot at the pennant."

On himself-"The things I've gone through have made me a better person."

On the Cardinals-"We don't have a team with one super-star. We get along like one family."

On the possibility of facing Dennis McLain of the Detroit Tigers in the World Series- "My main concern is to get there."

On his personal problems - "I have a lot of trouble with left-handers."

BOSTON AP- The Boston Celtics announced today the signing of Mal Graham, former New York University backcourt star, for the 1968-69 National Basketball Association season.

In limited action as the Celtics' No. 1 draft choice last season, Graham scored 290 points.

SEATS 9 WITH PLENTY OF ELBOW ROOM!

By Ron Jaynes

The St. Louis football Cardinals announced Wednesday they picked up Wayne Trimble on waivers from the San Francisco 49ers.

Trimble is expected to fill a slot vacated by veteran Jerry Stovall, who the Cardinals place on the injured list. Stovall suffered a thigh bruise in a game with the New York Giants last Sunday.

The Cardinals also announced the release of Clarence Childs, recently obtained in a trade with the Giants, and Bill Wosilius, a reserve linebacker. Rookie running back Don Fitzgerald, from Kent State, was traded to the Philadelphia Eagles.

Starting time is 9 p.m.

Cincinnati, which is in its first year of operation, enters the game with a 13 mark while the Jets are 2-1. The Bengals of Coach Paul Brown, probably pulled the biggest upset of the pre-season inter-league competition when they downed Pittsburgh 19-3.

New York, behind the passing of Joe Namath, who was making his 1968 debut, and the running of Lee White, Matt Snell and Bill Mathis, and a tough defense, whipped Atlanta, 27-12.

Coach Webb Ewbank doesn't plan any changes as he works to get his club finely tuned for regular season play. Ewbank said he would use Namath for the first half and Babe Parilli in the second period.

"Joe looked very sharp (12 of 21 for 140 yards and 2 TD's), especially considering the long layoff," said Ewbank. "We'll work him and Babe each a half so that the both can get their timing down pat."

The Jets defense, which has not allowed a touchdown in the last two games -- Boston scored when it recovered a fumble and Atlanta kicked four field goals -- will be tested by the Bengals' rookie quarterback Dewey Warren. The former Tennessee star threw for 268 yards as he completed 12 of 21 against the Steelers.

Ewbank lauded his defensive unit's play against Atlanta. "We had the sharpest hitting in a long time. The front four put a lot of pressure on the quarterback and our linebackers were hitting hard."

The front four of ends Gerry Philbin and Verlon Biggs and tackles John Elliott and Paul Rochester, bot to the Falcons' quarterbacks four times for losses of 42 and came up with its second safety in two weeks.

Preston Gomez, is not depending on luck to pull him through his first baseball season as manager of the National League San Deigo Padres.

Gomez, a coach for the Los Angeles Dodgers since 1965, was named Thursday to manage the new San Diego franchise. He indicated that youth, speed and the capacity for hard work are the attributes he'll look for in selecting his coaches and players.

"You can't gamble without speed and speed is something we'll need in San Diego Stadium's big ball park," Gomez said.

He's confident the National League expansion draft will provide the speed he seeks.

"I think there'll be some good players available in the draft-especially pitchers. But the main thing is to be strong up the middle of the field," Gomez said.

Gomez, who has a one-year contract at an undisclosed salary, also plans to be particular about the coaches he hires.

"The main thing is a pitching coach," he said, "and I want coaches who are willing to work. We have a teaching job to do."

NFL Pulling For Browns' Victory Over Bills

By The Associated Press

The Cleveland Browns encounter the Buffalo Bills tonight, their first American Football League opposition ever, and the National Football League sorely needs a Browns' victory.

The AFL holds a 10-5 edge over the NFL and needs only two more victories to clinch the interleague, preseason series with eight games remaining, six of them this weekend.

There also are two AFL games on tap tonight—Cincinnati vs. the New York Jets at Memphis, Tenn., and Denver against San Diego at San Antonio, Tex.

The Washington Redskins scored 16 points in the second period and held on for a 16-10 victory over the Detroit Lions in an NFL game at Washington Thursday night.

Jerry Allen ran three yards for the first touchdown and Jim Ninowski passed 25 yards to Jerry Smith. Both touchdowns were set up when the Lions were penalized on third down after Washington drives apparently had stalled.

The Redskins got a safety when linebacker Ed Breding blocked a Jerry DePoyster punt in the end zone.

Detroit, who scored on a 59yard pass from Bill Munson to Earl McCullouch and DePoyster's 37-yard field goal, lost a chance to win when Munson's 39-yard scoring pass to McCullouch late in the final quarter was nullified by offensive holding.

Cleveland is expected to make its first appearance against an AFL team a victorious one as the Bills have serious problems at quarterback.

Buffalo's regular quarterback, veteran Jack Kemp, tore ligaments in his right knee in a scrimmage last Monday and will be lost for the season. No. 1 backup man Tom Flores also is on the injured list with a sore passing arm and is ineligible to play.

This means the Bills will go with rookie Dan Darragh and Kay Stephenson, obtained from San Diego Wednesday, at quarterback.

Frank Ryan and Bill Nelsen will be at quarterback for Cleveland, which will have Charley Harraway at halfback in place of the injured Ernie Green.

San Diego, 2-2, meets Denver, 1-2, fresh from an upset over the NFL Los Angeles Rams. Denver will have to stop John Hadl, who passed for 300 yards and two touchdowns against the Rams.

Engineers Tame River At Caruthersville

CARUTHERSVILLE - The Mississippi River, which used to keep many Delta families stranded on levees for weeks, is becoming tamer each year.

The US Engineers work steadily to control its sometimes erratic behavior, planning such programs as dike construction, ship channel maintenance and erosion control on the river's banks.

Noel Dudley, a construction inspector with the Memphis District of the engineers, said "construction is nearing completion on a series of five stone dikes near Caruthersville. They are a set of several being built along the river to maintain the channel and control flooding."

He said, when completed, about the middle of December, each dike will stretch 2,800 feet across. "There will still be enough room left for a ship channel," Dudley siad.

Dudley said cost of the projects near here will cost about $500,000. The projects began in 1966.

He said the dikes, under construction on the west side of the river, will push the water to the opposite side of the river. This will cause the area behind the dikes to fill with sand and dirt and force the river to dig itself a deeper channel.

ARMED FORCES

FT. BENNING, GA. (AHTNC)--Robert B. Patterson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Patterson, 105 S. Fifth St., Charleston, Mo., a student at Harvard University, Cambridge, Mass., has completed the nation's only basic Army Reserve Officers' Training Corps summer camp at F. Benning, Ga., July 26.

The basic summer camp provides active-duty training in lieu of two years on-campus study, allowing him to enter the advanced ROTC program at the university.

During the six-week encampment, he received intensive training in leadership, rifle marksmanship, physical conditioning and other military subjects.

Upon completion of the advanced ROTC program and graduation from college, he s eligible to be commissioned as a second lieutenant in the U.S. Army.

Cadet patterson is a 1964 graduate of Charleston High School.

Conventions Bear out Odd Political Year

CHICAGO (AP) — What went on at the National Democratic Convention this week fits in with the unpredictable and unusual character that has set down 1968 as the year of the political oddity.

Little has been normal about political '68. Nothing has been predictable except unpredictability—and coincidence. And from the bitter fights over delegate credentials and a Vietnam plank to the naming of a little known Maine senator as its vice presidential candidate, the Democratic convention joined in opposing Republicans in straying from the usual.

When the Republican party nominated Richard M. Nixon as its presidential candidate, some party members said he had a loser's image, that he couldn't win.

When the Democrats nominated Hubert H. Humphrey, again some party members said it was a mistake, that he couldn't win.

They said, too, that Humphrey's foreign policies were inconsistent with the feelings of American voters.

What the nay-sayers neglected to take into account, however, was that in political '68, the will of the voters has been a dubious force so far.

The polls said New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller was the man who could pull in votes most successfully for the Republicans. The polls said Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy was the man most likely to get elected for the Democrats. Yet neither could get elected by his own party.

Within each party, there was bitter dissention. The Republicans had a miniwar over their vice presidential choice. The Democrats fought a bitter battle over a real war in Vietnam.

There were other ironies and oddities to political '68.

Eight years ago, John F. Kennedy's Catholicism became a major issue that dogged him down the campaig trail. If Eugene McCarthy or the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy encountered similar religious prejudice, they did not mention it.

The two principal contenders for the Democratic nomination, Humphrey and McCarthy, both are from Minnesota. The third candidate, Sen. George McGovern, is from South Dakota where Humphrey was born. And while he was in the Senate, Humphrey lived next door to McGovern. Both challengers owed Humphrey a great deal politically.

The two top Republican candidates, Nixon and Rockefeller, are from New York and, in fact, both have apartments in the same big grey stone building on fashionable upper Fifth Avenue.

The two men who finally won the nominations don't live anywhere near each other, but they have worked in the same place. Both have held the office of vice president of the United States.

And both, of course, want to go higher.

Cost of Going to College Still Rising

NEW YORK (AP) — The price of a college education, like the tab for real estate and taxes and a suit of clothes, is going up again this year. Four out of five schools queried in an impartial survey confirm this.

Increases for fall tuition will average from a low of 5 per cent in state colleges to 7 per cent in private men's schools, the survey showed, meaning an average minimum increase in tuition-fees-room-board of $56 to $165.

These figures come from perhaps an unusual source, the Life Insurance Agency Management Association, but they represent a poll of more than 1,000 colleges. Insurance agents like to have such figures in talking up total security plans.

Some hope, however, is offered by another study, this one by the Bureau of Census, whose figures suggest that the investment in education still is one of the best. The young college grad, the bureau figures, will earn $167,000 more than the high school grad before retirement.

The problem for parents who view the expenditure solely as an investment, however, is that they aren't likely to be around to count up the total payoff. Better to consider it a responsibility or a gift.

Here are the results of the insurance agents' study of the costs of tuition, fees and roomboard for colleges throughout the country:

Private men's schools, $1,530 tuition fees, $958 room-board, total $2,488, an increase of $166 or 7 per cent from last year.

Private women's colleges, $1,331 tuition fees, $1,019 roomboard, $2,350 total, an increase of $136 or 6 per cent.

Private coeducational colleges, $1,284 plus $850 for a total of $2,134, an increase of $131 or 7 per cent.

Public colleges, for resident of the state, $332 plus $770, total $1,102, an increase of $56 or 4 per cent. For nonresidents the tuition rises to $769, while other costs remain the same, for a $100 or 7 per cent increase.

Wide variations were found for different parts of the country. In the Northeast the median for men's private colleges will be $2,894 this fall, meaning that one-half the totals will be above and one-half below that figure.

Now this $10,000 or so for four years doesn't cover nearly all the expenses. It is a basic figure, and has nothing to do with transportation, clothing, books, football game tickets, dates and whatever else a student is likely to need money for.

But here's the brighter side. The Bureau of Census released this month the following expected lifetime incomes for young men:

Less than eight years of education, $189,000; elementary school diploma, $247,000; one to three years of high school, $284,000; high school diploma, $341,000; one to three years college, $394,000; college degree, $508,000; and college degree plus a year of postgraduate work, $587,000.

The disparity in incomes between the better educated and the less educated is also growing larger and is likely to continue to do so in the immediate future.

As any good investor knows, there are variables in any situation, many pitfalls that cannot be foreseen. The lifetime incomes, it goes without saying, aren't assured. Junior, after all, could waste everything.

SEC Alters Stance on Stock Tips

NEW YORK (AP) — Recent government moves against the misuse for profit of corporate inside information indicates the government is getting awfully tough to work with or that things are really bad in Wall Street. It could be both.

Inside information, broadly speaking, is private knowledge of corporate affairs that should be public knowledge. Generally it is information which enables a trader to buy or sell in advance of a major change in stock prices.

The classic case involves Texas Gulf Sulphur Co. Knowledge of a big metal ore strike in Ontario, the Securities and Exchange Commission claims, enabled corporate officials and friends to make a stock market killing a few years ago.

But there have been other less publicized charges against insiders and there is little doubt that what reaches the surface is only a part of the picture.

The use of inside information is not an uncommon practice in the securities business. In fact, such information is the goal of securities analysts and the managers of today's big mutual funds, among others.

Now the rules are changing, and the SEC is shouting it out: Corporate information that involves the fortunes of publicly held company should be made available to all shareholders, not to a privileged few.

Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, says the SEC, obtained information through a privileged position with Douglas Aircraft Co. that the firm's earnings were going to be less than had been forecast.

The brokerage house, the SEC said, passed on this information to some of its biggest customers and enabled them to sell before the knowledge became widespread. In addition, it continued to accept orders for the stock from other customers, the SEC said. Merrill Lynch says it is innocent of the charges.

Should these charges be proved by the SEC in a highly publicized case the result could be shattering to the confidence of the nation's 24 million investors. But benefits could accrue also if privilege is eliminated.

Merrill Lynch isn't just another broker. It is everyone's firm and its 1.1 million customers may be found almost everywhere. Its influence is widespread; its reputation shines; its name, in fact, is a household word.

The case is bound to raise doubts about the habits and methods of brokers, for Merrill Lynch has long held a very special position in the investment world. It has a reputation for encouraging and instructing small investors.

This most recent case by the SEC also brings up questions regarding the size, power and influence of instituions such as billion-dollar mutual funds.

In the performance game, which requires that a fund always try to show at any one time better percentage gains than its neighbor, the quest for information, perhaps even inside information, is part of the battle.

It brings up the question also of the close association of corporate executives and large purchasers of the firm's stock. In this day of acquisitions it is necessary to keep high the price of shares, and one way to do this is to court the big funds.

What is it that the corporate executives tell the funds that the funds shouldn't already know through the regular public information channels?

The English poets, Wordsworth, Coleridge and Southey, were called the "lake poets" because they chose to live in the lake district of Cumberland and Westmoreland.

Ambulance Service Rules Out Road Calls

CAPE GIRARDEAU - The Cape County Private Ambulance Service Inc., plans to discontinue only its service "concerning any type of emergency on any road, street or highway," Sept. 10, George F. Rouse, president, said Tuesday.

All other phases will continue on a 24-hour a day basis.

Rouse, in a letter dated Aug. 25, notified the Cape County Court, Jackson and Cape Girardeau city officials and law enforcement agencies and the county sheriff's department of the discontinuance.

Rest assured that this decision has been reached only after much consideration and searching for a way to continue this particular phase of our service," he wrote. "However, the financial cost and the inability to collect the charges for services have forced us to take this action."

He added, "Please be advised that we stand ready at any time to confer on this matter with anyone who may be concerned in order to find a solution to this particular problem."

Rouse, elaborating on the letter Tuesday said in the 4½ months he has been in business he has not been able to collect 85 per cent of the charges arising from ambulance service provided on roads, streets and highways. These were mainly from traffic accidents.

He said he will only reconsider continuing to answer these calls if they can be put on a paying basis. He said constant efforts to collect have been futile.

The service he will continue will be for emergency calls to anywhere off roads, streets or highways. The ambulance firm will also make non-emergency runs.

Engineers Tame River At Caruthersville

CARUTHERSVILLE - The Mississippi River, which used to keep many Delta families stranded on levees for weeks, is becoming tamer each year.

The US Engineers work steadily to control its sometimes erratic behavior, planning such programs as dike construction, ship channel maintenance and erosion control on the river's banks.

Noel Dudley, a construction inspector with the Memphis District of the engineers, said "construction is nearing completion on a series of five stone dikes near Caruthersville. They are a set of several being built along the river to maintain the channel and control flooding."

He said, when completed, about the middle of December, each dike will stretch 2,800 feet across. "There will still be enough room left for a ship channel," Dudley siad.

Dudley said cost of the projects near here will cost about $500,000. The projects began in 1966.

He said the dikes, under construction on the west side of the river, will push the water to the opposite side of the river. This will cause the area behind the dikes to fill with sand and dirt and force the river to dig itself a deeper channel.

Should these charges be proved by the SEC in a highly publicized case the result could be shattering to the confidence of the nation's 24 million investors. But benefits could accrue also if privilege is eliminated.

Merrill Lynch isn't just another broker. It is everyone's firm and its 1.1 million customers may be found almost everywhere. Its influence is widespread; its reputation shines; its name, in fact, is a household word.

The case is bound to raise doubts about the habits and methods of brokers, for Merrill Lynch has long held a very special position in the investment world. It has a reputation for encouraging and instructing small investors.

This most recent case by the SEC also brings up questions regarding the size, power and influence of instituions such as billion-dollar mutual funds.

In the performance game, which requires that a fund always try to show at any one time better percentage gains than its neighbor, the quest for information, perhaps even inside information, is part of the battle.

It brings up the question also of the close association of corporate executives and large purchasers of the firm's stock. In this day of acquisitions it is necessary to keep high the price of shares, and one way to do this is to court the big funds.

What is it that the corporate executives tell the funds that the funds shouldn't already know through the regular public information channels?

The English poets, Wordsworth, Coleridge and Southey, were called the "lake poets" because they chose to live in the lake district of Cumberland and Westmoreland.

Ambulance Service Rules Out Road Calls

CAPE GIRARDEAU - The Cape County Private Ambulance Service Inc., plans to discontinue only its service "concerning any type of emergency on any road, street or highway," Sept. 10, George F. Rouse, president, said Tuesday.

All other phases will continue on a 24-hour a day basis.

Rouse, in a letter dated Aug. 25, notified the Cape County Court, Jackson and Cape Girardeau city officials and law enforcement agencies and the county sheriff's department of the discontinuance.

Rest assured that this decision has been reached only after much consideration and searching for a way to continue this particular phase of our service," he wrote. "However, the financial cost and the inability to collect the charges for services have forced us to take this action."

He added, "Please be advised that we stand ready at any time to confer on this matter with anyone who may be concerned in order to find a solution to this particular problem."

Rouse, elaborating on the letter Tuesday said in the 4½ months he has been in business he has not been able to collect 85 per cent of the charges arising from ambulance service provided on roads, streets and highways. These were mainly from traffic accidents.

He said he will only reconsider continuing to answer these calls if they can be put on a paying basis. He said constant efforts to collect have been futile.

The service he will continue will be for emergency calls to anywhere off roads, streets or highways. The ambulance firm will also make non-emergency runs.

JUST A FEW CENTS A DAY...

It's called the Budget-Master plan -- a life insurance plan for which people age 0-80 may qualify. You can choose the amount, and later select any funeral home you wish.

These plans are important because research indicates that people put only an approximate 3% of their earnings into life insurance. Yet this 3% accounts for a very substantial part of all that most men leave for their families.

Rebellion Divides Party

By BRINEY WELBORN

CHICAGO—There is a specter haunting Chicago, the specter of November.

One need not be a political analyist to see this. One sees it in the countless handmade signs appealing to a 36-year-old senator who has seen more tragedy than most see in three score and 10.

Tuesday, at the Convention, I saw no fewer than 15 Kennedy buttons in a few minutes. Perhaps this does not convert into delegate votes, but it is indicative of a restlessness that cannot be hidden.

Hubert Humphrey may have this convention sewed up, but many delegates are asking, "What will happen in November?"

The statement of Senator Kennedy did not help the atmosphere.

Ted Kennedy is in no position to run for the presidency. He lacks the experience, the age, and the desire to be president in 1968.

This does not mean that there will be no attempt to recover Camelot. Just not this year.

The security tactics are another sign of the situation. In Miami, there was a great deal of enthusiasm for Richard Nixon. This was unquestionably justified. Nixon received at least two thirds of the vote in all of the primaries. He was elected on the first ballot. He was the choice of the Republican party. The enthusiasm was real.

Here, the enthusiasm for Humphrey is not so real. The majority of the delegates are clearly for him, but many of them are worried about his electability.

Assurance of an enthusiastic reception was bought by bringing in many people into the galleries who don't have credentials. This is not necessary. Security is tight, unless you have Mayor Daley's O.K.

Finally, over 40 per cent of this convention, the President's party convention, voted to repudiate the central policy of the President. The last time such a rebellion was attempted was in 1896 over the silver issue. Willian Jennings lost the election.

A lesson was learned. As I heard a Missouri delegate explain it, we have to support the President's policy, because, we did the best we could do, and, if necessary, we must go down with the ship.

One delegate from Ohio said on the shuttle bus from the convention that he felt that Humphrey would at least elect his congressman.

This seems to be the main interest of an awful lot of the men and women who are supposed to be making history. But, by the same token, it is perhaps the one thing that holds the fragile fabric of a national party.

I was involved in a heated discussion on the press platform about the future of these quadrennial spectacles.

Some advocated biannual conventions. Others advocated a national primary.

I fear that both would wreck the two-party system.

Perhaps the convention system may allow Mayor Daley to make a mockery of democracy but only at a convention could Abraham Lincoln have been elected president of the United States.

Delegates Have Run-ins With Chicago Police

CHICAGO (AP) — Police arrested at least two Democratic delegates in antiwar protests Thursday night and took another into custody on the convention floor in a squabble over credentials.

David C. Hoeh, chairman of the New Hampshire delegation, was handcuffed and taken to a police station after he tried a credit card in an electronic machine used to scan credentials for admission to the convention floor.

Thomas D. Frasier, an Oklahoma delegate confined to a wheel chair, was seized by Chicago police in an antiwar march near the downtown lakefront area.

Also appearing in police court early today were a New York delegate and a Washington alternate.

Hoeh, from Hanover, N.H., said convention guards arrested him even after he identified himself. He said glasses were knocked off and the crystal of his watch smashed in a brief scuffle.

The New Hampshire chairman, who was wearing his proper delegate badge, said, "I just wanted to show that the machine would accept a false card, and it did." Hoeh was held up to an hour by police before he was released without charges being filed.

Frasier, a county Democratic chairman from Tulsa, Okla., had joined in an antiwar protest march led by comedian Dick Gregory south of the lakefront hotel row where demonstrators clashed with police in another night of tear gas and bloodshed. Police blocked the march and arrested leades.

LBJ Edges Close to Endorsement

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson, while declaring a hands-off attitude toward the work of the Democratic National Convention, has edged close to an indirect endorsement of Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

Meeting with newsmen at an informal 60th birthday party here Tuesday night, Johnson said he hoped the views of the Democratic and Republican presidential candidates "will not be too divergent" so the world won't have to wait until the November election to assess the nation's future course.

With Vietnam and foreign policy obviously uppermost in his mind, Johnson's statement was widely interpreted as meaning he would prefer a Humphrey nomination—though he carefully had some kind words, too, for the vice president's principal rivals, Sens. Eugene J. McCarthy and George McGovern.

Republican nominee Richard M. Nixon is on record with Vietnam views much closer to those of Johnson and Humphrey than either McCarthy or McGovern.

The President passed up a chance to fly to Chicago for a birthday salute at the convention. But he said he might go later—after candidates have been nominated.

The presidential nominating is set for Wednesday, the vice presidential selecting for Thursday.

Then the First Family flew to the LBJ Ranch, 65 miles west, where they were joined by their other daughter, Lynda Robb, for a country-style birthday dinner topped off by homemade peach ice cream and angel food cake.

Both Johnson sons-in-law are on active duty in Vietnam and the President, after being asked to state one birthday wish, said:

"I guess I'd like for all of our boys to be able to lay down their arms and come home and live in dignity without fear."

As his 13-month-old grandson romped at his feet, Johnson remarked that it would have been wonderful had the child's father, Airman Patrick J. Nugent, been at leave Vietnam behind and join the rest of the family.

Talking about the Democratic convention, Johnson said he'd been watching it on television and found it exciting and generally pleasing. Democrats don't always think alike, he said, but he predicted party harmony once the job of the nominating parley is completed.

As for his own convention role, he said he had none—that he had no emissaries in Chicago, was receiving no private reports from the convention city and did not intend to get involved.

Johnson bowed in the direction of McCarthy and McGovern by saying they shared his domestic policy views and that, on their voting record, were with him in foreign policy, too. But he acknowledged that the two senators, in their campaign utterances, had been challenging his foreign policy.

Johnson said that never in his career had he ever tried to drum up sentiment for any particular individual to succeed him in any office he's ever held.

Rebellion Divides Party

Editor's Note: This is another of a series written by Briney Welborn of Bloomfield from the Democratic National Convention in Chicago.

By BRINEY WELBORN

CHICAGO—There is a specter haunting Chicago, the specter of November.

One need not be a political analyist to see this. One sees it in the countless handmade signs appealing to a 36-year-old senator who has seen more tragedy than most see in three score and 10.

Tuesday, at the Convention, I saw no fewer than 15 Kennedy buttons in a few minutes. Perhaps this does not convert into delegate votes, but it is indicative of a restlessness that cannot be hidden.

Hubert Humphrey may have this convention sewed up, but many delegates are asking, "What will happen in November?"

The statement of Senator Kennedy did not help the atmosphere.

Ted Kennedy is in no position to run for the presidency. He lacks the experience, the age, and the desire to be president in 1968.

This does not mean that there will be no attempt to recover Camelot. Just not this year.

The security tactics are another sign of the situation. In Miami, there was a great deal of enthusiasm for Richard Nixon. This was unquestionably justified. Nixon received at least two thirds of the vote in all of the primaries. He was elected on the first ballot. He was the choice of the Republican party. The enthusiasm was real.

Here, the enthusiasm for Humphrey is not so real. The majority of the delegates are clearly for him, but many of them are worried about his electability.

Assurance of an enthusiastic reception was bought by bringing in many people into the galleries who don't have credentials. This is not necessary. Security is tight, unless you have Mayor Daley's O.K.

Finally, over 40 per cent of this convention, the President's party convention, voted to repudiate the central policy of the President. The last time such a rebellion was attempted was in 1896 over the silver issue. Willian Jennings lost the election.

A lesson was learned. As I heard a Missouri delegate explain it, we have to support the President's policy, because, we did the best we could do, and, if necessary, we must go down with the ship.

One delegate from Ohio said on the shuttle bus from the convention that he felt that Humphrey would at least elect his congressman.

This seems to be the main interest of an awful lot of the men and women who are supposed to be making history. But, by the same token, it is perhaps the one thing that holds the fragile fabric of a national party.

I was involved in a heated discussion on the press platform about the future of these quadrennial spectacles.

Some advocated biannual conventions. Others advocated a national primary.

I fear that both would wreck the two-party system.

Perhaps the convention system may allow Mayor Daley to make a mockery of democracy but only at a convention could Abraham Lincoln have been elected president of the United States.

Delegates Have Run-ins With Chicago Police

CHICAGO (AP) — Police arrested at least two Democratic delegates in antiwar protests Thursday night and took another into custody on the convention floor in a squabble over credentials.

David C. Hoeh, chairman of the New Hampshire delegation, was handcuffed and taken to a police station after he tried a credit card in an electronic machine used to scan credentials for admission to the convention floor.

Thomas D. Frasier, an Oklahoma delegate confined to a wheel chair, was seized by Chicago police in an antiwar march near the downtown lakefront area.

Also appearing in police court early today were a New York delegate and a Washington alternate.

Hoeh, from Hanover, N.H., said convention guards arrested him even after he identified himself. He said glasses were knocked off and the crystal of his watch smashed in a brief scuffle.

The New Hampshire chairman, who was wearing his proper delegate badge, said, "I just wanted to show that the machine would accept a false card, and it did." Hoeh was held up to an hour by police before he was released without charges being filed.

Frasier, a county Democratic chairman from Tulsa, Okla., had joined in an antiwar protest march led by comedian Dick Gregory south of the lakefront hotel row where demonstrators clashed with police in another night of tear gas and bloodshed. Police blocked the march and arrested leades.

LBJ Edges Close to Endorsement

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson, while declaring a hands-off attitude toward the work of the Democratic National Convention, has edged close to an indirect endorsement of Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

Meeting with newsmen at an informal 60th birthday party here Tuesday night, Johnson said he hoped the views of the Democratic and Republican presidential candidates "will not be too divergent" so the world won't have to wait until the November election to assess the nation's future course.

With Vietnam and foreign policy obviously uppermost in his mind, Johnson's statement was widely interpreted as meaning he would prefer a Humphrey nomination—though he carefully had some kind words, too, for the vice president's principal rivals, Sens. Eugene J. McCarthy and George McGovern.

Republican nominee Richard M. Nixon is on record with Vietnam views much closer to those of Johnson and Humphrey than either McCarthy or McGovern.

The President passed up a chance to fly to Chicago for a birthday salute at the convention. But he said he might go later—after candidates have been nominated.

The presidential nominating is set for Wednesday, the vice presidential selecting for Thursday.

Then the First Family flew to the LBJ Ranch, 65 miles west, where they were joined by their other daughter, Lynda Robb, for a country-style birthday dinner topped off by homemade peach ice cream and angel food cake.

Both Johnson sons-in-law are on active duty in Vietnam and the President, after being asked to state one birthday wish, said:

"I guess I'd like for all of our boys to be able to lay down their arms and come home and live in dignity without fear."

As his 13-month-old grandson romped at his feet, Johnson remarked that it would have been wonderful had the child's father, Airman Patrick J. Nugent, been at [illegible] leave Vietnam behind and join the rest of the family.

Talking about the Democratic convention, Johnson said he'd been watching it on television and found it exciting and generally pleasing. Democrats don't always think alike, he said, but he predicted party harmony once the job of the nominating parley is completed.

As for his own convention role, he said he had none—that he had no emissaries in Chicago, was receiving no private reports from the convention city and did not intend to get involved.

Johnson bowed in the direction of McCarthy and McGovern by saying they shared his domestic policy views and that, on their voting record, were with him in foreign policy, too. But he acknowledged that the two senators, in their campaign utterances, had been challenging his foreign policy.

Johnson said that never in his career had he ever tried to drum up sentiment for any particular individual to succeed him in any office he's ever held.

Agnew Believes Demos Will Patch Split

The Maryland governor, who kept up with the convention while resting at this Atlantic Ocean resort, toid newsmen Thursday he believed Democrats would be able to heal the split brought about by the dispute over Vietnam.

"If the Republican ticket is going to win, it's going to be on basis of what we do, not what they do," he said.

Agnew was critical of both police and peace demonstrators involved in disorders at Chicago during the Democratic convention.

He said many of the demonstrators "are not fine young people, but are professional troublemakers" who set out to disrupt the convention and to deprive others of their civil rights.

But Agnew said this was no excuse for "what I would have to term to be, to some extent, an overreaction of the Chicago police."

Agnew Believes Demos Will Patch Split

The Maryland governor, who kept up with the convention while resting at this Atlantic Ocean resort, told newsmen Thursday he believed Democrats would be able to heal the split brought about by the dispute over Vietnam.

"If the Republican ticket is going to win, it's going to be on basis of what we do, not what they do," he said.

Agnew was critical of both police and peace demonstrators involved in disorders at Chicago during the Democratic convention.

He said many of the demonstrators "are not fine young people, but are professional troublemakers" who set out to disrupt the convention and to deprive others of their civil rights.

But Agnew said this was no excuse for "what I would have to term to be, to some extent, an overreaction of the Chicago police."

Vogel Heads Republicans Committee

Raymond H. Vogel, Cape Girardeau lawyer, who two weeks ago was elected Cape County Republican chairman, was elected as his party's 10th District chairman. He succeeds Gary Rust, Cape Girardeau businessman, in both the county and district offices.

Other Republican district officers elected were vice chairman, Mrs. Rolla Fraley of Oregon County; secretary, Mrs. Edna Eads of St. Francois County and treasurer, Frank Brown of Dunklin County.

State committeemen elected were Rust, Joe Scott of Poplar Bluff and Ivan Forshee of Leadwood. State committeewomen are Mrs. Hannah Amyx of Willow Springs, Mrs. Geneva Graham of Bollinger country, and Mrs. Dorothy Burford of Ripley county.

Rust and Mrs. Amyx are new to the state committee, succeeding Frank Carter of Mississippi County and Mrs. Gladys Stiver of Cape Girardeau, respectively, Mrs. Stiver did not seek re-election to the committee.

There were contests in the Republican meeting for the chairman's post and for the state committee slots.

Vogel was opposed by Newt Brill of Howell county.

Other nominees for committeemen were Carter and Brill while Mrs. Lowell Stephens of Advance was a nominee for committeewoman.

A representative of Rep. Thomas B. Curtis, Republican candidate for U.S. senator, appeared before the GOP committee and announced the candidate's Southeast Missouri intinerary for the coming campaign. It will include an appearance in Cape Girardeau Sept. 11.

Also appearing before the committee were Vernon H. Landgraf of Cape Girardeau, Republican candidate for Congress, and his campaign manager, Byron Mercer.

Rust, as outgoing chairman, presided. He had served one term as district chairman and two as county chairman.

Multiple Breaks In Bearden's Legs

Bearden had both legs placed in casts after surgery and is reported to have at least 12 breaks in one leg and three on the other.

He was the victim of an attempted slaying in Charleston, Monday night when a bomb was placed under the hood of his car. It exploded when he turned the ignition switch to start the auto.

Mississippi County Sheriff Pedro Simmons said an investigation had produced no evidence or leads on who might have placed the bomb in Bearden's car.

The bomb apparently was placed in Bearden's car while he visited friends in Charleston.

James New Dunklin Party Chairman

MALDEN—S. H. (Smokey) James of Clarkton was elected as the new chairman of the Dunklin county Democratic committee at its first meeting since the primary election last Thursday night.

James has served on the committee from Freeborn Township 14 years. He succeeds Lonnie Kinchen of Kennett, who resigned as committeeman from Clay township because he and his family moved to Kennett recently.

Other officers elected were Mrs. Charles Cable of Senath, vice chairman; Margaret Dirks Baker of Kennett, treasurer.

Cruise Ship Tourists Discover Mexican Coast

By DICK KLEINER
NEA Hollywood Correspondent

LOS ANGELES—(NEA)—The West Coast is suffering from an acute shortage of islands. If that little problem can be solved, the business of cruising out of Los Angeles is in for a major boom.

Even without the islands, cruises are growing. A few years ago, the only passenger boats operating out of the Port of Los Angeles were the Matson liners to Hawaii and the ferry to Catalina. But by next winter there are expected to be eight cruise ships using Los Angeles as a home port.

Compared to the East Coast, this is only a drop in the ocean. Fifty to 100 ships cruise out of New York and Miami, but Los Angeles is just starting.

The problem has always been—no place to go. Hawaii is a bit too far, the South Seas are out of the question and the Aleutians offer little in the way of recreational facilities.

A MARIACHI BAND greets happy passengers at dockside at the Port of Los Angeles as they come ashore from the cruise ship Princess Italia.

What has happened lately is the discovery that the ports along Mexico's West Coast—which cruise operators are trying to rename glamorously La Costa De Oro, or the Gold Coast — has an appeal. Acapulco is the prime port-target, but ships are now putting in at Puerto Vallarta, Mazatlan, Manzanillo and La Paz, at the southern tip of Baja California.

The Mexican National Tourist Council and the Mexican government—as well as various Mexican state governments—are eager to encourage this trend. Mexico has co-operated with the Princess Cruise group in building piers at various ports that didn't have facilities for docking a big liner.

Max Linder, Princess' executive vice-president, says that his company is working now with Mexico to open up other ports—notably a sleepy, picturesque village called Zihuatanejo, which he thinks will be the Puerto Vallarta of the future.

At the moment, Princess is operating only the beautiful, one-year-old Italia. But a new Italian-built liner will be added next December, another new vessel is set for 1970 and they expect to wind up with a fleet of five by 1973.

Next winter, the Holland-American line will cruise the Statendam out of Los Angeles to Mexico. The Jason will also ply the same waters. And four other ships have announced tentative plans to join the growing cruise armada.

Princess' officials see a great future for Los Angeles-based cruises. They are now investigating the possibility of operating to Central America —Costa Rica, primarily, but perhaps also Guatemala, El Salvador and Nicaragua. Already they have scheduled the Italia for several trips through the Panama Canal to the Caribbean, where there are plenty of islands. And by a year from now they hope to begin regular cruise service to Alaskan waters.

Eventually, they even hope to have cruises to the South Seas. There is, they believe, enough money in West Coast pockets to afford such luxury.

The clients for these trips are not only southern Californians. They are finding plenty of eager buyers in the Southwest (Arizona and New Mexico) and along the northern California and Pacific Northwest coasts. They are advertising as far east as Chicago.

The only thing missing is a destination for a short cruise. Acapulco is 3½ days away, so it is possible to make it in a week with a quick turnaround. But there is nothing comparable to Bermuda or Nassau, out of New York.

For cruise addicts, though, the destination is almost secondary to the trip itself. At the moment, the Italia is handling this part of the voyage beautifully. She is a slim, trim vessel, but almost too modern.

The air conditioning is so good some passengers catch cold. And the deck is treated with an antiskid substance which works so well that they can't play shuffleboard.

Wall Reveals Historic Past

By RODNEY PINDER
Associated Press Writer

JERUSALEM (AP) — Exactly a year to the day after Israeli paratroopers seized the holy Wailing Wall and the rest of Jerusalem from Jordan, a team of enthusiastic Hebrew University archaeologists made an exciting find beneath the wall's time-worn face.

Far below the rubble of 2,000 years of battles and conquest around the wall they discovered a pavement built by King Herod to lead to the platform of his fabulous and revered second Jewish temple.

Herod's temple rose 200 years before Christ on the sacred Mount Moriah in the old Holy City.

Herod's temple was razed by the triumphant Roman Titus in 70 A.D. to mark his victory over the rebellious Jews. The best preserved part to the present day was the Western Wall — the Wailing Wall.

Soon after the 1967 Israeli-Arab war Professor Benjamin Mazar, 61, one of Israel's most noted archaeologists and historians, started to dig around the foot of the Southern Temple Wall which runs at right angles to the Wailing Wall.

Twenty foreign volunteers worked in his team of 120, and one of them — a girl from London — helped shift the last layers of soil which covered the pavement.

Sylvia Nisbeth, who owns a ceramic shop in Brompton Road in London's chic Knightsbridge district, was working late June 6 with Johana Mizrahi, an Israeli workman.

Mazar described the discovery:

"The pavement is of large slabs, beautifully carved in gray Jerusalem stone, measuring almost two yards by one yard and weighing about three-fourths of a ton each.

"Over it lie great boulders and charred wood — debris from the destruction wrought by Titus.

"There are a considerable number of coins dating from the first century after Christ, some minted during the Jewish rebellion against Rome. There are also pieces of pottery and lamps — all unbelievably well preserved."

The pavement was part of a broad plaza leading to the temple platform. It was from a double gate on this side of the wall that worshippers entered the temple compound.

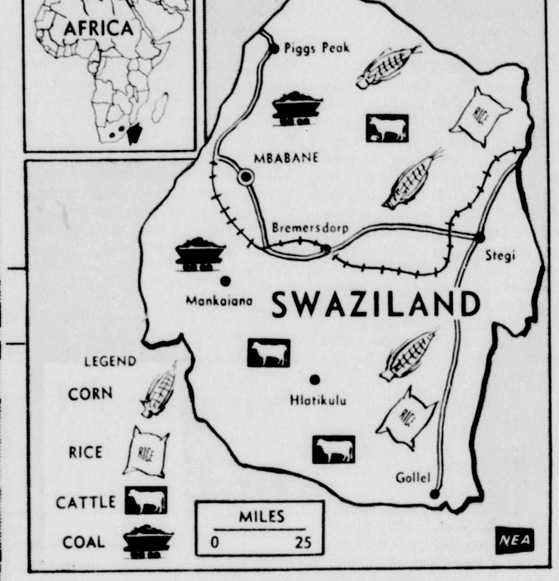

Inside the compound now are two mosques: the Dome of the Rock — a magnificent mosque built around a rock from which the prophet Mohammed is said to have ascended to Heaven — and the Aksa Mosque, considered to have been a basilica built in honor of St. Mary by Justinian in 536 A.D., then claimed and converted by Moslems.

The Southern Wall now exposed is 90 feet high, including additions throughout the centuries. The dig went down 30 feet from ground level and through 13 layers of occupation.

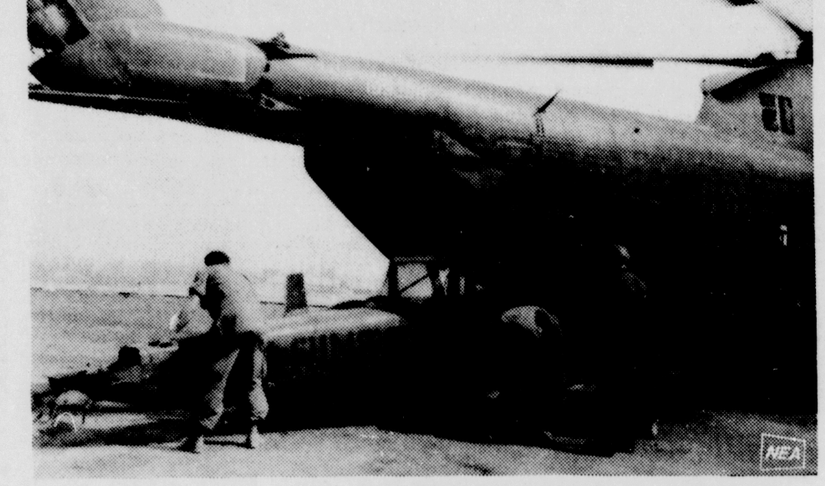

The archaeologists now plan to extend their work farther along the Southern Wall and alongside the Wailing Wall. They believe much more remains to be found.

Swaziland, the last relic of Britain's once vast African colonial empire, gains its independence Sept. 6. The small, land-locked country seems assured of a right-wing one-party government for at least the immediate future. The 400,000 inhabitants are virtually all members of the Swazi tribe, with a white minority numbering about 9,000 persons.

THE BEFORE AND AFTER OF A SECONDHAND SUITCASE

With the gypsy in your soul, you and your sleek red, shining, white-piped, vinyl covered suitcase are going places . . .

Motoring down to the country for a weekend, tote along a flower printed suitcase. Checking into a city hotel, let the bellhop carry your trim piece of striped luggage. Bouncing around another continent, go lightly with an off-beat plaid bag. Luggage is a fashion accessory. How well does your luggage live up to the rest of your travel wardrobe?

Smart Slipcovering with Vinyl

If you have an unmatchable assortment of begged, borrowed and hand-me-down suitcases, do what Cinderella's "Fairy Godmother" did to the pumpkin. Change them into a smart set of coordinated pieces. It is simply a matter of slipcovering an old suitcase with a colorful piece of vinyl fabric. In addition to the vinyl and a sewing machine, you will need piping for trim, metal slipcover and jacket zippers and "Heavy Duty" sewing thread. Make one of the covers with a pocket on the side to hold an umbrella. The possibility of dressing a suitcase in a removable cover lets you change your luggage wardrobe to match your outfit and the season. Instructions are free. Just send your request for "Vinyl Suitcase Cover" leaflet to the sewing editor of this newspaper along with a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Sew as You Go

Before you commence your journey, here are a few sewing tips to send you away looking as fresh as your suitcase and to keep you from fraying around the edges in transit. Give your travel wardrobe a careful once-over with needle and thread. Look for loose buttons, missing snaps, pulled out belt loops, hanging hems and open seams. Take along a sewing kit for emergency repairs. This should contain needles, straight and safety pins, scissors, thread in basic colors, iron-on seam binding and even an extra skirt zipper. It is more fun to be a jet setter than a stowaway.

Acapulco is the prime port-target, but ships are now putting in at Puerto Vallarta, Mazatlan, Manzanillo and La Paz, at the southern tip of Baja California.

A MARIACHI BAND greets happy passengers at dockside at the Port of Los Angeles as they come ashore from the cruise ship Princess Italia.

The Mexican National Tourist Council and the Mexican government—as well as various Mexican state governments—are eager to encourage this trend. Mexico has co-operated with the Princess Cruise group in building piers at various ports that didn't have facilities for docking a big liner.

Max Linder, Princess' executive vice-president, says that his company is working now with Mexico to open up other ports—notably a sleepy, picturesque village called Zihuatanejo, which he thinks will be the Puerto Vallarta of the future.

At the moment, Princess is operating only the beautiful, one-year-old Italia. But a new Italian-built liner will be added next December, another new vessel is set for 1970 and they expect to wind up with a fleet of five by 1973.

Next winter, the Holland-American line will cruise the Statendam out of Los Angeles to Mexico. The Jason will also ply the same waters. And four other ships have announced tentative plans to join the growing cruise armada.

Princess' officials see a great future for Los Angeles-based cruises. They are now investigating the possibility of operating to Central America—Costa Rica, primarily, but perhaps also Guatemala, El Salvador and Nicaragua. Already they have scheduled the Italia for several trips through the Panama Canal to the Caribbean, where there are plenty of islands. And by a year from now they hope to begin regular cruise service to Alaskan waters.

Eventually, they even hope to have cruises to the South Seas. There is, they believe, enough money in West Coast pockets to afford such luxury.

The clients for these trips are not only southern Californians. They are finding plenty of eager buyers in the Southwest (Arizona and New Mexico) and along the northern California and Pacific Northwest coasts. They are advertising as far east as Chicago.

The only thing missing is a destination for a short cruise. Acapulco is 3½ days away, so it is possible to make it in a week with a quick turnaround. But there is nothing comparable to Bermuda or Nassau, out of New York.

For cruise addicts, though, the destination is almost secondary to the trip itself. At the moment, the Italia is handling this part of the voyage beautifully. She is a slim, trim vessel, but almost too modern.

The air conditioning is so good some passengers catch cold. And the deck is treated with an antiskid substance which works so well that they can't play shuffleboard.

Wall Reveals Historic Past

By RODNEY PINDER
Associated Press Writer

JERUSALEM (AP) — Exactly a year to the day after Israeli paratroopers seized the holy Wailing Wall and the rest of Jerusalem from Jordan, a team of enthusiastic Hebrew University archaeologists made an exciting find beneath the wall's time-worn face.

Far below the rubble of 2,000 years of battles and conquest around the wall they discovered a pavement built by King Herod to lead to the platform of his fabulous and revered second Jewish temple.

Herod's temple rose 200 years before Christ on the sacred Mount Moriah in the old Holy City.

Herod's temple was razed by the triumphant Roman Titus in 70 A.D. to mark his victory over the rebellious Jews. The best preserved part to the present day was the Western Wall — the Wailing Wall.

Soon after the 1967 Israeli-Arab war Professor Benjamin Mazar, 61, one of Israel's most noted archaeologists and historians, started to dig around the foot of the Southern Temple Wall which runs at right angles to the Wailing Wall.

Twenty foreign volunteers worked in his team of 120, and one of them — a girl from London — helped shift the last layers of soil which covered the pavement.

Sylvia Nisbeth, who owns a ceramic shop in Brompton Road in London's chic Knightsbridge district, was working late June 6 with Johana Mizrahi, an Israeli workman.

Mazar described the discovery:

"The pavement is of large slabs, beautifully carved in gray Jerusalem stone, measuring almost two yards by one yard and weighing about three-fourths of a ton each.

"Over it lie great boulders and charred wood — debris from the destruction wrought by Titus.

"There are a considerable number of coins dating from the first century after Christ, some minted during the Jewish rebellion against Rome. There are also pieces of pottery and lamps — all unbelievably well preserved."

The pavement was part of a broad plaza leading to the temple platform. It was from a double gate on this side of the wall that worshippers entered the temple compound.

Inside the compound now are two mosques: the Dome of the Rock — a magnificent mosque built around a rock from which the prophet Mohammed is said to have ascended to Heaven — and the Aksa Mosque, considered to have been a basilica built in honor of St. Mary by Justinian in 536 A.D., then claimed and converted by Moslems.

The Southern Wall now exposed is 90 feet high, including additions throughout the centuries. The dig went down 30 feet from ground level and through 13 layers of occupation.

The archaeologists now plan to extend their work farther along the Southern Wall and alongside the Wailing Wall. They believe much more remains to be found.

ARCHAEOLOGISTS AT WORK in the southern corner of the ancient Southern Temple Wall. In the background is the Aska Mosque, which is considered to date from 536 A.D.

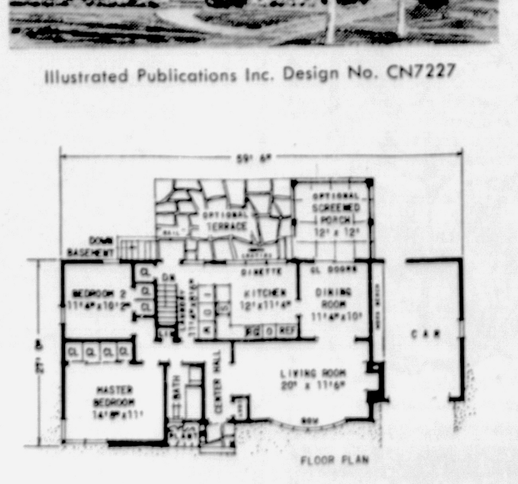

Swaziland, the last relic of Britain's once vast African colonial empire, gains its independence Sept. 6. The small, land-locked country seems assured of a right-wing one-party government for at least the immediate future. The 400,000 inhabitants are virtually all members of the Swazi tribe, with a white minority numbering about 9,000 persons.

"HUNGRY HELICOPTER" seems to be devouring a smaller craft. Actually, a damaged Marine spotter aircraft is being "fed" into the cavernous interior of a giant Sea Stallion helicopter at the Dong Ha airstrip in Vietnam. The Sea Stallion, largest helicopter in the Marine inventory, easily air-lifted the smaller craft to a repair facility near Da Nang.

HINTS FOR TEENAGERS

...From your Sewing Editor

THE BEFORE AND AFTER OF A SECONDHAND SUITCASE

With the gypsy in your soul, you and your sleek red, shining, white-piped, vinyl covered suitcase are going places . . .

Motoring down to the country for a weekend, tote along a flower printed suitcase. Checking into a city hotel, let the bellhop carry your trim piece of striped luggage. Bouncing around another continent, go lightly with an off-beat plaid bag. Luggage is a fashion accessory. How well does your luggage live up to the rest of your travel wardrobe?

Smart Slipcovering with Vinyl

If you have an unmatchable assortment of begged, borrowed and hand-me-down suitcases, do what Cinderella's "Fairy Godmother" did to the pumpkin. Change them into a smart set of coordinated pieces. It is simply a matter of slipcovering an old suitcase with a colorful piece of vinyl fabric. In addition to the vinyl and a sewing machine, you will need piping for trim, metal slipcover and jacket zippers and "Heavy Duty" sewing thread. Make one of the covers with a pocket on the side to hold an umbrella. The possibility of dressing a suitcase in a removable cover lets you change your luggage wardrobe to match your outfit and the season. Instructions are free. Just send your request for "Vinyl Suitcase Cover" leaflet to the sewing editor of this newspaper along with a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Sew as You Go

Before you commence your journey, here are a few sewing tips to send you away looking as fresh as your suitcase and to keep you from fraying around the edges in transit. Give your travel wardrobe a careful once-over with needle and thread. Look for loose buttons, missing snaps, pulled out belt loops, hanging hems and open seams. Take along a sewing kit for emergency repairs. This should contain needles, straight and safety pins, scissors, thread in basic colors, iron-on seam binding and even an extra skirt zipper. It is more fun to be a jet setter than a stowaway.

Priest Likes Life Away From Parish

NEW YORK (AP) — Three years ago, Father Joseph Pintauro was celebrating Mass in his Brooklyn parish.

Two years ago, after a brief fling as a caterer's assistant, he was writing television commercials for a Fifth Avenue advertising agency.

This year, the 37-year-old priest is the author of rapidly selling book, "To Believe in God," and has left his advertising job to devote full time to writing.

"The priest needs more than an existence as a sacred cow," said the slightly built Father Pintauro, who has substituted a smartly tailored suit and wide, patterned tie or comfortable dungarees and moccasins for his clerical collar.

Father Pintauro's leave of absence from his parish and liturgical duties was granted on Aug. 16, 1966, the day bishops were given the right to make decisions on priestly vocations.

He talks animatedly about the changing role of the Church. Often his conversation turns to his new experiences in the secular world—new friends, his garden, guitar playing and Manhattan's East Side.

"It's like leaving one country and going to another," said the native New Yorker, speaking about leaving his parish. "I feel like I'm in Sydney, Australia."

Easy-going and quick-witted, Father Pintauro hardly appears the angry young man of the Church, and he has little patience with people who ask why he is a "failure" as a priest. He sees himself as setting a precedent, but stresses that everything he has done was with the approval of his Roman Catholic superiors.

"The priesthood is getting its greatest challenge in history," said Father Pintauro, who praises the late Pope John XXIII and Vatican II for prompting "the mingling of the secular and spiritual worlds."

"It's unfair to a priest to be burdened with a reputation of angelic perfection, which is an absurd denial of humanity with all its drives," he said.

Too many people in the Church, he said, are so concerned with experiencing the love of God, that they are missing the "fundamental experience of the love of man that will teach us what love really is. There is a priesthood of all men. Each man has his own magic, which is his own sacrament."

"That's what my book is about," the long-haired priest explained. "It's my own expression of human love."

Father Pintauro said he doesn't expect to return to parish life, nor does he visit his Brooklyn parish.

"I can't go back; it would blow their minds," said the priest, who feels most comfortable attending Mass in Greenwich Village.

Blonde Can't Collect For Wrong Rinse

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Milly was living proof that blonde's have more fun. A real beauty, her primary desire in life was to remain a blonde and to continue to have all that fun. Consequently, when she had her hair rinsed in a beauty parlor one day, she became absolutely horrified when her hair turned jet black. It seemed, for some unknown and revolting reason, the rinse had produced a reverse reaction.

Gasping as she looked at a mirror on a wall, Milly no longer saw herself as the fairest one of all and sued the owner of the beauty parlor for damages.

"For the two weeks it took to have my hair color restored," she complained in court, "I was one blonde gentlemen didn't prefer. It was the most miserable and humilating two weeks I ever spent."

"The situation was unfortunate," conceded the owner of the beauty parlor, "but Milly can't collect any damages since she didn't suffer any. When we got done with her, she was as light-headed as she ever was."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit Milly to collect for her "dark" period?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that while the results of the rinse were not quite what Milly had expected, there was no evidence that her hair had in any way been damaged; that since her hair had not been damaged, she had not been damaged. Therefore, she is not entitled to be paid.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: This girl Marge is the best thing that ever happened to me. Last year I wanted to quit high school in my senior year and stay on at the job I worked Christmas vacation. The pay was good and I hated to give up the steady money. Marge made me see that I had to go back to school and now I am glad I did. She's really a great girl, Ann.

Here's the problem. This evening she told me we were through. It seems that during lunch hour she saw me riding around with a girl. So help me, Ann, I wasn't riding around with a girl. It was a guy. He's one of those flower kids who likes to wear his hair kind of long, and with the beads and all that, I can see how she made the mistake.

I offered to bring the guy over and introduce her but she said not to put myself out. Please tell me what to do. I can't lose Marge. -- LOVE HER

Dear Love: Bring the flower kid over and introduce him to Marge-- beads and all. That will settle it. I can't understand why she doubted your story. Nowadays when I see long hair and beads, I just assume it's a boy.

Dear Ann Landers: I should be washing my dishes but here I am writing to you because what I have to say won't wait.

That woman who wrote to complain about her husband's sex drive (she called him a dead battery) got me mad. I wonder if it has occurred to her that maybe she is the one who is to blame. Does she nag him to pick up his things, get his feet off the furniture, get his junk out of the den? Does she complain about how hard she works all day, how difficult the kids are to manage ALONE, how prices are going up and what a hard time she has trying to stretch the paycheck? I know the type, Ann. I see them every week at bridge club.

If these women would stop complaining and give their hubbies a few compliments in front of the kids once in a while, offer to shampoo the guy's hair and be sweet and loving they might discover that the "dead battery" wasn't dead at all, it just needed re-charging. ---HAZEL NUTS.

Dear Hazel: You're not nuts, dearie. You're a smart girl. Thanks for sharing the wisdom.

Dear Ann Landers: Several weeks ago my mother's college friend came to visit for a weekend and she brought along her 16-year-old daughter. (I am a boy 17.) We got quite friendly but didn't do anything we are ashamed of, if you know what I mean. We kissed several times and that was about it.

Yesterday my mother got a letter saying Linda Sue has mononucleosis. I have heard this is a highly contagious disease. How come I didn't get it? -MR. QUESTION MARK.

Dear Mr.: Just lucky, I guess.

Confidential To No Baby But Treated Like One: Sorry, but a 13-year-old girl who must be told to wash her neck, clean out the bathtub and sew a rip in her blouse sounds pretty babyish to me. The best way to get your mother to treat you like an adult is to behave like one.

How will you know when the real thing comes along? Ask Ann Landers. Send for her booklet "Love Or Sex And How To Tell The Difference." Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Couple Gives up Keeping House In County Jail

PALMYRA, Mo. (AP)—Two year's residence in the sheriff's quarters at Marion County jail is ending this week for Sheriff Wes Bross and his petite wife Thawana.

The sheriff's 4-foot-9, 80-pound wife has had a busy schedule. She's taken and relayed messages for her husband, typed records, helped with statements taken from prisoners, and tended the normal domestic tasks of a household.

Bross, sheriff since 1960, resigned the position this week and he and his wife are moving to Florida where he will take a sales position. R. J. Rothweiler has been appointed acting sheriff to serve until a successor is elected in November and qualifies for office in January.

When Thawana and Bross were married two years ago she moved into the old Marion County jail, a brick structure built in 1858. Still on the bricks at the front corner of the building are marks said to have been made by bayonets of Civil War soldiers guarding prisoners in the jail during the war.

During a normal day while Thawana and her husband have lived in the quarters three different people prepared meals in her kitchen. A woman employe prepared meals for the prisoners, a jailer cooked for himself, and Thawana prepared meals for heself and her husband.

Priest Likes Life Away From Parish

NEW YORK (AP) — Three years ago, Father Joseph Pintauro was celebrating Mass in his Brooklyn parish.

Two years ago, after a brief fling as a caterer's assistant, he was writing television commercials for a Fifth Avenue advertising agency.

This year, the 37-year-old priest is the author of rapidly selling book, "To Believe in God," and has left his advertising job to devote full time to writing.

"The priest needs more than an existence as a sacred cow," said the slightly built Father Pintauro, who has substituted a smartly tailored suit and wide, patterned tie or comfortable dungarees and moccasins for his clerical collar.

Father Pintauro's leave of absence from his parish and liturgical duties was granted on Aug. 16, 1966, the day bishops were given the right to make decisions on priestly vocations.

He talks animatedly about the changing role of the Church. Often his conversation turns to his new experiences in the secular world—new friends, his garden, guitar playing and Manhattan's East Side.

"It's like leaving one country and going to another," said the native New Yorker, speaking about leaving his parish. "I feel like I'm in Sydney, Australia."

Easy-going and quick-witted, Father Pintauro hardly appears the angry young man of the Church, and he has little patience with people who ask why he is a "failure" as a priest. He sees himself as setting a precedent, but stresses that everything he has done was with the approval of his Roman Catholic superiors.

"The priesthood is getting its greatest challenge in history," said Father Pintauro, who praises the late Pope John XXIII and Vatican II for prompting "the mingling of the secular and spiritual worlds."

"It's unfair to a priest to be burdened with a reputation of angelic perfection, which is an absurd denial of humanity with all its drives," he said.

Too many people in the Church, he said, are so concerned with experiencing the love of God, that they are missing the "fundamental experience of the love of man that will teach us what love really is. There is a priesthood of all men. Each man has his own magic, which is his own sacrament."

"That's what my book is about," the long-haired priest explained. "It's my own expression of human love."

Father Pintauro said he doesn't expect to return to parish life, nor does he visit his Brooklyn parish.

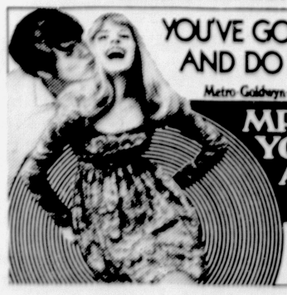

"I can't go back; it would blow their minds," said the priest, who feels most comfortable attending Mass in Greenwich Village.

Blonde Can't Collect For Wrong Rinse

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Milly was living proof that blonde's have more fun. A real beauty, her primary desire in life was to remain a blonde and to continue to have all that fun. Consequently, when she had her hair rinsed in a beauty parlor one day, she became absolutely horrified when her hair turned jet black. It seemed, for some unknown and revolting reason, the rinse had produced a reverse reaction.

Gasping as she looked at a mirror on a wall, Milly no longer saw herself as the fairest one of all and sued the owner of the beauty parlor for damages.

"For the two weeks it took to have my hair color restored," she complained in court, "I was one blonde gentlemen didn't prefer. It was the most miserable and humilating two weeks I ever spent."

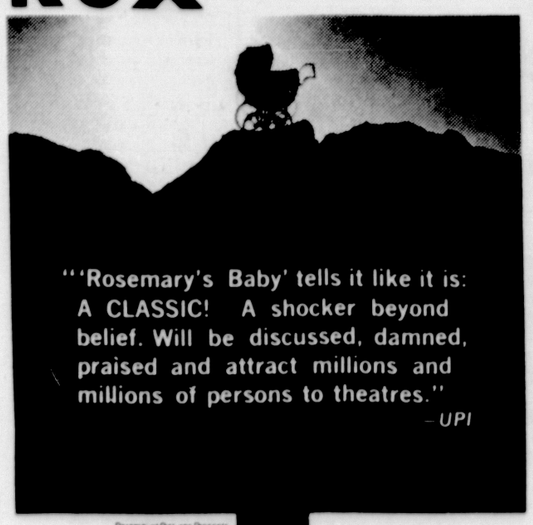

"The situation was unfortunate," conceded the owner of the beauty parlor, "but Milly can't collect any damages since she didn't suffer any. When we got done with her, she was as light-headed as she ever was."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit Milly to collect for her "dark" period?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that while the results of the rinse were not quite what Milly had expected, there was no evidence that her hair had in any way been damaged; that since her hair had not been damaged, she had not been damaged. Therefore, she is not entitled to be paid.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: This girl Marge is the best thing that ever happened to me. Last year I wanted to quit high school in my senior year and stay on at the job I worked Christmas vacation. The pay was good and I hated to give up the steady money. Marge made me see that I had to go back to school and now I am glad I did. She's really a great girl, Ann.

Here's the problem. This evening she told me we were through. It seems that during lunch hour she saw me riding around with a girl. So help me, Ann, I wasn't riding around with a girl. It was a guy. He's one of those flower kids who likes to wear his hair kind of long, and with the beads and all that, I can see how she made the mistake.

I offered to bring the guy over and introduce her but she said not to put myself out. Please tell me what to do. I can't lose Marge. --LOVE HER

Dear Love: Bring the flower kid over and introduce him to Marge-- beads and all. That will settle it. I can't understand why she doubted your story. Nowadays when I see long hair and beads, I just assume it's a boy.

Dear Ann Landers: I should be washing my dishes but here I am writing to you because what I have to say won't wait.

That woman who wrote to complain about her husband's sex drive (she called him a dead battery) got me mad. I wonder if it has occurred to her that maybe she is the one who is to blame. Does she nag him to pick up his things, get his feet off the furniture, get his junk out of the den? Does she complain about how hard she works all day, how difficult the kids are to manage ALONE, how prices are going up and what a hard time she has trying to stretch the paycheck? I know the type, Ann. I see them every week at bridge club.

If these women would stop complaining and give their hubbies a few compliments in front of the kids once in a while, offer to shampoo the guy's hair and be sweet and loving they might discover that the "dead battery" wasn't dead at all, it just needed re-charging. --HAZEL NUTS.

Dear Hazel: You're not nuts, dearie.. You're a smart girl. Thanks for sharing the wisdom.

Dear Ann Landers: Several weeks ago my mother's college friend came to visit for a weekend and she brought along her 16-year-old daughter. (I am a boy 17.) We got quite friendly but didn't do anything we are ashamed of, if you know what I mean. We kissed several times and that was about it.

Yesterday my mother got a letter saying Linda Sue has mononucleosis. I have heard this is a highly contagious disease. How come I didn't get it? -MR. QUESTION MARK.

Dear Mr.: Just lucky, I guess.

Confidential To No Baby But Treated Like One: Sorry, but a 13-year-old girl who must be told to wash her neck, clean out the bathtub and sew a rip in her blouse sounds pretty babyish to me. The best way to get your mother to treat you like an adult is to behave like one.

How will you know when the real thing comes along? Ask Ann Landers. Send for her booklet "Love Or Sex And How To Tell The Difference." Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Couple Gives up Keeping House In County Jail

PALMYRA, Mo. (AP)—Two year's residence in the sheriff's quarters at Marion County jail is ending this week for Sheriff Wes Bross and his petite wife Thawana.

The sheriff's 4-foot-9, 80-pound wife has had a busy schedule. She's taken and relayed messages for her husband, typed records, helped with statements taken from prisoners, and tended the normal domestic tasks of a household.

Bross, sheriff since 1960, resigned the position this week and he and his wife are moving to Florida where he will take a sales position. R. J. Rothweiler has been appointed acting sheriff to serve until a successor is elected in November and qualifies for office in January.

When Thawana and Bross were married two years ago she moved into the old Marion County jail, a brick structure built in 1858. Still on the bricks at the front corner of the building are marks said to have been made by bayonets of Civil War soldiers guarding prisoners in the jail during the war.

During a normal day while Thawana and her husband have lived in the quarters three different people prepared meals in her kitchen. A woman employe prepared meals for the prisoners, a jailer cooked for himself, and Thawana prepared meals for heself and her husband.

He pointed to a satchel containing the ransom money.

Tracton said he drove on a dirt road, parked his car and walked about three blocks carrying the satchel. A car drove up. He thought it belonged to the kidnaper, but it contained FBI agents.

The agents drove away, leaving him alone. Seconds later, the suspect's car pulled up and stopped. Tracton said the boy was out of sight.

The kidnaper "insisted on me giving him the money," Tracton said. "I wouldn't do it until I knew the kid was alive." The boy appeared.

By pre-arranged code with the kidnaper, Tracton asked the youngster through the window of the car the name of his dog.

"Misty," came the reply.

"What was Susan's brother's name?"

Tracton said the ransom money "weighed a ton. It was the heaviest damn thing. Believe me, I was very happy to give him the money."

But the kidnaper didn't get the money.

By agreement, Tracton dropped the satchel and walked away. The kidnaper was supposed to release the child, and the boy was to run to Tracton.

Tracton was to turn and leave with the boy, allowing the abductor to claim the money and leave too.

But nobody got out of the car immediately, and the FBI car returned. The suspect sped away.

Tracton said he heard four shots. He ran back to pick up the satchel, walked to his own car and drove to the nearest police station.

Slugs sailed around the youngster, riddling the suspect's car—but the boy wasn't hit.

As one agent rammed the suspect's car with his pursuit car, the spinning vehicles hit a car driven by Homer Hart, 20, of Los Angeles, a passing motorist.

When Hart regained control of his auto, he said "I saw officers dragging this guy out of one of the other cars and he was saying, 'Why don't you kill me?'"

The FBI said the suspect tried to use his small captive as a shield.

As agents took the boy away from the suspect, a fourth auto careened into the pileup.

A man posing as an electrician abducted the red-haired Stalford child, who was clad only in a bathing suit, after tying up the attractive blonde mother, Joanne. It was the day off for all four maids in the $90,000 home.

proposal for an unconditional bombing halt appeared to Muskie to be "not so great it should be permanently divisive."

He said he will devote his time in the fall campaign to electing Vietnam war critics to the Senate so that body will have a larger voice in foreign affairs.

Muskie won the second place nomination overwhelmingly but not without some shortlived efforts to stage a revolt. Insurgents offered the name of Julian Bond, 28-year-old Negro legislator from Georgia, but he withdrew. He explained that he wasn't old enough to meet the constitutional requirement that a candidate be at least 35 years old.

Muskie took notice in his acceptance speech of the street violence which has plagued delegates at their hotels.

He said the awareness of the shortcomings in national life had fired young Americans to various forms of protest.

"There are, however, disquieting aspects to this force," he said. "It can be expressed in unrestrained, irrational and sometimes explosive ways." He suggested that some protests were "the product of exploitation by militants whose motives are suspect."

Humphrey Thursday denounced "storm trooper tactics" in the street battles and "rowdyism" he said had broken out in the hall. He said it was about time to call a halt to violent protests.

"Self righteous minorities don't have a monopoly on the truth," he said. "Shouting is not a substitute for reason."

13 Acres for Housing Units Purchased

DEXTER - Thirteen acres of ground has been purchased by the Dexter Housing Authority for the construction of 100 low rent housing mits, which will cost approximately $1,476,000., it was announced by Harry Jennings, executive director.

The property was purchased from Ira Holmes on Rainey and Locust Streets, or west of Carney's Market.

Seventy of the units will be designed for elderly living with the remaining 30 units for low-income families. There will also be an office and maintenance building. The community building, according to Jennings, can be used by the public, but will need a "sponsor" to help with a portion of the operational expenses. In surrounding communities, Jennings said, various clubs, city councils of chambers of commerce, sponsor the buildings.

Surveys have been made, Jennings said, and the tentative layout of the design has been made. The architect designing the units for Dexter, Stanley Brown of Dallas, also designed the new housing complex at Bloomfield.

When the plans for the units are complete, they will be returned to Dexter for approval, Jennings said, by the local Housing board, composed of Howard Chrisman, who is chairman, Dr. F. C. Northington, vice chairman; and members Howard Hill, Bill Edwards, and Marsh Watkins.

The units will be of brick construction and it is expected to take 12 months or 270 working days to complete the project.

Perkins said Mrs. Harrison had killed his dog. Prosecuting Attorney Joe Taylor recommended a fine of $100 but Judge Robt. Hawkins assessed a $50 fine plus court costs.

Sam Gains, who is being held for the shotgun slaying of Kager Speights Saturday waived a preliminary hearing and was bound over to circuit court.
